Business dept. hits jackpot

Seven years ago, admitted Jerry Padgett, Winthrop gambled on its School of Administration.

Today's jackpot includes more than three times as many students in business as there were in 1972, two graduate degree programs designed for people with full-time jobs, a seasoned, highly respected faculty and the recent accreditation as a professional school, a distinction held by only five other institutions in both Carolinas.

Padgett, the dean of the School of Business Administration since 1972, won't accept credit for his school's solid development.

"I'd love to," he grinned, "but too many people know the truth."

Padgett has accomplished all the goals he set when he came -- including increasing student credit hour production, male enrollment and adult educational offerings, and, most recently, accreditation.

The American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business granted accreditation to the Winthrop operation in May, after a visiting team studied the quality of faculty in terms of public service, publication, public service, and resource utilization (faculty members teaching only in their specialized fields).

"The AACSB has the reputation as one of the toughest accreditation agencies in the world," Padgett said. "AACSB accreditation is absolutely necessary for a school as good as we are."

Increasingly, top corporations recruit not just at accredited schools, Padgett said. In addition to those dividends for students, accreditation will help Winthrop in recruiting faculty.

Padgett has not confined his recruiting foyer to academic settings -- deliberately hiring textile mill managers, accountants, bankers and top-level government employees who were interested in teaching and had the necessary academic credentials.

That philosophy, which Padgett calls his "pragmatic approach," is also seen in the School of Business Administration's outreach programs. On a regular basis, such corporations as Spring Mills send personnel to Winthrop for live-in management training sessions.

The participating corporations and the School of Business Administration jointly fund the programs. Businesses cite the Winthrop management theory expertise and the Winthrop faculty acknowledges the value of the practical feedback.

Padgett said his current problems fall into three categories: money, space and public awareness of the School of Business Administration offerings.

"Rapid growth in a time of declining or constant state appropriations is real morale problem with faculty," Padgett said, adding that private sources have made many programs possible. An example is the $60,000 classroom laboratory complex currently being carved from existing classroom space.

Funded by the Frances Ley Springs Foundation, Inc., the lab will be used by undergraduates and graduate students studying personnel procedures, labor relations and related fields.

The public awareness problem nags at Padgett because it depends heavily on word-of-mouth.

"There are still people in Charlotte, Gastonia, Rock Hill and the Chester-Lancaster area that don't know we have an MBA program (started in 1975)," Padgett said. "That set of people is getting smaller, but the Winthrop name gives the impression sometimes of a private, liberal arts college. Contact with businesses and the reputation of our graduates are turning this around, though."

In the fall 1971 semester, Winthrop had 66 business administration majors -- all undergraduates. Prior to the 1979 fall registration, 748 undergraduates and 191 graduate students were listed as seeking business administration degrees.

"If you look at the number of students in business degree programs to no more than one-quarter of Winthrop's total enrollment," Padgett said. "Seven years ago, we undertook a real ambitious program," Padgett said. "We gambled that when we added programs, the president would be able to come up with the resources, and we have."
It is up to you

A freshman class over 1000 strong has enrolled at Winthrop College this fall, swelling the annual attendance record to over 5000. Welcome to Winthrop College. May you find this an enjoyable and enriching experience.

Winthrop lacks the overall facilities of larger and wealthier schools, a situation made worse by changing Balencic into a dormitory. There is also a shortage of courses and professors, which is obvious with a glance at the college catalog or nearly any classroom. The leadership at Winthrop is not the most vigorous, nor is it in touch with students. You can forget hearing a good concert at Byrnes Auditorium (except for a couple classical acts) and quality entertainment at ATC is almost as rare. In short: If you expect to be handed challenging opportunities, or if you expect to find an array of stimulating entertainment at Winthrop, you are wasting your time.

However, a little scrounging under the surface will reveal numerous opportunities to actively participate in events. Following is a sample of some of the academic and extra-curricular activities available at Winthrop.

The S.G.A. will soon be holding Senate elections and offering still more areas for involvement. Dickson Student Union contains several committees which oversee films, concerts, tournaments at Dinkins and more.

All need student participation. This newspaper you hold in your hand could use some help. The main reason these organizations are not as effective as they could be is the lack of student participation. So get involved. If you are interested, contact people of the S.G.A., Ron Laffitte of the Student Union, or Bonnie Jordan of THE JOHNSONIAN.

There are numerous clubs at Winthrop: intramural sports, short courses, and more. One club I especially recommend is the Outing Club. It meets in the Outing Club. It meets in.

