Third Group Visiting Tutors On Campus

A third group of home economic teachers are coming to the campus July 17 for a summer conference under the direction of Miss Frances Williams, itinerant teacher trainer.

Those coming for the conference which will last two weeks are: Frances Hugur, Home Path; Mildred Mauldin, Iva; Mary Neal Cloothing, Blackville; Sara Sutherland, Williston; Frances Langley, Blacksburg; Helen Carter Austin, Welcome; Ellen Atkinson, Green Tree; Geneva Knight, Loris; Olean B. Holmes, Wamphee; Rose Neel Milling, Marion; Adelaide Stuckey, Prosperity; Eleanor Wright, Seneca; Nancy McLees, Walhalla; Elizabeth Melville, Norway; Theda Mann, Pickens; Mary Lee Bruchington, Cowpens; Louis Collins, Duncan; Martha Jane Pattillo, Woodruff; Lydia Hendricks, Laramie; Elizabeth Hall, Hickory Grove; Sarah Stewart, Rock Hill; Beulah Mae Baker, Denmark.

They will study the farm problems of South Carolina and will find that these problems can be traced to low income, soil conservation, population density, education, health, and living standards of the Southern farmer.

In order to learn more of these farm problems, the group will visit and work with the low income group in York county. This information will be recorded on a rural family survey report blank and this information will be given to the supervisory teachers in whose district these families live and also to the teacher trainer in adult education on which to build the teaching program around actual problems found.

Rev. Julian Lake Addresses Assembly

The Rev. Julian Lake, pastor of the Oakland Presbyterian church, told the summer school assembly yesterday that "Religion has three essential elements: justice, mercy, and humility."

In another feature of the weekly assembly, Sam Sturgis sang two solo accompanied by Dr. Walter Roberts, and the summer school course directed by Dr. Roberts, sang three numbers. Frances Ward at the piano.

Dean Fraser asked that the audience express its sympathy at the death of Mrs. Richard T. Fewell, former Winthrop teacher in a brief period of silence.

Covington Edits This Issue

Cappy Covington, member of the class in "Making a Newspaper," was selected by the class to edit this issue of The Johnsonian. Editor Cappy named Bill Colomos, news editor, and Alice Hollis, feature editor, as her associates.

Josephine White Named Summer School Beauty Queen In Amphitheater Setting; 26 Compete

From a group of 26 selected summer school beauties Josephine White of Charlotte, N. C., was selected Queen of the Campus last night in a beauty contest-talent parade program in the amphitheater.

As Mary McConnell played the piano in waltz and fox trot tempo, the contestants, garbed in evening dress, walked gracefully across the glassy stage, one by one. The seven judges called for ten of the number to come to the stage a second time, and from this number they picked Elizabeth Murray, Josephine White, Ned Hammerton, and Angeline Towill for the third parade. Miss White and Miss Towill were the first and second choices of the judges in the final elimination.

Angeline Towill, maid of honor by virtue of placing second, placed a crown of roses on Josephine's head, and the "Queen" followed her court of 25 attendants to a position of vantage in the audience where the court could witness the "parade of talent" that followed the selection of the beauty queen.

Doris McFadden and Angie Righy gave a jitterbug dance, Mary McConnell followed with a piano solo, with Evelyn Turner, Ellen Bell, Kitty Perkins, and Mary Bowers in a patter rendition of "Down by the Old Mill Stream" coming next. Piano selections by Barbara Spain and Carlotta Dixon, and a violin number by Barbara Pearson were the offerings of a younger campus group. Elizabeth Kanitz, accompanied on the piano by Dr. Ernst Kanitz, her father, sang two Austrian songs, followed by Ella Jeffords in a Hawaiian dance. A group of Training School pupils did a series of aerobatic stunts to the immense amusement of the audience.

Picked unofficially by a group as the best exhibition of talent was Mary Jane Sanford with her clarinet, accompanied by Louise Elke on the piano. Miss Helen Bryant announced each number.

