Contributions Made For Hovermale Scholarship

The Rock Hill Branch of the American Association of University Women has contributed $300.00 to the Ruth Hovermale Scholarship Fund, according to Ms. Judi Gustafson, president. AAUW, a national organization that promotes fellowships and research grants is part of the International Confederation of University Women. Gustafson said that two major goals of the Association are to promote better relations between students and faculty and to promote legislation for more various types of activities that interest women.

Rat Capping Continues At Winthrop

"Rat Capping" or the capping of freshmen with beanies has long been a tradition at Winthrop. Last Wednesday, September 6 the freshmen at Winthrop went through this ritual.

Freshmen lined up in front of Byrnes Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. before marching in to receive their caps. Upperclassmen waited inside. As they came in, freshmen were met with chants of "Cheer up freshmen - the worst is yet to come" and "We want rats!" The freshmen chanting grew in volume as the capping went on. Afterwards, the rats were taken outside and given their upperclassmen's books to class.

The upperclassmen found many things for the rats to do. But, the freshmen had an easier time with the rat capping and their upperclassmen orders than freshmen in the past.

In the 1960's girls had to dress like rats for days. In the evening following the initiation rat had to perform in an annual talent show. Those who failed to abide by the rules of being a freshman rat were brought before a "Rat Council" and were given a punishment befitting to their wrong behavior. This council was carried out until the 1960's. Changes in the dress of the rats occurred in 1954. This was the beginning of the wearing of beanies in the school colors of red and gold. Caught without their beanies, they would suffer a punishment by upperclassmen.

At one point there was a whole week devoted to freshmen Rat Week. In 1961 rats were not called rats, but were changed to rodents and they had to call the upperclassmen "Miss."

Most of the freshmen were excited about the capping this year and had comments like, "I enjoyed the whole thing - especially having to do the dumb things . . . I thought it was really terrific . . . It was a lot of fun."

Two Days Under The Big Top

The Stebbling Royal European Circus will present a tent performance on the lawn of Dinkins Student Center Wednesday and Thursday at 8:30 and 8:00 p.m., said Tom Webb, Dinkins Director.

The single-ring circus will seat 1200 people and will include a high-wire act, clowns, and acrobats. Advance tickets, available to the community as well as students, will be on sale in Dinkins up to eleven o'clock on Wednesday. Ticket price for students is $1.50.

"It's a family circus out of Florida," Webb said, "and will bring back an old style of entertainment that has been on the decline, a little touch of the past."

Black Holes Are Out Of Sight

BY BENNY CAIN

So read the bumper stickers and T-shirts. Perhaps it is the accident of an everyday idiom becomes profound.

I don’t understand why the universe exists at all and why it is made of the way it is made. Whether, a theoretical physicist at Cambridge University. His work arises from the rare disease of the nervous system and muscles. His mind sees the world in a different way of perception, producing elegant mathematics which he physically is unable to write down. But which, in the opinion of many of his colleagues, are the first step toward unifying general relativity and quantum mechanics. His specialty is the physics of black holes, which is strangely appropriate, since his death may suck him in before the light of his thoughts escape us.

Black holes? They are the final state of a star of giant stars. When the nuclear fuel is exhausted there is no further process, and the star’s death is a stage in a collapse to a shrinking volume of neutrons which is incredibly dense. Scientists say, “It is not surprising matter and as it does, gains more gravitational. Its gravity becomes so powerful that light cannot escape from it. Light is absorbed for positive spiritual energy. It is also something which no physical laws both as a wave and as a particle. It travels at the same speed, relative to all objects of the universe, regardless of how fast or slow or in what direction these objects are traveling. In his book, Einstein said he could bend the rest of his contemplating the true shape of light.

Although we can’t see them, we know black holes exist, because they are mathematically verifiable and because we can do matter being drawn down into an empty star near. Like death, they only be known by us indirectly. The existence of both are known VIA disappearance. The atmosphere, when love and death have been explored by psychologists and philosophers. Please picture the cosmic image of a complex spanning brackets with a stream of matter, the event horizon, the theoretically impermeable wall of a black hole.