Take a peek at a Greek

Ellen McDowell

How many of you have noticed the signs posted around campus or on the bulletin boards inviting you to attend the rush parties of the different fraternities and sororities here at Winthrop? Probably quite a lot of you have. But, how many of you have seriously considered the possibilities of joining a fraternity or sorority? Not quite as many, I bet. It could be that you doubt that a fraternity or sorority has anything to offer you? If so, I invite you to think again.

How can you be sure until you check them out?

As the signs indicate, it's time for Rush to begin. Being a Greek myself, a member of the Delta Zeta sorority, I'd like to encourage you to take an objective look at the Greek organizations as a means of getting involved, making friends, and just having plain fun. But first a word of warning. Little by little, win Winthrop, the Greek program, which was officially installed in January, 1977, since then has grown to include seven fraternities and five sororities. They've comprised of people like you with varied interests and talents. The only difference is that for many of you have seriously considered the possibilities of joining a fraternity or sorority.

And to join a fraternity or sorority means being a member of a group — almost family. Naturally, the people in the chapter of your fraternity become special friends for you. Belonging to a fraternity or sorority is an excellent way of getting involved on campus. Greek organizations have been in Special continued on page 3

Bonnie Jerdan, a member of the Delta Zeta sorority, encourages students to consider joining a fraternity or sorority at Winthrop College. She notes that these organizations offer opportunities for involvement, making friends, and having fun, and encourages students to check them out for themselves. The Greek organizations at Winthrop include seven fraternities and five sororities, each with a diverse set of interests and talents. Membership in these organizations can lead to lifelong friendships and personal growth. The Student Government Association (S.G.A.) and Dickson Student Union also offer opportunities for students to get involved and make a positive impact on campus life. The Outing Club, for example, meets in the Outing Club and offers opportunities for outdoor activities such as picnicking, boating, swimming, and fishing.

"What are our co-ordinates now, Lieutenant Nitkev?"
"Squadron has just passed over border into U.S. of A., my Commander... maintaining radio silence. Our new radar jamming devices have caught the capitalists by surprise... we expected... they cannot detect our presence even now. Only eight minutes left to scheduled launch of attack missiles..."
"Da. This is good, Lieutenant. Nitkev, have you alerted the launch bay crews to implement final countdown procedure?"
"Nyet, my Commander."
"Nyet! What do you mean, nyet? You should have given them their instructions moments ago! What's the matter with you, boy?"
"I can't do it, Commander... this sneak attack, in violation of treaty... it's an immoral action sir. I can't participate in it."
"Then you would betray the Motherland and the Party, Whackoff! You maggot... stand up and I'll shoot you myself!"
"Put that pistol away, Nitkev! Immediately! I'm still the authority here."
"Yes, sir, my Commander."
"Now, Lieutenant Whackoff, what is the matter with you, my nephew? Press the button to alert launch bays. There is no shame in our action, only a great victory for our nation..."
"But, Uncle Josef! I cannot help thinking about all those unsuspecting people down there who must die for this 'victory'. All of those people who will not live to see the sun rise in the morning..."
"Forget them, my nephew. They're not people like us anyway. They're besotted with the sins of capitalism. Family life down there is decayed, and there's no respect for law or morality... It's a mad rat race where the rich industrialists exploit the downtrodden workers so that they become millionaires and enjoy the benefits of the 'American way'. Once these old parasites have become millionaires then they buy cars and boats and video cassette players to show bourgeois films like 'Patton' and 'Deep Throat'...

And nephew, you've heard about the wild beach parties and palaces where the Americans go to fulfill their unnatural carnal desires! The disco! Yes, in these discos they gather together on Saturday nights and 'shake their Bunchets' in front of each other to try and get aroused...

Now, nephew, do you think that it is a crime to destroy such decadence?

"But uncle, the lifestyle which you have just described to me is very similar to the one which exists underground in our own country. It sounds like the kind of lifestyle, launch 'you' and 'I' could have grown quite accustomed to if we could have been fortunate enough to have been born there..."

"Nephew, there is some truth to your words. As I remember, I could shake my Bunchet pretty well at the worker's harvest festival when I was younger... but, we have our responsibilities to the Motherland, the Party, the Chief of Military Operation, the Supreme Soviet, the ghosts of our forebears..."

As I remember, I could shake my Bunchet pretty well at the worker's harvest festival when I was younger... but, we have our responsibilities to the Motherland, the Party, the Chief of Military Operation, the Supreme Soviet, the ghosts of our forebears..."

"Hang all that crap, Uncle Josef! Let's grab a couple of parachutes, call off this mission, and sky-dive down to one of these decadent discos!"

"M.K.D. my nephew. You've convinced me! Lieutenant Nitkev, I want you to break radio silence..."

"What are you saying, my Commander? If I break radio silence the American A.B.M. defense systems will seek out and destroy our squadron..."