Selected by various campus groups as their representatives in the beauty parade were: Peggy McLeod, Florence Miller, Virginia Strickland, Evelyn Wilson, Anne Dore Anne Thomas, Wilhemette Stucky, Mary Gene Roberts, Grace Blinney, Virginia Gurvin, Sue Huff, Grace Carter, Lois Winkard, Gwendolyn Matherson, Jencelle Brown, Lucile Huggins, Evelyn Tarnor, Elizabeth Gordon, Elizabeth Marill, Erline Langford, Andrene Towill, Margaret McAlhaney, Ned Hammerton, Emily Hale, Harriet Frasier, Evelyn Smith, Josephine White.

Students Can Vegetables

As a project in practical home economics, students in Miss Cragwall's department are canning vegetable salads for campus housewives, who furnish all materials.

"We are glad to have the opportunity," says Miss Cragwall, "since it costs the collector nothing, gives the student practical experience and is of some service to the housewife whose gals are canned."

MacFarland at Vespers

Vespers will be held Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the amphitheater, weather permitting. Dr. R. A. MacFarland, pastor of the First Baptist church of Rock Hill, will be the speaker.

La Trianita Monday

The Spanish dancer, La Trianita comes to the campus Monday night in the 6th Artists' course number of the summer.

Advance notices indicate that the number will be one of the most colorful and entertaining of the summer series.

Muriel Dickson, Scottish Soprano, To Sing Tonight

Muriel Dickson, Scottish soprano, will sing this evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium in the 5th number of the summer Artists' course series.

Miss Dickson always includes one or more of the well-loved Gilbert and Sullivan airs on her programs as well as a selected group of Scottish and old English songs.

The New York Herald-Tribune has said of her: "She is one of the most enchanting phenomena to be observed this season."

Students Bow To Faculty in Ball Game

Fried Chicken and Ice Cream Precedes Tilt in Bowl

By BILL COLEMAN

We came, we saw, we got licked, but the reward of strategy is obviously peace of mind.

Tuesday afternoon the student's soft ball team went down before the onslaught of the faculty ball club, in the first tilt of the summer, to the tune of 16 to 21. The game followed a picnic spread in the college bowl of fried chicken and all the trimmings, with ice cream for dessert.

If Shakespeare's Puck and Bailey's Barnum were to pool their opinions of the human race, the student team of Winthrop would be well out in front . . . 'cause who can argue against an armful of credit hours and a fist full of quality points to match? The faculty won the game on paper, but the students will profit by those fumbled fly balls, jugged grounders and walks that weren't, when the real tally comes in August.

It can't be understood by the higher-ups why so many people went to the All-Star game in New York between the two leagues and so few turned out for the extravaganzas staged at Winthrop. About the only differences, of any importance, was that baseball pool tickets could be bought on the leaguers, and the possibilities of a rain check, while the students remained petrified with the fear of catching their favorite pro's fly and thus kicking their summer school efforts in the face.

Teachers Handle Class Attendance in Summer Session

Ashle from the fact that a student may, under any circumstances, attend two-thirds of her class meetings for credit, there are no summer school administrative regulations of attendance says J. G. Kelly, registrar.

Attendance regulation is left entirely with teachers who may excuse, reprimand, or penalize in their own ways students for non-attendance. It is understood. Often, the penalty is automatically inflicted by a student's inability to do passing work in class because of too many absences.

There is, however, an unwritten regulation that students ask in advance of their absence for permission to be away, or that they explain their absence after their return, says Mr. Kelly.

Maggini to Conduct Forum On Education Problems

Dr. W. D. Maggini will direct next week's assembly in the old auditorium with a forum on "The Most Pressing Problems Before the Teaching Profession Today". Some of the outstanding students of education on the campus will participate in the discussion and was said by Dean Fraser in announcing next week's program.

Fraser Leads Discussion

Dr. Mowat G. Fraser led a panel discussion at the South Carolina State Forum convention in Columbia, Thursday, July 6. His subject was "What Can We Do to Preserve American Democracy".

It Was

Friendly, Refreshing

● The faculty-student picnic and ball game following were first rate.

