Of course, it doesn't cost a cent so it might not be worthwhile. Still we suggest for you beauty lovers a nice long walk around the campus.

Are't we cute and aren't we slay? Almost everyone of us is sporting a white organdy blouse with lace or a white tulle dress.

Before the holidays we wrote a heartily felt "get the boys out of spending Easter at Winthrop. Well, Easter has come and gone, and your columnist is just about to eat her words.

On Friday night the lovely music of the "Seven Last Words of Christ" began our Easter season.

Thanks for a lovely day and we try to receive our opinions next time.

We just received a shock. In fact, we are almost incoherent with amazement and pleasure.

A former Winthrop instructor, returning on a visit, Power happened to remark of the that she reads The Frase Johnsons faithfully.

Our business manager sighs, but we thank them for the compliment.

A college boy made a bet—and won!—gold fish—and got his picture in the paper.

Childish! Yes, but not half so childish as the commotion he caused. Papers, magazines, and the radio are full of stories, articles, and comments about gold-fish-swallowing students.

Fort Mill Pupils Visit Winthrop Observatory

Fifth grade pupils of Fort Mill public schools were guests of the astronomy department Wednesday morning.

Dr. Ruth Stokes, head of the mathematics and astronomy department, showed the visitors at the recent moon through the telescope, and sun spots on the surface of the sun.

Fourteen Girls Turn Winthrop Into Playhouse During Holidays

Breakfast in bed, no classes, twelve-night, and feeling free and "spry"; fourteen not-so-lucky girls who remained at school were enjoying practically all of the same luxuries. The infirmary was converted into a nice "homebody" with Mrs. Macdonald as house mother.

Grinning maids with breakfast trays awakened the girls every morning at 7:45.

The rest of the day they had their choice of skating, bowling, bicycling, or perhaps, just loafing in the sun. Several energetic lassies even managed to get up in time for a few sets of tennis before breakfast.

On Thursday night the girls were most of the Little Theatre at their play, "The Giant Stairs." The play was but the beginning—then on, the fourteen maybe-not-so-lucky lived in a social whirl. Between games of Chinese checkers and amid a veritable past-fest, Miss Stinson served the girls luncheon and cookies Friday night in Johnson hall.

Dumped down to the movies they tramped both Saturday and Monday nights chaperoned by Mrs. Timmerman. The girls topped these trips off with nightcaps of hot chocolate at the Varsity.

The big event came Tuesday night with the presentation of an amateur program in which everyone participated. Unknown talent was brought to light before an appreciative audience.

The usually staid sun parlor with its chairs designed for the sick became the center for gas, non-nervy-ed girls with their dates—recurrent dates for the sun parlor saw chattering couples every night.

Eight-thirty Wednesday morning the girls moved back to their dormitories, ready to greet returning friends with a satisfied smile and a "Well, we didn't have such a bad time, ourselves."

Kappa Delta Pi Issues Twenty Bids

Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary education fraternity, has recently issued membership bids to 20 students.

Those invited to join the fraternity are as follows: Harriet Culler, Helen Dickson, Bettie Todd, Sarah Rosenbaum, Miss Barnett Spratt, Mildred Havid, Elizabeth Bronson, Elizabeth Rogers, Catherine Metzgar, Blair Camak, Catherine Hughes, Mable McAlilly, Harriett Lawton, Peggy Sprunt, Margaret Nima, Christine Riley, Mildred Lawrence, and Alice Hollis.

New members are taken into the fraternity on the basis of scholarship and personality.

IT CAN BE DONE!

Unless the threat of war in Europe materializes within the next few weeks, the "Old Republic" of South Carolina during that time will be that of taxation. The report or recommendations of the Sub-Committee of the Finance Committee of the South Carolina Senate published in yesterday's press has already increased greater interest in the question of taxation in this State than heretofore prevailed this year since the Legislature has been in session.