Light has also been associated with love (“You are the light of my life,” etc.). If physical analogies are not sufficient, the theme of the show was “American politics and its people.” The polls say, 65% of the voters are tired of scare tactics . . . ,” Milton Friedman, Newsweek columnist, said, “The California vote and its ten to the wave of voter protest. The public is getting sophisticated. It will demand performance and not merely promises.”

In addition to voicing student opinion, the legislative branch also accepts petitions. Petitions are now considered by the administration.

Student Vote: Get It and Go

Whitworth College is again into full-time operation. Many changes are taking place and you can take part in these changes by voting for Senate representatives on September 13. Through the Senate you can make your voice heard.

According to the Winthrop handbook, the Legislative branch of the Student Government is where, “the student opinion is voiced.” The Senate is where students have a vote in directing Senate action and has a direct line to the administration. By voicing student opinion, the legislative branch has a direct line to the administration. Through your vote you can control the affairs of the Student Government. Do you have a gripe about limited parking spaces? Do you want more co-ed dormitories? Are you satisfied with the cafeteria situation? The Senate is where students get action on desired changes. They are able to make a difference, but only when everyone is involved can the power of the people really be felt. A good example for all to see is the recent tax revolt that took place this June in California. Proposition 13, a proposed amendment to the Constitution was an attempt to increase property tax rate of 1977. According to NEWSWEEK, June 19, 1978, local officials warned that if Proposition 13 was defeated it would force cities to cut public services such as schools, parks, and fire departments. The people, however, used the use of scare tactics . . . ,” Milton Friedman, Newsweek columnist, said, “The public refused to be bamboozled this time as they have been so before.” According to the polls, 65% of the voters revolted against Proposition 13, making voter history. Californians suddenly became aware that they could do something to control the government. Whitworth alumni and students should do the same.

Post Beer Bustin

BY RALPH JOHNSON

An unusual wave of spirit seemingly swept Winthrop on the afternoon of Sept. 2, 1978. After the school’s annual beer bust it seemed that sanity had been kicked in the tail.

This reporter, anxious to see the results after hundreds of students had drunk themselves silly, rushed to the cafeteria promptly at 6:00 p.m. I was not to be disappointed. In came a multitude of smashed Winthrop beer bottles, beer cans, and beer glasses, stumbling, and just plain hell-raising all over the cafeteria. The excitement was rising and then someone screamed, “Food fight at 5:00 p.m.!” I was caught off guard and all eyes shifted to the ice machines. We all applauded as the break glass was hit and the shocked amazement at the broken dishes and food mixed together.

Tension and restlessness continued to predominate the atmosphere. A semi-synchronized clanging began that seemed to stir the entire cafeteria. People began to beat upon their dishes with their knives. Security was doing its best to remain calm. Then, someone began throwing bowls and the entire place erupted into a mass of flying food and insults. The air was crowded with different types of food and the fun had begun.

I laughed all the way back to my room. In the midst of my hysteria, I began to think how great it was to see Winthrop students having a good time. Yet, I was saddened to realize that it takes a liquid depressant to get Winthrop students (light).
Texas Students Abolish Their Student Government

BY HELEN CORDES

(CPS) "Student government was a joke. It had become an ineffective waste of money," explained David Haug, a University of Texas (UT) junior who heads the Coalition to Retire Aspiring Politicians (CRAP). "So our motto became 'We pay $45,000 for nothing— we can get nothing for less than that.' And we were successful."

The "we." Haug is referring to is the 2644 UT students who voted to abolish UT's student government in a referendum last month. It was a close vote; 2648 students opposed complete abolition. But Haug feels the bulk of student sentiment favored retiring a structure many felt was an "albatross."

And he may, in the process, have touched a national nerve. When that doesn't happen, they would either stop coming to meetings or remain all illusions of power.

Many agreed with Haug's view of UTSA's problems, but not everyone concurred that abolition was the answer. Said SA vice-president Mark Lazatto, "I don't feel people are willing to face the fact that it's not SA's structure at fault. It's people's gosh darn asses and elect ineffective leaders they will always have these problems."

