Trustees object to WC's classification

By Bonnie Jerman

When Winthrop College was created in 1886, it was a private, coeducational liberal arts college. Today, however, the school is a public institution of higher education. The trustees want the school to be recognized as such.

The CHE (Commission on Higher Education) classified Winthrop as a regional undergraduate college in its master plan. The trustees argue that Winthrop should be classified as a regional institution, not a regional college.

Winthrop College is a state-wide, non-regional institution, and the school's trustees want the S.C. Commission on Higher Education (CHE) to get that message.

A 345-word telegram to the 17 CHE members from the trustees Thursday, Nov. 1, carried Winthrop's objections to the CHE Master Plan draft for higher education in the state, and asked for an opportunity to express the college's position in person. The CHE had invited reaction to the plan no later than Dec. 31.

The CHE designated Winthrop as a regional undergraduate college in its master plan. Winthrop trustees, in their telegram Thursday, requested "a special classification...which would appropriately recognize the unique nature of the college..." The CHE master plan separates the state's institutions of higher education into:

- The nine senior colleges for professional and graduate programs emphasizing research and public service...".
- The three universities for "professional and graduate programs...".
- The nine junior colleges for "basic liberal arts and sciences programs and in some cases a limited range of professional and master's level graduate programs."
- The 21 two-year institutions for "a wide range of occupational programs and some...lower division...college programs."

The master plan draft suggests that Winthrop "continue to place its primary emphasis on meeting the needs of its region of the state, with prime focus on adjusting undergraduate offerings to meet these needs as appropriate."

At their quarterly meeting Thursday, the Winthrop trustees argued that Winthrop, since its founding in 1886, has been a statewide institution.

"Winthrop is unique because of the nature of its graduate programs," said Board Chairman Howard Burns. "The regional classification goes against everything we've planned and done."

Dr. Robert Royall labeled the regional classification "absolutely ridiculous."

He cited Winthrop's enrollment as a prime example of its statewide service, since the college has students from all South Carolina counties currently enrolled. The trustees also cited Winthrop's academic organization of a college of arts and sciences and four professional schools. The organization "is that of a university rather than that of an undergraduate college," the telegram said.

Other features of Winthrop that don't fit the regional mold, the trustees said, are the accreditation and national reputation of the academic programs and the college's statewide service provided through its outreach programs.

Curtains for campus concerts?

By Bonnie Jerman

What are Winthrop students looking for in campus concerts? Or would they rather not have any concerts at all?

Dr. Ray Feaster, Student Union officers are seeking answers to these questions.

After having only one successful concert out of eight at Winthrop since 1976, the Student Union wants the college to do something else. "We have just about concluded that Winthrop students aren't into big-name concerts," Ronnie Laffitte said. Laffitte is president of DSU. "Maybe we should use the money for something else."

The concert committee lost $9,000 with "The Emotions," Laffitte said. "Ray Feaster, committee chairman, contacted DSU that if they would invest almost the total amount of concert funds on one big-name group, the students would show. However, 2000 would come. Four hundred students attended."

"This is money that could be used for Friday night dances or seats at Ann's Street (Dinh's Rathskeller)," Laffitte said.

The problem is not with the type of concert. "We have touched every base," Laffitte said. "Bluegrass, disco, contemporary, rock-and-roll. Students are not coming. Mother's Finest was the only successful concert we've had. About 3000 students attended."

The hit single "The Best of My Love" by "The Emotions" was a double-platinum record. Feaster believed that the disco group would be a Washtucross-over and attract both blacks and whites. DSU invested $12,500 in the one-night affair.

"If we don't hear anything, we will have to do something else with the money," Dr. Feaster said.

Dickson Student Union wants to know: (1) How do students feel about major concerts? (2) Is DSU charging too much for tickets? (3) Are concerts scheduled at inconvenient times? What would be a convenient time? (4) Would students rather have more movies, dances, or acts at ATS than concerts at Winthrop?

Students need to be realistic, though, Laffitte said. The concert committee must operate within a budget of $17,000 for the year. But DSU does want to know what students want them to use the money for.

"Talk to us, send notes to the DSU office, upstairs Dinlins, answer through THE JOHNSONIAN," Laffitte said. "If we don't hear anything, we will have to do something else with the money."

