Happy Ending!

A smart Sealor once told us this wise little trick. When you have a hard class or study period ahead, decide that just as soon as you're through you'll indulge your palate with a cola, or a malted milk, or a piece of pie with a mound of ice cream heaped upon it — or whatever your pet weakness is. Then dig into your work, and see how well and how easy it goes! Then the moment you are through, come over to our fountain and get your reward! Try it and see!

Highly Educated? But They Don't Know Mother Goose!

Place: A room at Winthrop. Time: Study hour. Characters: Two studious juniors, with particularly inquiring minds.

Stella: "One flew east and one flew west — one flew over the cuckoo's nest." — Sadie, did you ever say that when you were growing up?"

Elsie: (Studying) Um. Mary: Well, what's the first part of it — one flew east and one flew west, what is it?"

Stella: I used to know that. Let's see — it "flew-away" No, that doesn't sound exactly right. I don't know! Go ask Elsie. After all, you know, I've passed the nursery rhyme stage. (Aside) Fly-away, fly-away — no, that's not it.

Mary enters (tired's room). Mary: Say, Elsie, do you happen to remember the beginning of "one flew east and one flew west, etc.?"

Elsie: Yes, she do! It's — er, well, I would have bet a fortune I know that! Very disconcerting — and at my age, too! Wait, just a minute. I'll find out if I don't get anything else done tonight.

(She leans out the window and calls to a friend in the adjacent dormitory. As an answer, she gets this.) Friend: (Yelling from dormitory to dormitory) Is this what you mean, Elsie? My smart roommate just told me: "John Thimbletoes is a good fisherman."

He catches them and puts them in his pen. One flew east and one flew west, Tennessee, and Lavin Elerbe, junior from Bennettsville.

And one flew over the cuckoo's nest. On you go, you old dirty dish-rag, you!"

Mary: Well, that's one way, I suppose. Not what I had in mind, though. She's warm; in fact, she's hot! Thanks a lot. I think I'll go see Ann.

Elsie: Okay, but be sure to tell me what it is, if you find anybody brilliant enough to know. (Exit Mary.)

Ann: Hello, Mary. Gee, I'm tired of all this children's lit. I'm doing. Have a seat.

Mary: Wait a minute. Let me get this straight! You're taking children's lit? You're studying that, really?

Ann: Of course, why? Mary: Sit right where you are! Don't move. Don't even bat an eyelash. Eureka! Just what I've been looking for! You're the needle in my haystack. Tell me, now, quick-like — bunny, before you can forget — what is the opening line of "one flew east," etc. (She rubs her hands together gleefully in expectation.)

Ann: Wire, briar, limberlock, stupid! Why in the world do you want to know?

(Mary, though, has created a hundred mile gale through Ann's room, mattering "ohohohohohohohohoh." She reaches the door and crashes into a line of eager girls, all waiting to hear her say, "Wire, briar, limberlock" before sinking down to the floor, exhausted by her search in the halls of higher education for the first lines of her nursery rhyme!)

Edna Holmes, sponsor from Johnston, read poetry to the group.

By EDITH GENTRY

We wish to congratulate Miss Cameron Causey of the physical education department for conducting the successful basketball institute that was held in the Peabody gymnasium Saturday. Miss Causey's work as chairman of the South Carolina Officials Rating Board has been of great service to the State in raising the standards of girls' basketball.

And may we tell Catherine Amos, Dolly Sledge, Mary Edna Kneece, and Frances Legare how happy we are that they received official ratings. The former two received local ratings and the latter two, intramural.

Every year the original casts and plays seem to be better and better. It may be our poor memory, but this year's crop beats them all to a doughnut hole. They're good, very good!

And those original modern dance compositions haven't been too bad either. The dancers have worked out every conceivable theme in rhythm. We would all probably possess greater degrees of grace and style if we would apply our modern dance fundamentals to our campus strolls and classroom seampers.

If there's possibly a vacancy left in the special bus to the Donald Budge-Elsworth Varsity tennis match in Charlotte Thursday, you had better grab it immediately, for this promise to be one of the finest tennis exhibitions ever staged. You'll be viewing top-ranking tennis played by the top-ranking players of the world. And 't would be an excellent way to top off a harried week of terrific exams.

Everybody's wanting to get job next semester, and there's only one section offered—so what do you do? Just wait your turn—the course is open first to seniors and then if any vacancies whatever are left, the juniors are allowed to scramble for them.

From the demonstrations that the freshmen gave for the basketball institute, the frosh are going to be strong contenders for the basketball championship. Elizabeth Mahon's sharp shooting is to be compared with that of Mary Edna Kneece, and you know what that means. Dot Humphreys and Dot Reider are excellent forward material, too.

Bravo for North for having won the dormitory basketball championship. The class tournament is just around the corner. A couple of weeks of good practice after exams ought to put the cagers in fine condition to battle for the victory.

They say my rhythm's punk.
And on my rhyme I think
I had in mind a little rhyme
I thought it fine and just in time.
But I haven't forgotten
They say my rhyme's rotten,
So I won't write in verse,
I'll let my readers thrive.
There's something on my mind,
Though it cannot be in rhyme—
Happiest examinations
And merriest recreations!

Lea Gives Second Term Swim Plans

Lea Takes Survey To Determine Camp Interest

A census survey is now being conducted by the physical education department and Miss Margaret Lee, instructor in physical education, to extend the list (and last year) of summer camps and camp directors to be contacted in an effort to place Winthrop girls on camp staffs.

To facilitate the gathering of information for this survey, the following brief questionnaire, covering basic information, has been formulated.

Miss Lea asks all students, regardless of their course, who have been to camp as campers or counselors to clip the questionnaire, fill it out, bring it to the physical education department office, and deposit it there in a box provided for the purpose.

Miss Lea believes if students will cooperate in this project, the number who secured positions last year will be increased.

Later in the year another survey to determine the Winthrop students interested and qualified for camp staffs will be held.

Baxter, Bartholomew Kidnapped in Stevenson's 'Kidnapped' Saturday

Robert Louis Stevenson's Kidnapped has been brought to the screen with an adaptation to the story and with an extra large helping of honor dished out to Freddie Bartholomew.

The setting of the story is Scotland in the eighteenth century—the Scotland that fought to save itself from English rule.

Warner Baxter swashbuckles his way through melodrama, incidents as a daring, courageous rebel. He is the hero for the youthful Freddie, who cannot escape the feeling of his sense of duty to his king.

Arken Whelan supplies the love interest.