Some felt that abolishing a structure without having another to take its place would leave SA open to even more administrative control, to that "whatever took its place would have different people with different titles but the same problems," as one student theorized in an editorial.

"NON-SENSICAL"

But CRAP supporters believed that some kind of "cooling off period" is necessary to determine what is really needed and wanted. Haug is confident, that some plan will come from the ashes. Various proposals have already surfaced, ranging from a nine-member student board of regents to a co-ordinator function for the association, with student groups lobbying in their own interests. Haug feels students are ready for something completely different.

He said the abolition act was predictable as long as two years ago when a landslide victory was won by a duo running on an "Arts and Sausages" campaign. "They were completely non-sensical. They wanted to change the motto on top of abolition building from "Ye shall know the truth and the truth will set you free" to 'Money Talks.'" Haug said. "One of them wanted to abolish the association then, but gave up. The other got swept up with the whole student government thing."

The abolition move was pre-saged by years of dwindling association power, says Eric Mayo, an SA member who was active in abolition. Mayo says that the new system will be similar to what the SA was "in its heyday, when it influenced, controlled, and ran important campus functions like student publications, the Texas Union, the bookstore, and student service fees allocations." Then, Mayo says, "the student interest was united student interest."

But the referendum itself is probably futile. Regent Chairman Allan Shivers says that students "have no authority over regental control," and that their vote would not have any effect on the board.

Regardless of regental control, the biggest threat to a "united student interest" may be the students themselves. "Anarchy is our No. 1 concern on campus," Haug stated. Although some progress was made this year in form of a shuttle bus service, a student attorney, a tight escort service and mandatory course evaluations, a UT editorial points to problems in such areas as student housing rates, fees increases, and more, provisions for a quality education.

It's obvious that students are not looking to the SA for solutions. Haug said. In the last election, "none of the above" was the top votegetter, and the one unopposed vice-presidential candidate had less votes than "none of the above."

MANY THANKS to the NEW DIRECTIONS STAFF for a SUPER JOB.
Arnold Shankman, associate professor of history at Winthrop, has edited a book of papers by one of South Carolina's leading 20th century civil rights advocates.

"Human Rights Odyssey," a 352-page book of speeches and letters of Marion A. Wright was published in June by Moore Publishing Co. in Durham, N.C. It is receiving good reviews across the South.

Covering the period from 1913 to 1977, the book is a history of the civil rights movement in the words of a white Southern liberal.

Shankman wrote the introduction to the book and introductions to much of the material in it, putting the items into historical perspective.

Shankman says Wright was as authentic a son of the South as you can get. His father was a Confederate Army veteran who reportedly received a farewell handshake from Gen. Robert E. Lee as the troops departed for Appomattox.

"It's not logical that this son of a Confederate veteran would be one of the leading civil rights activists," said the Winthrop professor.

Wright, who was born Jan. 18, 1894, in Johnston, S.C., became a champion of civil rights after enrolling as a student at the University of South Carolina in 1910.

As a college student, Wright won an oratorical contest speaking on the subject "America and Peace." In that speech he called for a family of nations similar to what President Woodrow Wilson later proposed as the League of Nations.

After earning a law degree, Wright became an attorney in Conway where he practiced from 1919 to 1947.

Shankman says Wright was the first white man in South Carolina to call for putting blacks on juries. He called for integrated libraries, pointing out the inadequacies of public library facilities for blacks in the Carolinas during the 1930's and 1940's.

He became active in and later became president of the South Carolina Interracial Committee, a liberal civil rights organization. He joined the Commission on Interracial Cooperation in the 1920's and served two terms as president of that organization's successor, the Southern Regional Council, including some of the turbulent years of the 1960's. He believed that "we must integrate or we shall disintegrate."

Wright moved to Linville Falls, N.C., in 1947, continuing his involvement in unpopular causes. After the passage of the Civil Rights Act, the Civil Rights Commission was created with advisory committees in each state. Wright became chairman of the subcommittee on employment which reported among other things, that there was not a single black in the North Carolina National Guard.