Winthrop College is a state-wide, non-regional institution, and the school's trustees want the S.C. Commission on Higher Education (CHE) to get that message.
The Board of Trustees met Thursday, November 1, and formulated a Master Plan. Reaction to this classification was swift and strong.

Winthrop's M3 programs in personnel and industrial relations. Also, our school of psychology is recognized statewide. Dr. Donald Hoist, director and chairman of Winthrop's self-study steering committee, said that if the CHE had recommended it immediately to the CHE, it would have been considered by the university.

“Of course, we don’t fit in the category of regional senior institutions such as this can affect our stature negatively. If you think hard, you might even be able to recall some of the T.V. shows which first opened your mind to the opposite sex, and maybe a few other highlights.”

Winthrop trustees believe that an in-between classification should be created for colleges which serve the state and region. Perhaps other colleges which don’t fit the regional classification may want to join us. At any rate the Trustees are making the right move, and I hope we get some positive results.

Dr. Donald Hoist, director and chairman of Winthrop's self-study steering committee, said that if the CHE had meant the Southeast when they talked regional, they would have been more accurate. He believes the self-study program will help to clarify Winthrop's place in higher education in South Carolina. Technically, Winthrop is a comprehensive university which offers graduate programs.

"The Stranger," "Sometimes a Fantasy," and "You May Be Right" are all hard metal, and some of the best songs I've heard in a while. Some slick blues riffs. As for its statewide value, it has none. Or so the Commission on Higher Education has reported in its Master Plan.

An evening with Billy Joel

On the crowd roared and cheered in excitement. Suddenly, the spotlight up at the top of the bandstand: Billy Joel, playing the opening chords to "Only the Good Die Young." He grabbed a nearby microphone and started singing. He leaped down onto the stage and pranced across to his piano, teasingly. He played a tune which brought much of the crowd to its feet. His singing was superb. Suddenly, lights started flashing and winking wherever he ran. His concert ended with "Whatever People Call It."}

Letters to the Editor

Dim all the lights

Dear Editor,

In response to last week's article entitled "Energy saving ideas," I noted the suggestion that in large buildings, half the fluorescent bulbs can be removed without significantly reducing the light. This suggestion seems appropriate in concern to Dacus Library. I feel that there is an excess of light in the library.

Much of this excess is downstairs. Near the back and side walls where very few people sit—why all the light? I am sure that Winthrop College and Dacus Library would find that by reducing some of the light, no inconvenient changes would be made.

When the future of our energy resources is dismal, Winthrop College can actively help in conserving energy. Winthrop should be proud of the recent TD, as it represented a very sympathetic viewpoint of today's energy problems. The Johnsonian is Winthrop's voice—shouldn't Winthrop be as sympathetic to the energy problem? Besides, maybe the lower electric bills would make room for other needs here at Winthrop.

In praise of Winthrop

To the Editors

If you were to see me walking across the campus, you would not think, "Oh, she's blind!" or "Oh, she's crippled!" because my handicap is not that obvious. In fact, I prefer not to be labeled a handicapped person, but rather as one who copes with life to the best of my abilities.

I also removed the limitations when I attempt to function under normal situations. Others can run four miles without considering the aftereffects; they can stay up until 3:00 in the morning, and they can skip meals if they desire. For me, to attempt any of these freedoms would be a disaster. In order to maintain a delicate balance of health, I must EACH day balance medications, meals, energy output, and even level of stress—a constant discipline.

College life challenges this discipline. It is so easy to run too far, to stay up too late, to skip a meal. You must by now wonder why I'm writing this, (since I do have a desire to remain anonymous). This letter is in praise of Winthrop College. It is a college that is small enough to have EARS for listening to the students. In particular, I want to praise the Housing Department's Mrs. Bollin and Security's Sgt. Kirkpatrick and Chief Williams. With Winthrop's overcrowding, Housing and Security are under tremendous pressure to satisfy everyone's needs, and this is a nearly impossible task. However, I have seen such a different side. Upon learning of my handicap, these people have gone out of their way to help me function in a college environment. It's not just been assistance with room location or car permit; these people are kind, concerned friends who genuinely care about my welfare. Without their support, I could never have remained in college.

For all the many students who have been aided by these people and for all who receive the services of these departments, remember that a large university would be much less personal. For all of these students and for myself, I would like to express my appreciation. Thank you for caring.