"Do as I say, Lieutenant Nitkev. Make the message in English. Tell the Americans that our Backfire bombers were only engaged in the regular Fall monitoring of the migration of the Red-Tufted Chickadee as part of a National Geographic project. Tell them that we are sorry if we startled them...

"But, my Commander, they will be more than startled. Their fighters will shoot us down in violation of the latest S.A.T.T. treaty..."

"Have you about gotten your parachute ready, my nephew?"

"Yes, uncle. I am ready. Let's go to the launch bays!"

"Look out Johanavitch! Volta! Here we come!"

Soccer. I'm a soccer player, and we have a whole lot of soccer players from New Jersey, Florida, Africa, and South America. Coach Canada is working toward bringing the soccer season to success..."

Satellite nursing program at WC

Registered nurses are now able to complete the Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) degree at Winthrop, according to Dr. Jean Watson, director of the Satellite Nursing Program.

Watson said that an NEW Special Projects Grant has made it possible for state licensed RN's to receive their BSN degree from the Medical University of South Carolina at Winthrop since January 1979. The Special Project Grant was written in 1977 and approved for three years beginning September 1, 1978. Since the initial contact between President Vail and President Knisely of the Medical University, the Grant has been extended for one more year.

"The offering of this degree is a result of cooperative arrangements between MUSC and WC," said Watson. "Winthrop provides the physical space and supportive services, but the program is financially supported by the Medical University."

There are presently 22 students, 3 faculty and 2 staff members in the program, according to Watson. Approximately 45 students are working on their general education requirements here at Winthrop. A prospective student must be accepted by WC and meet their requirements before admission into the College of Nursing. More specific information concerning work experience and course prerequisites may be obtained by contacting the Satellite Nursing Program.

Watson said, "We would also be happy to advise any pre-nursing students on campus who are taking general education courses for other BSN programs. Information or transcript evaluation may be obtained by contacting the Satellite Nursing Program, first floor, Crawford Health Center.

SBDC is formally recognized

The South Carolina Small Business Development Center (SBDC) has received formal recognition from the U.S. Small Business Administration.

The SBDC was established by concurrent resolutions of the South Carolina House and Senate in 1978, is a consortium of four schools—Winthrop College, Clemson University, South Carolina State and the University of South Carolina.

Winthrop’s basic service center is located in the School of Business and will serve the northern part of South Carolina. It provides free consultation, continuing education and the delivery of needed information to small businesses in South Carolina. Center Director Jerry R. Smith is an assistant professor of management at Winthrop. He is former director of marketing of Fast Fare, Inc. of Henderson, N.C., and past president of TMP Systems, Inc. of Monroe, N.C.

To be eligible for the services of the center, small businesses must have annual retail sales of less than $2 million, annual wholesale receipts of less than $5 million, sales in office businesses of less than $2 million or be a manufacturing concern with less than 250 employees.

South Carolina’s operations is one of 11 pilot programs in 10 states (two committees in South Carolina) and plans to include similar operations in all 50 states.

Mann settles in as Dean of Students

Jeff Mann settled into his office in Dinkins this past May and began his duties as Winthrop’s new Dean of Students.

Mann came to Winthrop from North Carolina where he worked as Dean of Student Development after he finished his graduate studies. His undergraduate work was done at East Carolina. He is presently working on his Doctorate in Higher Education.

As a Dean of Students at Winthrop, Mann co-ordinates non-academic, extra-curricular activities. Thus, he deals with students in such areas as new student orientation, the student union, the SGA, fraternities, sororities, housing and other campus organizations. He has the capacity to serve as advisor to all student organizations as well as counsel students individually, on a personal, or academic level.

Mann helped to create review boards for the cafeteria and the resident halls. These review boards are independent from the judicial board and only deal with admitted or obvious offenses.

Students serve with the administration on these two boards. Mann is also in the process of planning a Student Leadership Retreat for early October.

Mann described Winthrop as a “unique” college in many aspects. He says that Winthrop College is very personalized considering the near 5,000 enrolled students. “Students are part of the process,” Mann said. “They are not simply numbers or people just to fill desks.”

He says that Rock Hill provides Winthrop with a relaxed, country setting while having the cosmopolitan city of Charlotte close at hand. Though Winthrop is small, Mann is also impressed that it excels academically and is able to compete with the larger universities.

Mann said that he cannot remember his office door being closed since he has been at Winthrop and he says that it will remain open to any student dealing with any personal, academic or social problem or just for a talk.
ICP Scholarship offered

(1980-81 school year) is designed to be an investment in the future of the information processing industry. To qualify for the ICP Scholarship, applicants must be enrolled in a computer science or computer technology program at a community college or a university. The scholarship will consist of one-year tuition plus education expenses up to a maximum of $6,000.00 at the U.S. college or university of the winner's choice.