Civil liberties also greatly interested Wright. In 1973 he served as president of the South Carolina chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union. Wright also focused his attention on ending the death penalty.

A Canterbury Tale

BY SYDNEY A. BREEZE

"If I'm going to take this off," Father Batkin, who much more prefers to be called Jeff, is the new Episcopal minister for the Canterbury House, located just across the street from Johnson building.

"I think that we need to do this job well enough to mean more to the students, to be related to them more. One of the nice things is, I live only three homes down the road, so if I'm not at Canterbury I can be found at home a lot of the time.

"Several students are already making themselves comfortable in my house... putting their feet up on the coffee table. And I feel good about that. That's the kind of ministry I want to have-one where everybody feels comfortable."

Jeff came to the Canterbury House on July 1. At the same time, his dad, a Lutheran pastor, was at the Church of Our Savior in Rock Hill.

"I like work. I like as much as I can get, and I enjoy being with the students. I enjoy the church. I LOVE church work." And you believe him.

So what does he want to do as chaplain of the Canterbury House?

"I want to get the students involved... to let them see me, and let them see the place... to show them the changes we've made this summer... to get the freshmen involved... to let the community know that Canterbury is going to be more open than it has in the past."

What changes have been made?

"We put the lectern in the middle of the congregation so that the Word of God would be amongst the people." They also painted rooms, cleaned out the library, moved the altar away from the wall and put a new television antenna on top of the roof so that the T.V. would be "visible." Getting the piano tuned is also "one of the things on my priority list." George Singleton, who is an organ student working on his Master's degree at Winthrop, has been hired as the organist for Canterbury House. "He's fun to be with," according to Jeff.

As for Jeff's plans for the future for Canterbury House, he can't say yet. "But my hope is that Canterbury will become more of a place for the whole campus to feel comfortable coming to, and that it will be more of an open house. That we can get a group of people together which it looks like we have--who can begin to dream about the possibilities of new types of ministry to the Winthrop community, and figure out what's viable in the way of religious activity... to see what we need and what things we can meet--and do a good job of it."

Jeff's wife, Marguerite, is also very active with the Canterbury House. Their six-year-old son, Josh, is also quite "helpful." The Batkins have been married for nine years and, believe it or not, neither has graying hair. In fact, Jeff is only thirty years old. His hobbies are tennis, sailing, oil painting (oil on wood), and he was once a "frustrated accordion player."

And he's been around, too. "Born in New York, I attended Emory University in Atlanta, Master of Divinity degree from the University of South in Sevanoe, Tenn, an assistant at St. Bartholomew Episcopal Church in Atlanta, Vicar of St. Christopher's Church in New York, N.Y. and generally, "grew up almost everywhere in the South you can live."

If you'd like to meet Jeff, his invitation is open to you: "I'm always glad to have anyone around here who wants to be here."

Canterbury House services in the St. Mary's Chapel are at 5:30 p.m. on Tuesdays (and last about 35 minutes), and at 7:00 a.m. until 7:20 a.m. on Friday mornings. Not only that, but after the Friday morning service, Jeff takes whoever shows up to McDonald's for breakfast.

Jeff Batkin is someone worth seeing, worth working with, worth working around. After that, you feel like you've known him all your life.

And that is only the beginning of this Canterbury Tale......

Winthrop’s Poet—She Begins To Discover The Wisdom

BY KATHY KIRKPATRICK

You will not need a house or a hut or clothing, for the weather is perfect/always. And when one evening you hear/the voices of children, I will come. We will begin to discover the wisdom to create the season.

So writes Susan Ludvigson in her poem “The Wisdom.” And if it is wisdom this poet is after, at least one national magazine believes that the Winthrop professor has her share.

This fall THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will publish Ludvigson in a special selection of emerging poets.

“Her acceptance was wonderful news because THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY is probably the magazine I’ve most wanted to be in,” says the 56-year-old Wisconsin native as she sits amid the plants and sunlight that fill the living room of her A-frame condominium. “This summer has been a productive time for me. I’ve never written so much and felt so good about it.”

