Students Become Better Citizens In Government

"In the pages of the United States government, the name of John Wesley Johnson is a familiar one. He is the founder of the Student Government of the South Carolina State University, an organization that has grown from a group of students to a powerful force in the political life of the state. Johnson has been active in politics since his college days, and his influence has been felt in state and local affairs."

Miss Johnson, a native of South Carolina, is a graduate of the University of South Carolina. She has been active in politics since her college days, and her influence has been felt in state and local affairs. She has been a member of the South Carolina State University since 1938, and she has been active in politics since then. She has been active in the Students Government of the South Carolina State University, an organization that has grown from a group of students to a powerful force in the political life of the state. Johnson has been active in politics since his college days, and his influence has been felt in state and local affairs."

It Works! WC's Diet Reduces!

"It works! WC's Diet Reduces!" is a campaign that has been gaining popularity among students. The campaign is designed to help students lose weight and improve their health. The program is based on a low-calorie diet that is rich in fruits and vegetables. The program is taught by a team of nutritionists who are available to answer questions and provide support. The program is free of charge and is open to all students.

Episcopal Students Have Center

"The Episcopal Students at Winthrop College have a new center for their activities. The center is located in the English department, and it is open to all students. The center is equipped with a library, a study room, and a meeting room. The center is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The center is open to all students, and it is a great place to study and socialize."

Miss H. H. Miss How at Winthrop

Since 1938, when The Johnsonian, Winthrop College's weekly newspaper, published the first Miss H. H. Miss Edition, 1,501 high school senior girls of South Carolina have been honored in the annual publication. President Winthrop students, who were formerly Miss H. H. Miss selections from their respective schools, are shown in the college administration building, left to right: front row—Leila A. Gillespie of Spartanburg, Frances Huggh of Johnsonville, Nell Powell of Chester, and Betty Ann of Easley. Middle row—Frances Huggh of Chester, and Betty Ann of Easley. Back row—Seventh and Eighth grade students from the school. The Miss H. H. Miss Edition is a project of the home economics department of Winthrop College. The winners of the competition are chosen based on characteristics such as appearance, personality, and academic performance. The winners are announced on the college campus, and the competition is open to all high school senior girls in South Carolina. The Miss H. H. Miss Edition is an annual event that is eagerly anticipated by the students and faculty of Winthrop College. The winners are honored with a special ceremony, and their achievements are celebrated. The Miss H. H. Miss Edition is a symbol of the commitment of Winthrop College to recognizing and promoting the achievements of its students.

Winthrop Offers Opportunities

SCHOLARSHIP: Winthrop offers strong four-year courses leading to the Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees in the liberal arts, sciences, commerce, education, home economics, physical education, journalism, library science, and music. There is also a two-year course in commerce. The South Carolina College for Women offers students the advantages of a large school, with a variety of courses available, yet retains the values of limited classes, close supervision by teachers, and personal contacts with counselors and staff.

UNIFORM DRESS STANDARDS: Wearing navy blue and white is required, to promote the spirit of democracy and to prevent expensive competition in dress. Students, who help select the uniforms, have voted overwhelmingly their approval of the custom.

LEADERSHIP: Winthrop provides in its 74 campus organizations a variety of student activities, including the Christian association, athletic associations, Select Order, Rock and Roll, and other honorary academic and social groups. Students publish a weekly newspaper, a literary magazine and a yearbook. Training for life in a democratic society is provided by participation in student government, in which students have a part in the regulation of life on the campus.

TRAINING FOR TEACHERS: The Winthrop Training School, from nursery through high school, is operated by the college for teacher training. Winthrop trained one-third of the college graduates teaching in the public schools of South Carolina—a larger number than any other four South Carolina colleges combined.

RECREATION: Student body and other group dances, coffee, teas, parties, weekly movies, and many other social functions help make life more enjoyable at Winthrop. Tennis courts, swimming pool, archery range, bowling, field, gymnasium, and other facilities are available. A social director and trained teachers supervise and instruct in all these activities. Another attraction of the recreational program is the liberal weekend privileges each semester, and three long holidays each session: four days at Thanksgiving, usually two weeks for Christmas, and one week spring vacation.

