Johnsonian Policies For New School Year

"The Johnsonian" is the student newspaper at Winthrop College and that is what we intend to make it. With completely new staff taking over this year we have reorganized, revamped, and readied our policies and procedures. This year, even more than ever, through the efforts of everyone at Winthrop we will reach every Winthrop student.

We hope to be an informative vehicle carrying student ideas and news of their activities. We want "The Johnsonian" to be a reliable source for the Winthrop student as well as a reliable representation of the student. We want it to be a necessary part of campus life. We want the "TJ" to be all that it can be, but most of all we want "The Johnsonian" to be about our students, by our students, and for our students.

The main goals we wish to attain this year but our number one is to be at all times objective, accurate, and up-to-date whatever we print. We want to pride ourselves in unbiased reporting of any article and anything of news value. It is our intention to cover all viewpoints on campus and not just the viewpoints of our editors or anyone else. We are stating now in print that throughout the year the editor will write articles of his own or on any other matter written by our editors and set 1 1/2 columns width and found on the left three columns of page 2 will be reflective of "The Johnsonian" as a whole. Any columns found on page 2 or elsewhere in the paper will represent the views of the Winthrop author only and not of the newspaper. These columns and articles will be by-lined. By making this policy our way we can now express our opinions and viewpoints even though we, the editors, may not agree. At the same time, however, we reserve the right to limit the length of columns if necessary, but this will be done fairly and without prejudice toward any writers.

We hope that this will encourage student opportunities. We will have several regular columns which articles will appear each week. Also a regular feature will be an editorial commentary written by the editor and managing editor and entitled "Across Our Desks." At different times we will also have guest columnists, if at any time a student does not agree with anything he may read in the "TJ," we want him to write us. We welcome all. We wish at all times to encourage letters to the editor. It is our policy, however, that letters will be printed only if they are signed. We want students to give their opinions on issues, for this is their newspaper.

Another feature will be the monthly column "Operation Quick and Correct" which will try to give students who may want to ask questions but not sign them an opportunity to express themselves. A fuller explanation of the column is found elsewhere on this page.

We reserve the right to comment on any issue, on topics of interest, or articles affecting campus life, but all commentary-editorial articles will be written by our editors and set 1 1/2 columns width and found on the left three columns of page 2 will be reflective of "The Johnsonian" as a whole.

Welcome To Men Students

Recently a suit was brought before the South Carolina State Legislature in order to break a barrier. Winthrop College has been allowed degree to be given to male students. Tuesday, Aug. 18, Walter L. Smith, the Winthrop president, was awarded his Master of Arts in Literature at the actual graduation of 145 graduating female students. As a result the Winthrop College takes another step into a more realistic world. We hope that the many changes which will develop while Winthrop College is in the process of proving in the four-year test period will be a necessary part of the future of the college.

We encourage the men of Winthrop College to involve themselves in the many student activities available. Winthrop women have always had the advantage of the coeducation at Winthrop your influence can and will be felt. At Winthrop there are 41 clubs (which cover almost every interest area), student government, and even the Winthrop college publications on our campus.

The staff of "The Johnsonian" welcomes you back to the courageous pioneers who have ventured onto the Winthrop Campus!!