Not that finding her poems in print is anything new for Ludvigson. Her work has appeared in such magazines as PARIS REVIEW, THE GEORGIA REVIEW, THE NATION, and TEXAS QUARTERLY. Her collection of poems, STEP CAREFULLY IN NIGHT GRASS, won the Oscar Young Award for the best book of poetry published in North Carolina in 1974.

In addition, the Winthrop poet has been awarded the $2,500 South Carolina Arts Commission Individual Artist’s Fellowship in Literature which she will use to supplement her teaching income as she works on her next book of poems during the coming year.

That kind of success reveals Ludvigson’s dedication to her work. “You really have to make a commitment to your writing and spend time at it,” said Ludvigson, who spent an average of five hours a day writing this past summer. “The commitment has to be freely given—almost has to choose you, like a calling to the priesthood. You’ve got to feel it’s what you need and want to be doing—maybe need more than want.”

Though Ludvigson did not begin writing seriously until 1970, she’s been attracted to words all her life. “In my family my parents were very conscious of language and we used to quibble over words when I was a kid,” the poet says, smiling, her red hair framing her round, fair face. “My father would get upset if someone said ‘almost exactly.’ He insisted that was a contradiction. I grew up just really enjoying words.”

Ludvigson also grew up Scandinavian and still identifies with the culture. “Scandinavians have a kind of hardiness that comes partly from surviving the climate,” Ludvigson says, recalling the harsh winters of the Wisconsin farm country where she was born and raised. Hardiness indeed. Here’s just a sample of this poet’s bustling lifestyle—the year she wrote her book she also completed her master’s degree in English at UNC-Chapel Hill, worked full-time for disadvantaged adults and redecorated a big house. This fall she teaches three courses at Winthrop, among them a popular workshop in writing poetry, as well as working on her next book between the finds time to counsel aspiring poets.

“I think it’s extremely important for people who are writing poetry, to know what’s being done, to pay attention to other poets and give them an audience,” Ludvigson says. “I think there is a real hunger to be coming together and thinking that what you’re doing is the most important thing.”

Though she can give no clear reason for why she writes, Ludvigson does view the artist as a kind of keeper of values. “What we need more than anything else in the world is to re-establish many of the human values we’ve lost,” she says. “I thought I disagreed with John Gardner who advocates ‘serious’ literature, but more and more I realize that basically I support his position. I find the defense of the artist over the art, that violates someone’s ‘code,’ which tends to a narrower definition.”

But how, finally, did a Wisconsin native find her way to the South? Ludvigson once wondered the same thing.

“I’d never lived anywhere but in the midwest when I moved to South Carolina with my husband and son to Charlotte,” Ludvigson says. “It was living in North Carolina, every time I’d look out the window and see that red sky I’d think, ‘North Carolina? What are you doing in North Carolina?’

But now that she’s here Ludvigson wants to stay. After a year at USC doing doctoral work, she came to Winthrop in 1975.

“I’ve come to feel very comfortable in the South and feel that it’s a home I’ve chosen,” she says. “The South is so exotic to me, so lush. Just the kudzu alone, which I still love even though I’m told it’s not a good thing. I like the way vegetation threatens to take over the world. It just wasn’t true in the midwest. It was much too cold. I feel much greater promise of change in the South because things don’t seem to be as regulated as they are in the North.”

Ah, yes. “We will begin to discover the wisdom, to create the season.”

Soccer Team Sets Goals
BY BILL FLOYD

Soccer season is upon us at Winthrop. Winthrop's soccer team returns in 1978 with two goals—to reach the NAIA District Six playoffs for a second straight year and to win 15 of the 23 matches in the schedule.

Coach Jim Casada calls the 23-match schedule both "physically and emotionally demanding." Co-captains for the team, seniors Wes Jenkins and Frankie Griffin, head a host of returnees to the squad.

The Eagles' front line is very strong, Casada emphasized. "We have eight or nine players with striking ability." Tim Peay and Frankie Griffin, both NAIA all district six team in 1977 head the forward position. Wes Jenkins and Bill Wagers return at halfback with former halfback Mike Mitchell moving to halfback to make the position stronger. Kevin Barlow and Randy Mitter, both transfers from Brevard, will be starters at fullback.