Sincerely,
A grateful student

Religious "fanatics" support their view

Written in answer to "Religious Egotism and The Life of Brian.

Bob Ford does not like it that religious people take a stand for what they believe. He apparently feels that it is all right for him to dogmatically defend his own convictions, but accuses those with whom he disagrees of being fanatics.

On the one hand he is critical of those who took a position against "Life of Brian." Then, on the other hand, he urges that his readers call local theaters to INSIST that the movie be shown here. What kind of logic leads him to think that when the other side takes a position it is "bigotry" and "religious egotism," but when he INSISTS that his position be accepted, it is proper? Apparently, free speech is not for everyone!

Ford gives us a short history of religious wars and persecution, but what has this to do with peaceful opposition to a movie? No one, to our knowledge, has used force or threatened physical harm to theaters. All that has happened is that some people have had the courage to publicly state their convictions. In America, thank God, they have that right to do this. Evidently, Ford would rather they didn't.

It appears that Ford is greatly agitated that there are people who are truly busy in Jesus Christ, who firmly stand on their moral convictions, and who are unwilling to be silent when their faith is being insulted. It is sad that he does not feel the same venom against immorality, blasphemy, and the movie makers pandering.

Ford ends his remarks with the suggestion that those who disapprove of the movie "can stay the hell away from the theater." He can be sure that there will be many of us "reactionary "fanatics" in the "Bible Belt" who will stay away.

Eagle Eye under attack

Editor's note

The following letters were written in response to David Jackson's column, "The Eagle Eye" published in the November 5 issue of THIS JOHNSONIAN. Jackson's column last fall was concerned with the changes in the athletic department since Coach Nield Gordon arrived two years ago and two months ago. Jackson stated that the column contains his own opinion alongside information from his research and interviews with Gordon.

To the Editor

I want to voice my surprise in reference to David Jackson's column, The Eagle Eye, in TJ November 5. I say "surprise" for I was referred to four times in the article and have not been contacted yet by Mr. Jackson. This, to me, represents a gross MISCARRIAGE of honest reporting when a scathing criticism is printed and at no time is the subject interviewed or even contacted.

The circumstances related to the expenditures, as pointed out by Mr. Gordon, were drawn from isolated bits of information. The statement from the News & Courier was quoted entirely out of context from an article written by David Jackson in Sat., Nov. 11, 1978. Jackson's column, The Easts Eye, in TJ contained his own opinion alongside information from his research and interviews with Gordon.

I am spilled that TJ would allow such a biased attack without first researching the topic. I hope Mr. Jackson will endeavor to alter his style of reporting or at the very least, his honesty when a scathing criticism is printed and at no time is the subject interviewed or even contacted.

At this time to answer the criticism point by point would serve only to increase whatever tension may exist and I would wish to lend support to the TOTAL athletic program with a positive viewpoint for all teams—male and female.

Respectfully,
Mary B. Griffin

Editor's response

THE JOHNSONIAN's deepest concern is the accuracy and objectivity of the information conveyed. Our mission is to present a balanced view of the various topics. We feel that the series of articles, The Eagle Eye, in its entirety, with permission from the writer, Lauretta F. Brown, Features Assistant, and the quotes used in Jackson's article are in bold face.

Winthrop College

When athletic director and men's basketball coach Nield P. Gordon came to state supported Winthrop three years ago, Title IX meant more to male athletes than female. The previously winless college went fully coed in 1974, so when Gordon took over there were seven women's sports and three men's.

By the 1978-79 season, the $235,276 athletic budget supported five women's teams (basketball, field hockey, softball, tennis and volleyball) with 71 contacts and four men's squads (basketball, soccer and tennis) with 72.

"Most of our operating expenses come from student fees," says Gordon. "There's not a small college in the United States that can bring in enough gate receipts to pay for its athletic programs." The $12,000 his team brought in with ticket sales last season, and contributions to the athletic program, which Gordon formed, go toward athletic scholarships. Gordon says he would never have joined a booster club had he known about the costs involved.

"The back-up of success with a booster club has to be basketball so that's where we put money to make money," says Gordon.

Mary Roland Griffin, Winthrop coordinator of intercollegiate athletics, 1970-77, and now physical education professor, recalls how the booster club got started.