To begin with, the food was excellent and in copious quantity. The faculty, standing behind huge humidores of chicken, potato salad, and other food, served graciously and well. In no time at all student guests were served and down to the business at hand. Mrs. McBryde, as usual, came through with an artistic performance.

Then, the ball game that followed was something. Faced by a very strong faculty line-up that included several six-footers, the team of students, all girls but one, refused any concessions or handicaps and played a surprisingly two-sided game. The sidelines of students made a most stimulating gallery.

Underlying the whole affair was a student-faculty camaraderie that was wholesome and reassuring. It was a friendly, refreshing occasion, and Winthrop was made better by it.

We think it in A

Commendable Service

● Miss Cragwall's home economic classes will do your canning for you, and there's no charge for it.

You furnish the materials. They prepare your food and can it. It's just as simple as that.

The girls get the practical experience, Winthrop saves the costs of materials, you get the service and the canned goods.

All in all, it is a commendable service the home economic department offers, and an indication of another way Winthrop college can serve the citizens of South Carolina.

It Was A Feature from Which

We Get Prestige

● The four weeks of Master Music instruction, which ended last Friday, was, perhaps, the 1939 Summer school's first ranking academic feature.

It isn't every summer school that can have an Edwin Hughes and an Arthur Kraft at the same time. Both were artists in their fields. Both were gentlemen of a high order.

With their artistry they delighted several audiences. In their informal campus contacts, they made friends in large numbers. Their pupils, in addition, will almost boast of having had them as teachers for a while.

It would be nice if in some way the summer school could bring other persons in other fields to the campus for a period. Their influence would hardly be confined to the department that sponsors them.

As We See It —

A column of editorials and other opinions. Campus comment is invited. Use the box marked "The Johnsonian" in the post office lobby. Personally critical articles will not be used.

To The Johnsonian:

I am wondering if it would be wise to have a bell in the library as a warning that it is almost time to close. There is evidently some attraction to cause people to be locked in. Time has a way of slipping by when a person becomes absorbed in her work, and before she realizes what has happened, she finds herself running to the locked door, yelling to friends in Rooley, or climbing out of a window.

Now, I'd be afraid to climb out of a window—the policeman might see me. I wouldn't want to take a pillow with me there, or to spend the night to sleep on the shelves and wake to find myself a bookworm. So, I think it would be fine to have a warning bell in the library.

—NAOMI TUTEN

To The Johnsonian:

I want to express a word of praise and congratulations to those in charge for the delightful assembly programs of this summer session. Most of them have been musical, but that's what we like in the midst of a week of books and study. They are truly inspirational and help us go back to our books with renewed vigor. However, those who missed Mr. Lake's address this week missed hearing a speaker who, with all ease and tact, delivers a "whopping" message in a few words.

Most of us who have been here before will be right glad to get back into the old auditorium next week at assembly just for once, because, after all, it is the scene of many lovely entertainments and enjoyable occasions of the dim, dark past, and it makes us sad to see it so forsaken-looking now.

So, now, I close with, "Here's to even better assembly programs in the future!"

ATTIE CAMP

To The Johnsonian:

Do you like inexpensive fun? If you do why don't you "take off" for a while and go to the Catawba dam. It's a grand place to go for fun as well as for education, for while you are there you can go all through the power house. And it costs not a cent.

From the top of the dam there is a wonderful view. You feel as though you are seeing the whole world from the top of the highest mountain.

It is an ideal place to go for a picnic! The grass is so soft and green you feel as though you could eat all day. And when you are tired of eating you have the good old river to jump in for a swim.

—KATHERINE DOUGLAS

Looks at Books and Things

● KEEP LAUGHING AND YOU won't mind the heat. Read My Sister Aileen by Ruth McKenney and you will keep laughing. Aileen and Ruth have more adventures than Sindbad the Sailor, gets into more scrapes than Mickey the Mouse. Ruth, telling all in a hilarious fashion, "dishes out the low-down" on Aileen, and in the telling, discloses not a few unsavory facts about herself.