Coach Casada stated the first five matches of the season are most crucial in the "78 season. "If we come out with more wins than losses, we'll be in good shape for the rest of the season."

The Eagles open the season on Sept. 9 in Charleston against the College of Charleston. The home opener pits the Eagles against Belmont Abbey on Sept. 12.

Intramurals Cranking Up
BY KELLY GORDON

Intramurals are cranking up for fall, according to Intramural Director Evans Brown.

The fall sports include flag football, softball and water basketball for men, women and co-ed teams and are open to all Winthrop College students, faculty and staff.

Rosters, including the team name, captain and alternate captain, should be turned in to the intramural office, located second floor Peabody, on the Friday before the games begin. Flag football and softball have begun, but the water basketball deadline is Sept. 15.

The captains' meeting for softball will be held Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. in room 125 Peabody. The flag football captains' meeting is at 8 p.m.

Evans said, "We're here to serve student interest—their student activity fee buys equipment and pays for officials. We're interested in their ideas and feel we're responsive to their requests. All they have to do is drop by and tell us they have an idea."

Upcoming student elections provide an opportunity for input. Each residence hall votes on an intramural board member, and through these representatives students can learn more about the program and say more about the program.

An intramural handbook, complete with rules and regulations, is being published and will be available through these representatives, each residence assistant, hall offices, department offices and Dinkins information desk.

The intramural program is also a way for students to earn money. For refereeing, timekeeping or scorekeeping, students are paid $2.50 an hour. Clinics are held for these students to familiarize them with the rules for each sport.

Winthrop's intramural program is growing and changing because of student interest. Evans said, "In order to make any program successful, you've got to have cooperation and support from the students."

Why do you always make me the tough part?
Fred Richardson—A Life Of Food Service

BY BONNIE JERDAN

While eating in the cafeteria, most students have become familiar with a few of the faces seen several times during the year. But there is one face seen each day, however, is now known. Because of the great number of students who eat in the cafeteria, it is hardly possible for everyone to get to know each other's name. Therefore, it becomes necessary to introduce the people one comes in contact with through the means of paper and ink. This person is Fred Richardson, the manager of Thomson cafeteria and co-manager of Epicure catering.

Richardson is the tall, soft-spoken man who may be found helping behind the lines, serving anything that goes smoothly, or sitting at one of the round tables drinking coffee with co-managers Ruby and Macbryde. Richardson's duties include coming to work in the cafeteria at 6:00 in the morning to help set up for breakfast and usually staying until 4:00 in the afternoon. This is only one of the many intriguing hobbies of his life; Richardson is also a great cook.

Grants Connect Countries

The 1978-80 competition for overseas study offered under the Fulbright Program and by foreign governments, universi ties and private donors will close shortly. The purpose of these grants is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the U.S. and other countries through the exchange of persons, knowledge and skills.

Most of the grants offered provide round-trip transportation, tuition, and maintenance for one academic year; a few provide international travel only or a stipend intended as a part-time grant.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application, who will generally hold a bachelor's degree, and will be proficient in the language of the host country. Candidates may not hold the Ph.D. at the time of application. Applicants for 1978-79 are ineligible for a grant to a country if they have been engaged in graduate work or conducting research in that country for six months or more during the past five years.

Creative and performing artists are not required to have a bachelor's degree but they must have four years of professional study or equivalent experience. Social work applicants must have at least two years of professional experience after the Master of Social Work degree. Candidates in medicine must have an M.D. at the time of application.

Application forms and further information for students currently enrolled in Winthrop College can be obtained from the Fulbright Program Adviser, Dr. William W. Daniel, Jr., who is located in The Honors Office, 202 Tillman. The deadline for filling applications on this campus is Oct. 6, 1978.

Senior Audits

All students planning to obtain a degree from Winthrop College must have a Senior Audit on file in Academic Records and must complete an application for a diploma. The deadline for completing the Senior Audit form is December 1978. The audit form is available at the Audit Office located in the Administration Building.