The ICP Scholarship Committee, made up of highly qualified men and women in the information processing industry, will base their selection on: the student's accumulative grade point average; need for financial aid; participation in data processing-related activities; school activities and leadership roles; DP-related achievements and awards. The final test for the ICP Scholarship finalists will be an essay.

The first annual ICP Scholarship, awarded to Hugh F. MacIntyre, a junior at Stanford University, Stanford, CA, was announced earlier this year at the Eighth Annual ICP Million Dollar Awards Ceremony held at the Royal Sonesta Hotel in New Orleans, Louisiana. The winner of the second annual ICP Scholarship will be announced at next year's Million Dollar Awards Ceremony in New Orleans.

Applications will be available through the data processing and financial aid departments of all United States colleges and universities.

Scholarship honors Dorothy Rauch

ROCK HILL — The Winthrop College Alumni Association has established a $5,000 scholarship honoring Dorothy Lundy Rauch, director of alumni affairs.

The Alumni Association Board of Directors has not yet set criteria for selection of the scholarship recipient. The first presentation will be made next spring. This is the first scholarship established by the board.

Rauch was named director of alumni affairs in 1968. A native of Rock Hill, she will retire in January 1980.

Student loan counseling session

It is compulsory that every student receiving Direct Student Loan for the 1979-1980 academic year attend a pre-loan counseling session, according to Motie A. Bethea of the Financial Aid Office.

Bethea said that the dates for the sessions are September 19 and 20 in the Dinkins Auditorium from 3:00 to 4:00 and 4:00 to 5:00.

Yearbooks are here

Reserved yearbooks may be picked up at the Publications building behind Dinkins from 9:00-12:00 and 3:00-5:00 on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, according to Amy Ussery of the TATLER staff.

Ussery said, "The last day to pick up books will be September 11. After this, late books will be sold on a first come, first served basis."

Two WC professors collaborate on books

ROCK HILL — Two Winthrop College professors have collaborated on a book that offers help for special education teachers working with handicapped children.

Mary Lynne Calhoun, coordinator of training at Winthrop's Human Development Center, along with Margaret Hawisher, assistant professor of special education and director of the competency testing project at Winthrop, have written "Teaching and Learning Strategies for Physically Handicapped Students, which was published by University Park Press of Hattiesburg, Miss., in June. The book is designed to help school personnel develop thoughtful, well-researched, caring guidelines for establishing and improving programs for physically handicapped children. The text deals with the practical issues of setting up a classroom program and includes strategies for assessment techniques and practice in applying task analysis and diagnostic skills and selecting appropriate materials and curricula. The book also emphasizes the teacher's role as mentor and developmental teacher and diagnostician.

"The Resource Room: An Educational Asset for Children with Special Needs," which was published by Charles E. Merrill Publishing Company of Columbus, Ohio, in April 1978 is currently being used as texts in 16 colleges and universities across the United States.

Did You Know

Did you know that a lifetime collection of Mickey Mouse memorabilia went for $1,750? The auction had been advertised and thousands of flyers sent out to dealers and prospective buyers, but only a disappointing few showed up.

Once an auction is advertised it cannot be stopped. So an Ohio housewife went as she watched her 800-piece Mickey Mouse collection disappear into the hands of strangers, under the lift of the auctioneer's monotone.

Her collection was described as worth $30,000. However, when the bidding was finished, Mrs. Jean Gibson groaned and issued a $4,200. The housewife went as she watched her 800-piece Mickey Mouse collection disappear into the hands of strangers, under the lift of the auctioneer's monotone.

Lewandowski designs mosaic

Edmund D. Lewandowski, Professor of Art and Chairman of the Art Department, is currently directing the final stages of a 34-foot high mosaic mural for St. Luke’s Hospital in his hometown of Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

The mosaic, which is expected to be set up by mid-October, is now in a New York studio where Lewandowski worked the week of August 20.

The mosaic portrays a 37-foot St. Luke figure. Lewandowski said, “In spirit I conceived the Mosaic to that style which characterizes the Byzantine era which goes back to the fourth century A.D., the birth of mosaic decoration. What I had in mind was to bring the character and quality of that time into the framework of a twentieth century setting.”

Lewandowski, a Winthrop Distinguished Professor for 1979, said that his fascination with glass is mainly due to the glowing light quality of the material. He also said that the glass is fire resistant, and it would take a powerful explosion to destroy one of the works.

TJ: Last year the soccer team was 15-11, and this season they are looking to improve that record, and there's even talk of a possible district championship. Coach Casada, in what specific areas has your team improved?