"Mr. Gordon, basketball, baseball, and soccer teams did support the volleyball team, but after the match between W.C. and College of Charleston, where all of them lost? There was still a match to be played involving W.C. Some support after a devastating blow. Why was this particular match not lost out that the men's teams supported the Lady Eagles? Because they had not supported them in past games.

Fact—Dr. Griffin was quoted in David's article from the News and Courier as stating "I hope Mr. Jackson will endeavor to alter his style of reporting or at the very least, his honesty when a scathing criticism is printed and at no time is the subject interviewed or even contacted."
Terminal added to Dacus Library

BY BECKY ALLEN

Services expanded recently at Dacus Library with the third online terminal added to the computer library network system already present, according to Mrs. Shirley Tarton, college librarian.

Dacus Library is able to borrow cataloged material from any library belonging to the Southeastern Library Network (SOLINET) or any other network in the country.

Dacus Library is one of 225 member libraries of the Southeastern Regional Network. The Southeastern region is one of more than 15 multitype networks tied online by contract to a computer data base in Columbus, Ohio, (OCLC, Inc.).

"Nothing ties into the campus," Tarton said, "because it works through telephone lines to Ohio. It would be too costly to have our own computer.

The information is keyed in by trained library staff and a list of colleges with that book is printed on the screen. The school closest to Winthrop is then picked and a request is keyed into the terminal and sent on its way.

Paperwork is eliminated and the book will hopefully be put in the mail within 24 hours.

"Several days of time are saved this way," Tarton said. Patrons are not allowed to operate the terminals but trained staff are able to understand the truncated words and operate the machines. By this fall, services will expand to allow ordering of books and periodicals and keeping track of money spent.

Okfam Fast coming up

On Thursday, November 15, Winthrop College Cooperative Ministry will sponsor its third annual Okfam Fast.

Okfam represents an international effort begun in 1942 in Oxford, England as the "Oxford Committee for Famine Relief." During the past thirty-seven years, Okfam has gained global reputation for innovative yet realistic development in the poorest areas of Africa, Asia, and Latin America.

Okfam America, begun in 1970, seeks and encourages projects in which impoverished, needy people are trained and educated to do the work, make decisions, and take charge of their own development.

Okfam assistance often goes to small, rural development efforts often overlooked by larger agencies. Its efforts strengthen individual capabilities so that local people can organize their own development.

Because Okfam has no political or religious ties, it is free to support any program it chooses. This year, however, because of its extremely critical nature, Okfam assistance is going directly to the starving, famine-stricken people of Cambodia.

Okfam America asks support from concerned Americans through their participation in this nationwide FAST FOR A WORLD HARVEST every Thursday before Thanksgiving by sharing the experience of hunger for one day and sending their food money to Okfam.

Winthrop College, through the cooperation of the Winthrop College, a substantial contribution will be made to Okfam.

Campus Ministers Randy McSpadden and Pat Blaney are the coordinators of the project. Anyone interested in donating to Okfam or assisting in the Fast is asked to contact Randy McSpadden at 219-6349.

International conference

BY PENNY TERRYELL

The South Carolina International Student Conference will be held Nov. 21-23 at the White Oak Conference Center, White Oak, S.C., according to Mr. Clay Shealy, foreign student advisor.

The conference will be held in cooperation with the Campus Ministry Department and will feature sessions dealing with different religious concepts.

According to Shealy, the conference is for the benefit of the international students who would like to know or share ideas on the Christian religion.

Since a large group of those attending will be non-Christians, American students are also urged to attend.

The Campus Ministry Department wishes to make clear that the conference is a learning experience and not an attempt to convert foreign or American students to the Christian religion.

The deadline for registration for those wishing to attend the conference is November 19. Reservations can be sent to Campus Ministry Department, 187 Richmond Street, Columbia, S.C. or reservations can be made by contacting the Baptist Student Union on Campus.

Appleby named to post

She will help coordinate alumni scholarship programs and the alumni annual fund. She will serve as a resource person to provide administrative support to the alumni association president and executive board. In addition, she will assist the director of alumni affairs in planning, coordinating, and hosting various alumni activities such as the annual homecoming weekend.

Before coming to Winthrop, Appleby was staff assistant to the director of management and budget, American Petroleum Institute, in Washington, D.C. She also served as a researcher for The White House Domestic Council and as a graduate intern in the office of the chief of police in Charlottesville, Va.

