History is being made every time that important events are taking place which may radically affect the entire world. We as students of college should be interested in the things that are going on around us. We are not an active part of the world, its work, and its worries. Each one of us has many access to any number of daily papers in the dormitory reading rooms and in the library. Broadcasts of news bulletins, speeches, and analyses of current events may be heard at almost any hour of the day or night. Let's keep up with the world and know something about what is happening in Washington, Berlin, Shanghai, and London, as well as here on the campus. Discuss the news with your room-mates, your friends, your teachers. Ignorance and provincialism are as outmoded as the bustle and hoop-skirt. Be smart and get in step with the times!

This is a long jump from international contacts and diplomatic maneuvers, but have you noticed us in the good-looking posters which brighten the bulletin board? Some of them refer to us as "the little people." And nothing makes us more irritable than to pass a strikingly clever three-dimensional poster on our way to a class and find it an hour later minus its third dimension. For those thoughts one or perhaps two minutes ago seem to delight in tearing posters apart we suggest a few hours hard labor in trying to make a really clever design themselves.

Several people have told us that we invariably spell their names wrong. We are sorry because that we have been irresponsible in the past and we think them for telling us so that we may be more accurate in the future. As far as we have been able to ascertain, no newspaper has yet been printed which was absolutely factually and typographically correct. The Johnsonian staff works diligently to get out a paper each week which will be as accurate as it is humanly possible for a paper to be. Mistakes, however, always remain and they are usually called to our attention. We regret them and work harder each week to cut them down so that we may none day say, "This is one hundred per cent accurate news." Until then, will you be patient with us?

Spring holidays are just twelve days away. May we make a suggestion as how best to enjoy them? Clean up everything—clearing read that parallel, write your play those reports—do all of the things you have been "trying" to do and just haven't done.

March 30 does finally roll around, you can go home to rest easy with your easy conscience. Be sure when you settle down to those "catching-up" that you don't overlook the senior recitals. That one was wonderful and the promise to be equally as thrilling.

'Sparks' Fly... Fink Describes 'Flame'

"Sparks" an eighteenth century word meaning a "gallant" has come to mean, in our part of the state, a young boy who has just begun going with girls," said a sophomore in Miss Fink's English literature class. "Oh, I see," replied the knowing Miss Fink with a nod, "he hasn't become a FLAME yet!"

WALKER AND GOSNELL APPEAR IN RECITAL

The second of a series of graduating recitals will be given tonight by Miriam Lynch Walker, pianist from Johnston, assisted by Mary Frances Gosnell, contralto from Laurens, and Elizabeth Cronan organist from Greenwood.

Marguerite Sanders, junior from Greenville, will accompany and will join Marie Hanter, organist from Chester, in playing the orchestral parts in the Tchaikovsky "Kumars" on piano and organ. Miriam Lynch, senior A. B. graduate in piano from Johnston, is a member of the Music club, Alpha Psi Zeta, the Y chorus as chairman of music, and a student for last semester, and an accompanist for the latest last year. Mary Frances has been a member of the Student Board for two years. She is also president of the Pieta and the give club, vice president of Curry Literary society, and a member of the senior, the Music

Say What You Think (An Editorial)

With the rest of the world in a state of serious excitement and upheaval Winthrop students still go about their ordinary schedule in much the same way they did before Hitler marched into Austria. But there is a tenseness evident in the air when the word war is mentioned and a stronger interest in news broadcasts, newspapers, and magazines. Realizing that any European conflict will directly affect us, we are determined to stay well informed—to know what is happening and why. This week and next The Johnsonian, the weekly student publication, is sponsoring a program to determine campus opinion on world affairs. At the same time more than 700 leading colleges and universities over the entire United States are thus cooperating with the Brown University student poll to ascertain "What Students Think." Ballots taken in each college will be collected by The Brown Daily Herald, and general student attitudes will thus be determined from three-quarters of a million votes. Poll Day at Winthrop will be Wednesday, March 23. Before that time The Johnsonian will present the plan to the student body in its March 18 edition and a series of discussions under the supervision of Grace Stanley, president of the Debaters League, will explain and define various aspects of the questions to students at a voluntary assembly. Five big subjects are treated in the ballot. These are as follows: (1) The Chinese-Japanese conflict, (2) The Spanish revolution, (3) The United States naval policy, (4) R. O. T. C. in universities and colleges, and (5) The individual's response to a declaration of war by the United States. At present very few of us are sure how we stand on important topics. In fact the whole business of pacts and parleys, sanctions and non-interference seems distressingly complicated and dense. If we want to learn to think for ourselves, to maintain independent opinions, we must have our attitudes do count for a very great deal, and we are determined to keep them up to date. Wars are fought by the youth of a nation. We, as youth, should understand them. It is hoped that the coming student poll will not only crystallize student opinions but also will stimulate all of us to do some real, sincere thinking. (See page 3 for the complete ballot.)

DO YOU KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT IT?

During the last ten days the state of world affairs has been turned upside down. To quote one reputable foreign correspondent, "Europe is facing its most serious crisis in 24 years."

THE POEMS MEAN SOMETHING THEN

Feeling that appreciation as well as inspiration is aided by beauty, Miss Maude Hall is taking her freshman English classes to notable places on the campus this week in appropriate settings...

PERSONALITIES

Dear Mom, I'm so sad; I'm responsible for a death. Yesterday when I came into the room the darling little kitten—black except for a tiny patch of white under its chin like a baby's bib—was curled up on my bed, and the roommate was perched in a cork-up-on-the-mattress manner on the bookcase.

EULOGY—TO THE DECEASED POLITICIANS

We missed you, departed politicians, in this last election. As long as we can remember, you have been very obvious and influential among us. From force of habit we expected to see you on the scene again.

THE MODERN GIRL LOOKS AT MARRIAGE

It is obvious what Winthrop girls think on the subject. When a recent chapel speaker remarked that most girls in choosing between careers and a young man would do better to put the

STUFF 'N THINGS

"For bless me, is this spring!" Where have I heard that one before? Spring has sprung, my little doodle bugs, and the good little grass is crying out for a sandy garment or two, you'd better compromise on a housecoat till holidays. The brighter it is the better, and tailored, pull-out. Its ruffies and goose-necks they'll be long enough if you "let 'em prevail" go concerning the color.