CASADA: Well, I think the key area of improvement, certainly the area where we put our focus recruitment-wise, was in the back positions, and we have got more depth at back; right now we've got some injury problems, but they're basically minor, and we can already see after just two weeks of practice distinct improvement here. This is where we had our greatest problems with the depth... I think we are going to have the help at the fullback, sweeper, and stopper positions we needed. One thing this will do immediately is move Frankie Griffin back up to his natural position. He did a fantastic job at sweeper, in that role, and I'm counting on him for a lot of help right now. But he's not by any means the only new face; we've got a couple of them junior college transfers. Every one of them can play soccer.

TJ: In particular, who of the newcomers are good players?

CASADA: They were elected by their teammates. I chose captains with three forwards, and three wing-men, or midfielders who play our natural line positions. Those three freshmen have got good concepts. Alex Almaguer, a transfer from Dade Junior College in Miami, has looked good. He played with us three years ago as a high schooler. (Those three players are Carlos and Luis Gonzales, and Bob Bowen.) He promises to help us a great deal on defense. We generally are not so good with the depth... I think we are going to have the help at the defense line positions we need. One thing we've got some injury problems, but they're basically minor, and I think we can go with eighteen men and not lose anything at all. Last year we could not do that.

TJ: Who did you lose through graduation; or who is not on this team that was on the team last year?

CASADA: We lost no one through graduation that was of any particular importance. We have virtually everyone returning with the exception of two or three players who had really big problems of one kind or another. Allan Rikard is not back from a forward position. Jeff Armistead, a back, is not back. Coco Suarez, who saw a lot of playing time at forward, is not back. Those are probably the three primary people, but certainly in each case we have found replacements who will do more than an adequate job of filling those gaps.

TJ: How do you schedule your team? How many games are there?

CASADA: The reasoning basically is two or three things. Leadership ability is one of the most important things I think, and rightly so, have the respect of their teammates. It's just that we expect both of them to be starters and certainly expect Frankie Griffin to be one of our co-captains. Was your reasoning behind that?

CASADA: The reasoning basically is two or three things. Leadership ability is one of the most important; the younger kids in the program. Carlos Gonzalez and I think we can go with sixteen men and not lose anything at all. Last year we could not do that.

TJ: We understand your's changing your offensive setup this year. Why the change?

CASADA: We were elected by their teammates. I chose captains this year. Certainly that is no reflection on Frankie or West. Actually, I think that both of them in many ways are better than the previous players, and we've got a couple of them as high schoolers. (Those three players are Carlos and Luis Gonzales, and Bob Bowen.) He promises to help us a great deal on defense. We generally are not so good with the depth... One thing we've got some injury problems, but they're basically minor, and I think we can go with eighteen men and not lose anything at all. Last year we could not do that.

TJ: What position will you be playing?

C. GONZALEZ: Striker.

TJ: In laymen's terms, what does that job involve?

C. GONZALEZ: We're playing a three-man front, and I'll be on the inside. I'll probably be getting the balls coming in from the wings or assisting the wings with the fast breaks.

TJ: Who's going to be with you up there on the front line?

C. GONZALEZ: Right now, it'll be Frankie Griffin on the right inside and Tim Peay on the left inside.

TJ: You like working with them?

C. GONZALEZ: We get along pretty good.

TJ: The other half of the "Cuban Connection" is Luis Gonzalez. How much older are you than your brother?

L. GONZALEZ: Yeah, that's the main reason. Also, I wanted to come back north, anything above their hometown. Fla. is considered north by the J*.

TJ: What is your soccer playing experience...

L. GONZALEZ: I've been playing since eleven years old, I guess. On and off.

TJ: What about collegiately?

L. GONZALEZ: I've never played.

GONZALEZ': We've played some with my brother in summer league, but as far as college, no, I haven't played any.

TJ: What position will you be playing this year?

L. GONZALEZ: Sweeper.

TJ: What does being selected co-captain mean to you.

L. GONZALEZ: I don't know. I think more of a chance to try and help other players. Even though I've only been here a semester, I've gotten to know most of the guys and their style.

TJ: What is your soccer playing experience?

L. GONZALEZ: I've been playing since eleven years old, I guess.

On and off.

TJ: What about collegiately?

L. GONZALEZ: I've never played.

TJ: You've never played college soccer?

L. GONZALEZ: No, I quit after high school in 1975. I've played some with my brother in summer league, but as far as college, no, I haven't played any.

TJ: What position will you be playing this year?

L. GONZALEZ: Sweeper.

TJ: What does the sweeper do?

L. GONZALEZ: If anybody gets past the halfbacks, it's my job to make sure they don't get to the goal. I'm supposed to clean up the plays that no one else gets a hold of.