He said he finds the business "fascinating" with "very few dull moments." In his years at Winthrop, Richardson has helped train hundreds of cooks, and he has praised the administration for being open to new ideas and for being "always looking for ways to improve the cafeteria."

Richardson worked as a baker before he joined the army and served in World War II. After the war, he returned to his family's bakery and eventually became a part-time teacher at a local college. He has been teaching for over 30 years and has helped many students launch their careers in the food service industry.

Richardson is a member of the American Culinary Federation and has served on the board of directors for several years. He is also a member of the Winthrop College Alumni Association.

Richardson is married to Ruby, and they have three children. They live in a small house in Thomson, South Carolina. When not working at the college, Richardson enjoys cooking and spending time with his family.

Placement, Career Planning

The job hunt is on and the Placement and Career Planning Office, located in 142 Harcourt, offers its services to all students of Winthrop College.

Placement and Career Planning is a free service which helps students choose careers. According to Jerry Smith, Director, the Placement Office does not depend on the students coming to them. They go to the students through open workshops and through visits such as Job Hunting, Job Interviews, Resume Writing and Graduate Study.

Besides the workshops, students are given individual attention. The Office will begin a file for students which will aid in gathering information about themselves. A self-directed search has begun to give the students an idea of what kind of person he or she is and what direction he or she is going.

Also, Job Hunting Kits will be available to students. This is a special packet which will contain everything a student needs to support his or her job hunt.

Three Hours Credit For Rock-N-Roll

JPS—Whoever said college courses are irrelevant?

In an effort to lighten their curricula and attract students, a lot of colleges are cracking up courses that dabble in the aesthetic corners of student life. An informal survey of some select schools revealed accredited courses—and even some degrees—offered in rock music, coping with campus life, word games, betting and roller skating.

But the most popular appear to be classes about that one phenomenon that has doubtlessly touched every student's life: rock music.

Robert Bossy, instructor at Lansing (Mich.) Community College, has put together a nationwide first-an associate degree in Pop-Rock Music. Available since winter term, the degree will hopefully produce "competent professional musicians, instead of frustrated rock and rollers."

Along with music theory, voice and composition, classes like "Music toSell By" and "The Business of Music" add the hard edge of practicality many music departments lack.

For those who can't play, along with music theory, the University of Texas at Austin offers "History and Theory of Rock Music." Learning the origins and progressions of rock should aid students in "relating the current rock scene to today's complex society," instructor Jerry Davis explains. (Due for non-Americans who want to relate to today's complex society; the current rock scene is "less concerned with the human condition; more emphasis on self-gratification and having a good time.

Specialty rock courses are also available. Memphis State University students can get six credits by learning about "The House That Elvis Built: Rock Culture From Memphis to Mainstream." Further north, capacity crowds of over 100 Kent State University students attend twice a week to exercise Beatlemania in "History of the Beatles."

Test Dates For National Teachers Examinations

PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY, September 4. Students completing teacher preparation programs and advanced degree candidates in specific fields may take the National Teacher Examinations on any of three different test dates in 1978. Educational Testing Service, the nonprofit educational organization that administers this testing program, said today that the tests will be given November 11, 1978, February 17, 1979, and July 21, 1979, at test centers throughout the United States.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are considered by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and used by several states for the credentialing of teachers or licensing or advanced certification. Students are required to take the National Teacher Examinations for admission to the certification program. The BULLETIN OF INFORMATION contains a list of test centers and general information about the examinations, as well as an application form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel, and from National Teacher Examination Service, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08541.

Campus Ministries

Wesley/Newman/Westminster is the traditional designation for the Methodist, Church of the Brethren, and Presbyterian campus ministries at Winthrop. Students are invited to attend the program every Tuesday night at 6:00 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation located at the corner of Stewart and Park Avenues.

In addition to the weekly programs, W/N/W offers a variety of seminars, retreats, special programs, and worship services during the year. Direc tors for W/N/W are Rev. Risher Laughton, chair, and Rev. Pat Blansly, and Rev. Randy McPandsen.