Written in swift style, with a light touch, My Sister Aileen is a gay reminiscence of the youth of a hard boiled newspaper woman.

● FOR THOSE FIFTEEN MINUTE periods of "nothing to do", have on hand a copy of Dorothy Parker's Not So Deep As A Well and Ogden Nash's Primrose Path. Bits of whimsical verse, non-sensical lines of nonsense, parodies of this and that—these two volumes of poetry will elicit many smiles and not a few outright chuckles of enjoyment.

● YOU DON'T FIND AS REFRESHING a book every day as is Scrawled Timber, a saga of a little Vermont town and its school leaders, done by Dorothy Confield Fisher.

There is a bachelor academy principal, a designing school board member, a loyal student, a pretty ex-coed, a sauced aunt—all the characters for a melodrama though it isn't that. It is really an epopee of rural Vermont in its resistance of modern pressure boasting. Every school teacher will revel in the atmosphere of this book.

CASUALLY SPEAKING

● Mrs. Brown's writing class encourages you to think you can do the impossible; anyway, Julia Thomas thinks she really has; and so do her friends. After writing

Seeing Is Believing several letters in her cursive writing, there are some of the remarks that came back: "Julia, are you so busy that you can't even do your own corresponding?" "Your writing has improved one hundred percent." "The writing is pretty, but it just doesn't look like you." "Had you not been my only friend in Rock Hill I would never have known whom I was hearing from."

● Art is not art simply for art's sake here at Winthrop this summer, but for your sake and mine. How everything works together on the evening of an Arts course

Art For Your Sake number to weave a spell of enchantment! The impudent new auditorium with its spacious foyer, its artistry of color and line within its vast interior, and its intriguing air of mystery before the curtain rises—everything creates a profound expectancy. And the reality, since the curtain part? Sometimes it is a dream of feminine loveliness that pleases, and then delights and amazes with its very real skill and technique, its melodies and harmonies. At times a violinist holds one enthralled in a rapture of sound. Or it may be a dancer that sways one emotionally in her perfection of motion and rhythm—grace in the human form. Free tickets and empty seats in the new auditorium! Too often it may be "art for art's sake".

● Speaking of fun—did we have fun at the barn dance Saturday night! It went over big—a big crowd, good dancing and good ice cream (and plenty of it). From the

// Was Fun books of Johnson hall it took lots of work getting ready for it. The place was fixed just right, thanks to some very energetic girls. It took only a little coaching for the crowd to "catch-on" to square dancing. You'd think they had all been square dancing for years. The floor showed added more to the fun. We really have some talent around here. Here's hoping we can all get together and have another one soon.

● This morning seated by a window overlooking my backyard, I noticed a half-grown rabbit which hopped leisurely into my view and sat down under a tree. As it sat there on its bunnies rabbit-fashion, its body seemed a little tense and its ears pointed straight up for a moment then one ear dropped.

Just Musing Other than that it seemed at ease and perfectly at home. I had seen it sitting in this same spot in this same manner many times before during the past month and I had marvelled that it trusted itself so near man's abode. As I sat there looking at it, I mused, "Can a rabbit think, and, if so, what is this one thinking about this morning?" It was then that I noticed for the first time a shadow falling almost on the little rabbit. I turned my eyes to see from whence this shadow came. I saw nothing and the shadow vanished. The next thing I heard was the "awish" of a stone which was aimed at the rabbit. Warned by instinct the little fellow jumped high and escaped the stone. I looked to see whose cruel hand had cast the stone. I saw a tradesman entering the yard. I said, "Why did you do that?" I hoped he would attempt to justify this act by saying that he wanted to eat it. Instead he said, "It did not move when I got near it so I threw a rock to see if I could hit it and kill it." Musing again, I said to myself, "Can dumb animals have faith? If so, I imagine that this little creature has lost his faith in mankind.—S. B.

● But why confine our good times to the camp? It would be very lovely if the student body could transport itself to some nearby lake for a picnic. Food plus baseball is wonderful, but food plus swimming—oh my!

CAMPUSING with the staff . . .