TJ: What does being selected co-captain mean to you?

L. GONZALEZ: I don't know. I think more responsibility. A Chance to try and help other players. Even though I've only been here a semester, I've gotten to know most of the guys and their style.

TJ: What are the rules of being a co-captain? What can you do in the field?

L. GONZALEZ: Peter and I are the only two people on the team that can approach the ref while we're playing. The coach, of course, can approach him at halftime. If there's a dirty player or something, we're the ones that have to talk to the officials. Basically, we keep control of the 11 players on the field at the time we're on there.

TJ: Peter Felt is the team's other co-captain. What position do you play?

FEAY: Halfback.

TJ: What do you hope to do as co-captain to contribute toward a successful effort?

FEAY: Try to set an example with hustle and get all these guys to have a good attitude toward team play. Also, to make sure a lot of dissension doesn't happen between players.

TJ: How do you feel about being a co-captain?

FEAY: Well, I think the guys respect my hustle and... . well, I don't know; it just gives me a good feeling."

TJ: Goalie Bob Bowen set a Winthrop record last year with 214 saves. Do you hope to improve on that?

BOWEN: Definitely. I think that our goalkeeping has improved enormously. We've got a good goalkeeper playing in this year, Bob Mannella. He's going to make it tough for me for sure.

TJ: What specific areas of your game did you work on this year?

BOWEN: I mostly tried to work on my diving on low balls on the goal line and a lot of the high shots. I also worked out a little with Shep Messing, the keeper for the Rochester Lancers.

BOWEN: Between two or three.

TJ: What do you hope to get that down to this season?

BOWEN: I'm aiming for at least a one goal a game average, if not.
New rule for flag football

New changes will be seen in flag football this year, according to Mr. Evans Brown, director of intramural sports.

The teams will be limited to eight men on the field at one time instead of the usual nine. This change was implemented due to the small size of the field (located behind Sims). Each team will also have a roster limit of sixteen instead of only fifteen which was seen in the past. This will enable a team to be strictly offensive or defensive. It will be unnecessary for one student to play both an offensive and defensive position.

Welcome back tennis tournament

Mr. Evans Brown, Director of Intramural sports, has announced the return of the "Welcome Back Tennis Tournament."

The tournament started Monday, Sept. 3 and will continue through Thursday, September 13. All matches will be played on the lower courts between the hours of 7:30-9:30. Results of this tournament will be published in next week's JOHNSONIAN.

News Briefs

The Political Science Club will hold its first meeting Monday, September 10, at 5:00 in the Shack, according to Ralph Johnson, President.

Among the things to be discussed, said Johnson, are the annual political science trip and other projects.

"I am looking forward to this year in the Political Science Club," said Johnson. "We've already heard a successful used-book sale which is to be followed by a good-yearbook sale. We would also like to see more speakers who are involved in government come to the Winthrop campus."

Johnson said that the Political Science Club is open to anyone regardless of their major.

Association of Ebonites

The Association of Ebonites is now open to all students for membership for the upcoming year according to Leroy Thom, President.

Thom said he expects this year's membership to be the largest ever with the amount of students enrolled in Winthrop.

The gospel choir of the Ebonites is also accepting new members and different events are now being planned along with the Annual Black Ball, Thom said. He said that the reason for all of these different events is to increase the cultural awareness of ethnic groups here on campus.

Thom said that anyone interested can contact him at ext. 4743.

History Fraternity seeking members

Phi Alpha Theta, the national history honorary fraternity, is seeking interested students for membership, said Dr. Arnold Shanks, faculty advisor.

"The fraternity is not limited to history majors," Shanksman said. "To be eligible, one must have GPR of 3.01 or better, have junior or senior classification, and completed 12 semester hours of history courses. There are different requirements for graduate students."

Shanksman said that interested students should see him in Room 200 Kinard or call 323-2179.

Sorority rush week

Alpha Delta Pi, Delta Zeta, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Zeta Tau Alpha, Alpha Phi Alpha have been working to hold Winthrop's first cooperatively planned "rush week" which is being held this week, according to Pam Grey and Renee O'Bryan, two active rushees as they signed up to attend the parties being held this week.

Women interested in rushing were required to have a GPR of 2.0 or above and, though they are being allowed to rush, no first semester freshmen will be able to pledge any sorority.

The sorority's presidents this school year are: Marsha Hall of Alpha Delta Pi, Linda Teal of Delta Zeta, Beverly Boney of Sigma Sigma Sigma, and Margaret Murphy of Zeta Tau Alpha.