On Tuesday, September 12, Rev. Jim Sessions, a former campus minister at Harvard University, will lead a discussion on the church's response to current labor management issues in the South. A film will be shown and Rev. Sessions will discuss the labor movement and worker's rights.

A Fall Retreat is scheduled on Thursday, September 29, Oct. 1, at Bethel Woods located outside of Rock Hill. In addition to canoeing, volleyball, and other recreational activities, a fifteen-hour exercise called the Human Potential Seminar will be held. It will aid students in examining what they can do to enhance self-confidence, become more self-motivating and self-determining, set short- and long-term goals, and develop greater empathy for others. Students interested in attending are invited to complete the application call 328-5699, 327-5640 or 327-7010.

Goodbye Car Girl, Disco Draw Crowd

The first movie of the fall semester was an overwhelming success, according to Paul Varga, president of Dinahs Student Center. "Attendance at "The Goodbye Girl" was the largest turnout for a movie we've ever had," Varga said. A crowd of 800 students filled Tillman auditorium to capacity Monday night, August 29, leaving standing room only for late-comers.

Another Dinahs sponsored activity was Disco Dance at McFayden cafeteria on August 30, also rated high in attendance. Eight hundred students danced and mingled to the music of Dinahs's Disco, which featured a spectacular light show.

Varga was pleased with the early success of student activities and anticipates increased student interest in scheduled events in the coming year.

The group will leave at 4:30 p.m. on Friday and return immediately after the Saturday. Cost is $5.00 for the workbench and $9.00 for meals and registration. For more information call 328-5699, 327-5640 or 327-7010.
The Big Enrollment Blues

BY SIDNEY A. BREZIE

Do you have to drive around for 25 minutes before you find a parking space? Do you have to be housed in a semi-private room even when you’re willing to pay for a private room? Do you have to wait until suppertime to have lunch because there are too many people in the lunch line at the cafeteria around 12:30?" Well, Winthrop has all three. Suffering from is the Big Enrollment Blues.

Winthrop has reached a new, all-time record for enrollment this year with a whopping 4,474 students registered for this fall semester, which surpasses the previous record of 4,441 in 1977-78. The freshman class of 1,145 is the largest since 1970 when 1,399 freshmen enrolled at Winthrop. In addition, there are 659 seniors, 843 juniors, 826 sophomores, 1,010 graduate students, and 81 special students. astounding, isn’t it?

Problems resulting in such an increase have been overcrowding in the cafeteria and limited parking. Dean Cummings, the Dean of Students, said, "There are 600 more eating in the cafeteria that last year. I think the problem will work itself out once the students get used to staggering their eating times.”

Dean Cummings also said that the increased number of resident students have taken available parking space, but there is plenty of room in the parking areas around Dining. We know, though, that it’s tough on a student to park at the student center and have to walk."

For more information Jane Up-Tipton, secretary.

Forever Generation

After a song which I THINK was entitled "San Andreas Fault," there was a nice little duet consisting of only three guitar (played by you-know-who) that soothed my tired brain and made me want to kick off my shoes and relax. When they finished, I was ready to beat my hands raw with thunderous applause until I discovered that they were merely tuning their instruments for the next number.

"A Cold, Black-Hearted Woman" got too twangy to enjoy, and I was almost encouraged to start stomping my feet and begin yelling "Yee-haw-haw!" after every little guitar lick.

After a "lovely romantic tune," called "Sweetbog," this writer had had enough.

I’ll give Benard, Katz & Youngblood an "A" for effort, a "B" for performance, and a "D" for preparation. Sorry, guys–two and a half stars at the most.

Plans: "To get married someday and have a family. Some- day. No hurry."

If you haven’t already signed up, it’s too late to get college credit for horseback riding this semester! But—

If you are interested in developing your riding skills, either as a beginner or more advanced student, you should do one or both of the following—take regular, non-credit, lessons at Merriam Stables and be sure to remember to sign up for P.E. 201, 202 or 203 per month in the non-credit classes. In both you will be learning everything from basic horse care to establishing foundations in dressage, Combined Training, Hunting and Hunt-Seat Equitation.