With MRS. VICTORIA SPIERS, MILLIE COPELAND Do you realize that the end of the six weeks' period is upon us? Tests will be rolling around and we will hear the murmurs of, "I really did mean to study and make an A on every course." —Oh, well, it's too hot to study anyway, so let's go camping!

● Our way of falling in love.

—VESSIE SPeRR

A maiden runny as a poppy
Maintained a Tea & Waffle Shoppe.
Near by, a youth whose arms were knotty,
Displayed a sign: Ye Coffee Potte.
The maiden cried in accents choppy,
"How dare you imitate my Shoppe!"
The youth rejoined, "You must be dotty!
For years I've run a Coffee Potte."
The maiden wept, her tears fell sloppy;
"Alas! My Tea & Waffle Shoppe!"
The youth implored, "Oh, dearest Lottie,
I pray you take my Coffee Potte!"
The twin conduct, with none to copy,
"Ye Coffee, Tea & Waffle Shoppe."

The post who said that woman was "hard to please" could never have seen many modern American husbands.

How many of you agree with this?

● FAMOUS MINUTES

Minute steak.
Revolutions per minute.

Of the last meeting.
Minute gun.
When a sucker is born.
Men.
Minute that seems an hour.
Three-minute egg.

Mary Allyn McLaren's definition of love—
Love is a toothache of the soul which no dentist can cure!

● WHAT A NIGHT!

One day in the middle of the night,
Two dead boys got up to fight.
Back to back they faced each other;
They pulled out their swords and shot each other.

Dead policemen heard the noise
And came to watch the two dead boys.
Legless sailors came running by
And stopped to watch the dead boys die.

Marguerite Brown's favorite song is "When The Saints Go Marching On".

How true these words are—

It's hard to tell what makes a friend.

It isn't looks or style;

Just something that you can't explain.

That makes them real, worthwhile.

● What part do the teeth play in the utterance of speech?

They chatter occasionally.

There is a reason—

"No, for more or less."

● PROBLEMS

If things were never broken,
If fashion did not stale,
If only truth were spoken,
What merchant would not fail?

If men refused to quarrel,

If "take" were less than "give",

If all the world were moral,

How could the lawyers live?

If skies were never shaded,

If love were always true,

If roses never faded,

What would we poets do?

Around us and About us

How's your attendance? Hayden Bynum's is plenty good, and he isn't even enrolled. These campus courses really have the spirit.

M

Bob Ferguson is always ready to lend a hand. She even helped mow the lawn. And you should see her drive that horse! Maybe you did. It was right on front campus.

M

Anybody going to Charlotte? Susan Jones wants to go. She's gonna buy some red shoes to go with her white sharkskin skirt and red belt.

M

How these boys do shine! Albert (Kinney) Johnson made 100 on a trig test. How 'bout that?

M

Speaking of fraternity pins, Aggie Bigby has one from a completely now chapter. It's from that good Gulf University Is he a member, Aggie, or just a pledge?

M

It was good to see Dean Frazer Sunday night with an "all day sucker"—lamenting that "it is almost gone".

M

Mary Delanch knows how to park a Chevrole. She excelled in parking in the safety test.

30 Students Commute Daily From Nearby Town

By NOSIE SHANNON

Commuting from nearby towns to their classes at summer school are 30 people, an informal check by a Johnsonian reporter reveals.

From York each day comes Vera Bennett, Martha Dunlap, Ann Clark Scott, Mary Alice Hopper, Simmie Scott, Ruth Moore, Susie Shannon, W. D. Thomasson, Jr., Ernest Numm, Mrs. W. D. Pace, and Mrs. Nat Smith. Lancaster runs a close second with ten students: Mildred Billings, Margaret Robinson, Harriett Robinson, Ruby Clyburn, Susan Jones, P. F. Thompson, Elizabeth Ferguson, Mrs. K. C. Billings, Mrs. Allison, and Mrs. Caroline Jackson.

Day students from Fort Mill are Mrs. A. M. Hall, Kathleen Armstrong, Cleveland Lytle, and Martha Bruce Douglas.