Somebody has got to pay taxes to keep the State, counties, and schools going and there is a scramble from all directions to make "George pay them". There seems to be a growing tendency among the people of South Carolina that too much of the taxpayers money is being spent for relief and there are many who feel that appropriations for welfare should be discontinued, at least materially reduced, and that money spent for relief should be confined to emergency and indigent cases.

If this should be done, additional taxes and additional sources for revenue would not be necessary. This bank still contends that delinquent taxes could be put on a current basis and that it can be done without working a hardship on delinquent taxpayers. In which event, so much money from additional taxes would not be needed.

It is estimated that unpaid taxes in South Carolina, State, county, school district and township, (not including municipalities), amount to the gigantic sum of approximately $15,000,000. Suggestions have been made to those in authority that some plan might be worked out to relieve the situation. This institution believes that there are enough brains in the General Assembly of South Carolina to formulate a feasible plan to remedy this deplorable situation, put taxes on a current basis and lend encouragement to the owners of farms, houses and other property in this State.

WINTHROP DAY by DAY By MARGARET McMILLAN

Thoughts While Swelling Flowers... It seems to me that during Lent Italy could do without Albania. Spring is sprung upon the campus in the loveliest terms ever-wood, narciss, lilacs, crabapple, and in thousands of new green leaves...

(And if I related the tale about The Three Needles, you probably wouldn't get the point there, either.) Personal Nominations for the most talented of Winthrop's going dramatists-Anne Williamson.

Next to taking a personality analysis of yourself, or perhaps playing the role of subject in a psychological laboratory, I would recommend, for your own benefit, entertainment, or information, two articles which I stumbled across in the library last week. One is "What Men Think About Women" by Henry P. Pringle in the latest Ladies Home Journal, and the other... his more subjective.

THAT the little chapel, which was the birthplace of Winthrop college, was built and used for a stable and carriage house by General Preston.

OTHER THAN PARALLEL

A simple story simply written. Winter in April by Robert Nathan charms the reader by that simplicity. In the first person, Nathan generalizes about this and that-from conditions in Europe to conditions in his own kitchen-just always the chapter turns into comments and stories about Ellen.

What with the advent of spring it dips into poetry isn't unusual. For Ogden Nash's "Primer" makes the reader giddy as it stimulates feelings very light indeed. The book contains short poems on everything from politics to love, all handled in the inimitable Nash manner, that is to say, "easy".

'It Seems To Me - - -'

The Johnsonian invites the campus to say what it thinks. You may want to commend someone or condemn. You may want to criticize. You may want to help. Put it into the Johnsonian. The Johnsonian will be glad to print it. The Johnsonian will be glad to print it. The Johnsonian will be glad to print it.

Called to Task

Is an editorial supposed to alter situations more than anything else or is it a chance to criticize a thing that is not the opinion of many people? The first editorial in this week's Johnsonian stated, not even kindly, that the speeches made by our Y president were not only poor psychology but were also poor because 183 people were "plucked at a high tension" and who the officers would be. The seventh editorial stated, perhaps fairly, "934 out of 1612 students voted in the election Tuesday. That means that almost 70%-nearly half-of the student body didn't care enough about the college or officers to help decide who those officers would be."

Loan Bill For New Dorm Goes to House

A bill empowering trustees of Winthrop to build a loan-grant to build a dormitory was introduced into the House of Representatives April 4 by the House Education committee, according to A. M. Graham, business manager.

Miss Lillian Wellner, a former favorite of the physical Ed. staff and hockey coach, visited on the campus for a few short days this week.

On Tuesday, the ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION gave a coffee for the two visitors from 2:30 to 3:30 in the North dormitory parlors. Later in the afternoon, Miss Wellner and Miss Hutton went to a picnic given by Miss Stella Bradford and Miss Alice T. Long.

The STRAWBERRY LEAF sponsored a Jefferson Day banquet Tuesday evening in Johnson Hall. The arrangement of white candles spelled out the symbol of Strawberry Leaf, and mason, spring flowers were grouped on the banquet table.

Now's the time for picnics and outdoor things, and among the first to leave was the GOLF SCOUT TROOP which went to Fawcett's pasture Saturday afternoon.