By calling ahead, you can be sure the restaurant is open . . . the store has what you want . . . or the friend you want to visit is home—before you waste time, gas and money on an unnecessary trip. On the average, you waste about a dollar’s worth of gas on every unnecessary trip—and just two wasted trips a week can cost you more than $100 worth of gas a year.

Saving energy is easier than you think, and with the rising energy costs we’re facing today, it’s never been more important. So the next time you pick up your car keys and head for the door, ask yourself whether a phone call could save you the trip—and the wasted gas.

U.S. Department of Energy
We would like to welcome to our teaching staff this semester, Mary Evelyn Collins. Ms. Collins will be teaching Public Speaking and Voice & Diction in the Communications Department.

Ms. Collins is a graduate of Texas Christian University of Ft. Worth, where she earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Theater Arts. She also holds a Master of Arts degree in Drama from San Jose State University in California. Currently, Ms. Collins is enrolled in a doctoral program at Florida State University, specializing in communications in the Humanities Program. She plans on finishing her degree this year.

Before coming to Winthrop, Ms. Collins taught in three other states. First at William Carey College in Hattiesburg, Miss., where she taught speech communication, theater, and was Technical Director of Theater as well as Director of Children's Theater.

Ms. Collins then went to the University of Mobile, where she again taught speech communications, and was the director of forensics (debate).

Moving on to Robert Morris College, Pittsburgh, Pa., Ms. Collins taught small group dynamics and leadership, and courses in public speaking.

Other impressive credits include Ms. Collins' membership in Who's Who Among Educators in America (1974), and being president of Humanities Union of Graduate Students at FSU. Also, her experience as associate to the Baptist Campus Minister at FSU for two years, and her membership in three honoraries: Alpha Pi Omega (thanks: fraternity), Pi Kappa Delta (debate fraternity), and Pi Tau Chi (religion fraternity).

Now that you've read about her many of her credits, here is what Mary Evelyn Collins has to say about herself.

Upon first meeting Ms. Collins, one notices her pleasant nature and receptiveness to students. But she admits to having one pet peeve about students in general, and that is their sometimes phony excuses to be absent from class. She said, "It's very easy to tell a legitimate excuse from a made-up excuse." She also said that she prefers to think of college students as adults, and adults shouldn't need to escape the responsibilities of classwork, or make up an excuse to do so.

When asked what career she would have liked to pursue had she not chosen teaching, Ms. Collins replied that at the age of 17 she had wanted to be a dietitian. But that was out of the question because, as she puts it, "I didn't care for chemistry at all."

Her second ambition was (and still is) to be a journalist. In fact, Ms. Collins writes news releases for organizations with which she is involved, and also does program writing. Along the same line, she has written two research articles for publication, both dealing with rhetoric and theory. These articles should appear at the end of summer, one in the Florida Speech Communication Journal, the other in the Florida Speech Journal of the Dept. of Speech & Theater-University of Pittsburgh.

Concerning her aspirations for the future, Ms. Collins said that she has an ambition to become an assistant professor, and would like to teach a course in rhetorical criticism and critical strategies. Ms. Collins said that she looks forward to seeing the formation of a debate team at Winthrop. And finally, she would like to get articles published from her dissertation and as well as some "short stories that I have on the back burner now," she said.

Ms. Collins enjoys such pastimes as sewing and refurnishing furniture. She also said, "I've been known to play the piano and sing, but not in public!"

She is emphatic about her love for cats. (Nothing unusual about that, you see? Then listen to this!) Recently, a two year old calico cat named Max Cornelius arrived from Pittsburgh to spend 1½ months with Ms. Collins, who adds with a note of amusement, "He took his summer vacation with me. He loves it!" Actually, Max belongs to a friend of Ms. Collins, and the friend is also away on vacation.

As a final note, Ms. Collins was willing to comment on the general disposition of Winthrop students and faculty. She said that everyone at Winthrop "seems to be happy doing their work." In her opinion, "This is a very positive beginning for a school year."
Do you need help?

BY KELLY GORDON

Nothing more could possibly go wrong. Your schedule didn’t work out the way you wanted it to, and you’re not even sure you want to work in the field you are studying for. Your friends are asking you to go drink a beer with them, but homework is already piling up. You got a parking ticket and still haven’t found a legal parking space; your new shirt was ruined at the washing machine; and on top of all this, your romance is on the rocks. You need HELP!

Whether just one or all of these is your problem, the Winthrop College Counseling Center is ready to help you. "Many students have not yet taken advantage of the center," says Director William Wells. "Either a lot of the students are not aware of the services offered, or they are afraid of coming over."

Wells says that some students think that if they come to the center, they will be considered “sick.” “People today are not aware of the services which are offered, or they are afraid of the stopping point.”