Mrs. Lucille Crook and Emma Hamister from Chester, Mrs. W. C. Hood from Hickory Grove, and Rose Hicklin from Edgemont come each day. They even come from another state: Mrs. Rufus Johnson from Charlotte, W. W. Birdman and Margaret Anderson from Gastonia.

It is possible that others than these may be among the commuters, but no official records give them.

Summer School Enrollment Runs from 485 in 1912 to 443 in 1939

Study Shows Superior Students Excel In 'Persistency'

For several years the commerce department at Winthrop College has grouped students according to their ability. This table indicates the persistency in attendance of 317 such commerce students, group 1 being the highest in ability and group 3 the lowest.

Group	Group	Group
No. 1	No. 2	No. 3
76	79	39
41	83	39
Total	162	78
Remained in school one semester or less	3	15
Left school during second semester	18	42
Dropped during second year	11	22
Graduated from the two year commerce course	11	36
Dropped during Junior-Senior year	3	0
Graduated Bachelor of Science degree	31	45
Still in School	0	2
Graduation in terms of enrollment	40.25	27.78
	10.26

It will be noted that the highest per cent of graduation both from the four-year course and the two-year course comes from group one and the lowest percentage of graduation and the highest rate of drop outs occurs in group three.

Winthrop Grad Goes To Africa as Missionary

Mrs. Willie Kate Baldwin, Laura, a graduate of Winthrop in the class of '29, will go as an educational and evangelistic missionary to Nigeria, Africa. She will sail from New York in August.

While at Winthrop Miss Baldwin was interested in religious activities and served as an officer of the Student Volunteers.

She is a graduate of the W. M. U. Training school in Louisville, Ky. She has taught in several schools of the state and has taught Bible in Mississippi Woman's college.

NEW COUNTRY HOME FOR SALE:

One of the nicest new homes erected in this community recently is the J. M. Alston home, 1 mile from City Limits in sight of Winthrop College about $\frac{1}{2}$ mile off the Ebenezer cement and a few hundred yards of the Wyllie Short-cut, now known as the Catawba Dam Road. This well constructed residence has 7 rooms, baths and other conveniences, several out buildings and lots of outdoors—to be exact 16 acres which have been beautified, vineyard and orchard planted. The house is situated in a beautiful grove. Circumstances are such that this property may be bought for much less than its cost. Anyone desiring a nice home and acreage near Winthrop and Training School cannot buy a more desirable piece of property than this. Cash or easy terms if desired.

W. L. JENKINS, Manager

Ted Blankenship, Campus Cop, Is Man of Many Talents

By KATHERINE DOUGLASS

"Guess I'm just a Jack o' all trades," said E. R. Blankenship, the "never failing, never sleeping" policeman of the campus, who has been a sailor, member of the national guard, is now a policeman, and can paint, draw and box. And now he is learning all about finger printing, photography, and identification.

Truly, he is a man of many talents. Once he had a job as an artist. He painted signs for various stores, and even now he does all the signs around the campus. The signs in the post office are examples of his latest work.

For two years he served in the navy as fuel oil burner engineer on the U. S. S. No. 4 submarine, which was jammed in 1925 with all aboard killed. Patrolman Blankenship left the navy in 1920 and that is why he's "not pushing up daisies now". This naval training helps him, he thinks, a great deal with his present job, for it was in the navy that he learned to box. He says he's not afraid to walk through the dark, empty buildings at night, because he can take care of himself.

Mr. Blankenship even served in the national guard for one year—fact is, he has done most everything except preach. Maybe that will be his next step.

Mr. Blankenship has many outside interests. At present he is taking a correspondence course in identification from the Institute of Applied Detective Science of Chicago. He says "it is something everybody should know" and that he is taking it just for his own satisfaction. This course includes finger printing, photography, and identification; and it is the only course of this kind offered by any school other than the government training groups. This course is very difficult, but Mr. Blankenship, with all his other duties, has made 100 on all his exams, (except one 95). He only has a few more to take and then he will have a diploma from the Bureau of Identification of the school.