PHYSICAL PLANT: Valued at over $5 million, including six large dormitories, four classroom buildings, modern auditorium seating 500, administrative building, library, student activity buildings, infirmary, dining room seating 1,700, laundry, faculty residence hall, etc.

High School Seniors Invited to Visit Winthrop

"Seeing is believing." Winthrop invites high school seniors, in their consideration of colleges, to visit the Winthrop campus for a weekend. Spend a few days in our residence halls, look over our physical plant, and see how Winthrop students live, and enjoy education here. Write us, suggesting a weekend during March or April which will be convenient for you.

Library Science
Field Offers Jobs, Good Pay

There is a very great need in South Carolina and in the South for trained librarians; a need that is accentuated by the rapid growth of modern libraries and the expansion of educational opportunities everywhere. Any college woman who is interested is likely to find a stimulating profession awaiting her.

Washington Library Junior College, 505 East Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D. C., is offering a very good training for women who wish to become librarians. For those who are interested in the future development of libraries the college offers a four-year course in Library Science.

Washington Library Junior College is a special junior college that serves the community of Washington, D. C., and the mid-Atlantic States. It has a long and successful record of producing librarians whose work has been recognized throughout the country.

The college offers a variety of courses in Library Science, including a one-year course for those who wish to enter the profession immediately after graduation, as well as a two-year course for those who wish to specialize in a particular field of librarianship. The college also offers a three-year course in Library Science for those who wish to pursue more advanced studies.

Washington Library Junior College is accredited by the American Library Association and is affiliated with the Library Association of Washington, D. C., which provides a network of professional contacts and resources for students.

In sociological studies, the college provides students with an understanding of the social context of libraries, enabling them to provide effective service to the community.

In addition, the college offers courses in computer science, which are essential in today's libraries.

Washington Library Junior College is located in a beautiful, historic building on Capitol Hill, offering a convenient and beautiful setting for students.

Writers Get 5 Trophies

To those who enjoy the art of writing, the annual South Carolina Journalists Association convention held at Winthrop College, Rock Hill, served as a means of promoting and encouraging the literary talents of the South Carolina's foremost senior writers. At this convention, the association presented several awards to the top junior writers in the state, including five gold trophies to the winners. The convention also provided an opportunity for the writers to share ideas, experiences, and tips with one another. The event was a celebration of the talent and dedication of these young writers, who have the potential to make significant contributions to the world of literature.

Nature Study Is Popular Subject

Groups of students exploring the natural world around them were prevalent at the South Carolina Junior Homemakers Association convention held at Winthrop College. The students were engaged in various nature study activities, such as collecting specimens, identifying plants, and observing wildlife. These activities not only provided an educational experience, but also allowed the students to connect with nature and develop a deeper appreciation for the environment.

Christmas Brings Lots Of Cheer

Because of the fact that the holiday season is one of the most joyous for everyone, many people do the only thing they can — they celebrate Christmas on the campuses of the State University of South Carolina.

For the student body of the University of South Carolina, Christmas brings a lot of cheer. The holidays are a time of celebration, and the campus is alive with the excitement of the season.

Without doubt, one of the top productions in the fields of journalism is the junior class at Winthrop College. The Journalism Building, made possible by a grant from the late Mr. W. M. Little, is one of the finest in the country. The students are taught by some of the most experienced professors in the field of journalism. The courses offered include mass communications, writing, and editing.

College Farm Gives Eggs, Ice Cream For Dining Room

The Winthrop College dining room is supplied with fresh eggs and ice cream from the college farm. These products are used in the making of various dishes served to the students. The farm is located on the outskirts of the campus and is run by the students under the supervision of the agriculture department.

Winthrop Is Host To Second Annual Girls' State

Winthrop Is Host To Girls

Each year Winthrop College becomes host to girls who come from all parts of the state to gain a greater appreciation of their rights and responsibilities as citizens of the state. The idea of a girls' state was originated by Mrs. C. A. Duffield, who has worked tirelessly to promote it. This year the state was attended by 150 girls from all over the state. The highlight of the program was the election of a governor and a legislative body.