Wells emphasizes that confidentiality is one of the most important considerations of the Center. As quoted from a written statement given to all users of the Counseling Center's services, "Names of persons who are clients will not be released either individually or in groups. No information will be released about any client without his or her written consent. Material shared by the client and the counselor in a counseling relationship imposes an obligation of confidentiality."

The Counseling Center is the central, accessible outlet for Winthrop students. It is newly located in upstairs Crawford (across from Peabody Gym), and students may drop by any time. Or to make an appointment with Dr. Wells or counselor Gary Kannenberg, call 323-2233.

“We want students to feel comfortable walking in any time,” says Wells. “It’s free, and we’re here to serve you.”

No work and all play isn’t worth the tuition you pay

BY MARIE A. GOODSON

ATTENTION! The following announcement is a public service message brought to you from the Counseling Center and THE JOHNSONIAN:

After cramming through those summer days, it is time once more to slow down and get into the right gear to study. Here are some really great suggestions to help you get started in the right direction.

The syllabi is an important means of being prepared for class. Not only does it help to prepare you for the tests, it lets you know what the semester holds in store and what requirements must be met. After identifying the requirements, it is extremely helpful to make a note of them on a calendar, with a reminder a few days preceding the due date.

Since college is not all drudgery and work, schedule some free time for yourself, do what you want to do. But, since it is not all fun and games (and parties), be sure to save time to study. It is best to establish a routine and stick to it. You must learn to be gracefully sensitive when it is so tempting to get into a semester instead of getting into a few chapters.

Even if it is not required, attend classes every day. Memory recall is better from lectures than from someone else’s notes.

Get to know your professors. Take good notes, but, get your nose out of that notebook when you can. Establish eye contact and listen effectively. If you understand, nod! If it just not sinking in, ask! They are there to help you. Try to keep a little ahead, but, if you do get behind, go and speak with the instructor—do not wait until the day before the test!

Above all, remember, you are studying to learn, so, learn to study. Here are some tips:

An important factor is to RELAX! Anxiety, tension and worry are detrimental and create problems for studying and learning. Skim over the assignment and question it (What is this all about?). When you read, read for comprehension. State the main ideas in your own words. Finally, having completed reading, test yourself on how much knowledge was actually retained.

Finally, keep up the good work and have a great semester!
ROCK HILL — The largest and most varied exhibition to date of work by Winthrop College art students opened Monday, May 7 at the main gallery in Rutledge Building.

The annual Student Honors Exhibition, featuring some 600 works judged as superior by the art faculty, will be on display through September 15 from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

The exhibit features works by students on all academic levels. Pieces include work in painting, sculpture, illustration, advertising design, crafts, ceramics, print making and figure drawing.

Special arrangements can be made for weekend group tours by contacting the Department of Art at (803) 323-2126.
DSU needs you

According to Ronnie Laffitte, Dinkins Student Union (DSU) president, DSU needs people to serve on the various planning committees.

All students are eligible to work on the committees, said Laffitte. Interested persons should go by the DSU office on the second floor of Dinkins. Laffitte also urges every student to vote for the people running for chair positions on three DSU committees. The election will be held on September 12.

Ping pong tourney

Monday, September 10 marks the start of registration for Tournament and Games' Ping Pong Tournament. T & G chairperson Edie Meyer said the tournament is a single elimination event. Winners may be eligible for the ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGE UNIONS INTERNATIONAL tournament at UNC of Charlotte held February 14 through 16. Students can sign up at the Dinkins Information Desk.

Photography short course offered

On September 11, Short Courses is offering a course in Basic Photography. According to Lorraine Campbell, Short Courses chairperson, the class meets in 221 Dinkins from 8:00 to 9:00. Andy Hawkins of Photography is studio in Rock Hill is the instructor. There is no charge and no limit to the number of people in the class. Students can sign up for September 11 or 18 at the Dinkins Information desk.

Golf

Sign-up for the Captain's Choice Golf Tournament is now in progress. The tournament will be held on September 15 beginning at 9:30 a.m. on the campus course. Persons wanting to compete can sign up at the Dinkins Information Desk.

Carl Rosen

...coming to ATS

On September 13 and 14, ATS presents Karl Rosen. According to Ronnie Laffitte, Rosen plays disco and Top 40 music, including a lot of Billy Joel's music. A member of the band "Wizard," Rosen himself is a wizard on the keyboards. Admission to ATS is a WCID and a yearning for a fun filled evening with Karl Rosen.

I love what we do with it.

Wait a minute, you hate pizza!

I do, but I love what we get with it.

What's that?

I don't know.

I do... I do.

What tastes better with pizza than maybe anything else in the entire, I said, entire world?

All right.

How stupid of me...

Yay! Pour it on!!!

I love my bur!