Delta Sigma Theta disco

Delta Sigma Theta sorority will sponsor a disco in McBryde Cafeteria on November 16, according to Joan Davis, president.

Davis said, "We are hoping for a big turn out."

Advance tickets for the 6:00-1:00 dance are only $1.00 with a Winthrop ID and $1.50 at the door. Davis said that "James Harriet's Funk Factory" will be the band featured. She urged all students to attend.

Christmas bazaar

The Annual Baptist Student Union Christmas Bazaar and Flea Market will be held Saturday, November 17, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the Baptist Student Center, according to Mrs. Dennis Lucy, Baptist campus minister.

Lucy said that handmade Christmas ornaments, needlepoint and cross stitch will be sold at the bazaar.

Annual Thanksgiving service

The annual Thanksgiving service sponsored by Winthrop College Cooperative Ministry will be held Sunday, November 18, at 6:00 p.m. in Dishin auditorium, according to Reverend W. A. Brabham, United Methodist Campus minister.

Brabham said that the service will be led by Winthrop students and staff. Bob Porterfield, Baptist Campus minister, will conduct the Baptist Student Student Ensemble in religious hymns. An interpretive dance group will present a Thanksgiving prayer choreographed by Cynthia Smith, a senior majoring in social work. Representatives from the school of music will perform sacred musical selections.

"This program is open to all Winthrop students and staff members," said Brabham.

Federal aid available

There has been a strong increase in applications for Federal aid this semester, according to Mollie Bethea, Financial Aid officer.

Due to the implementation of the Middle Income Assistance Act, more students than ever before are eligible to receive Federal basic grants.

Thus far, there is a 35% increase in applications for basic grants over the number for the entire last fiscal year. With the March 15, 1980 deadline for applying for basic grants for this academic year, Bethea said she expects many more students will apply.

Basic grants are entitlements which do not have to be repaid. No school determines who will receive these grants. Applications are reviewed by Federal government employees.

Zdenek receives award

Joseph W. Zdenek, professor of Spanish and chairman of the Department of Modern and Classical Languages at Winthrop College, has received the Certavrentes Award from the South Carolina Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese.

The award recognizes a person in South Carolina who is distinguished in Hispanic studies.

Zdenek, who came to Winthrop in 1966, received his bachelor’s degree from Northern Illinois University, his master’s from New Mexico State University and his doctorate from the University of Madrid.

Chorale auditions

Auditions for the Winthrop College Chorale will be held Monday, November 26, at 12 noon in Room 201 of the School of Music, according to Robert Edgerton, director of chorale activities.

Edgerton said, At this time there are vacancies only in the tenor section. Applicants should be prepared to sing a song of their choice and should sign-up for an audition time. Due to the implementation of the Middle Income Assistance Act, more students than ever before are eligible to receive Federal basic grants.

Edgerton said that persons unable to attend the regular auditions may arrange a special audition by contacting him at 2256.

The fifty-voice Winthrop College Chorale performs choral masterworks and contemporary music. This spring the Chorale will perform at the South Carolina Intercollegiate Choral Festival at Furman and will sing the famous REQUIEM and Vaughan Williams FIVE MYSTICAL SONGS with the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra.

Music ensembles carry one hour of academic credit and are open to all Winthrop students. Other vocal ensembles include the Winthrop Singers, a popular entertainment group chosen from the Chorale, and the seventy-voice Winthrop Chorus, an all-campus ensemble which requires no audition.

Krisban presents seminar

"A biology seminar titled, 'Of Mice and Men: Investigations of an Animal Model of Lupus Disease', will be presented by Baldev Krishan, a Junior in the department of Biology at Winthrop, Wednesday, November 14, at 4:00 p.m. in Room 216 Sims Building," said Dr. John Shive, Assistant Professor of Biology.

According to Shive, Krishan plans to enter medical school after taking his MCAT this April. Krishan is from India, where his parents own a small orchard in the Himalayas. After attending boarding school, he moved to Charlotte to live with his uncle and finish high school.

This past summer, Krishan participated in a student research program at the Jackson laboratory in Bar Harbor, Maine. At the lab, Krishan conducted independent research in immunology. Under the direction of Edwin Murphy, he worked with a strain of mice that contract a disease which mimics the human antoimmune disease Lupus. Lupus is an often fatal disease and is most prevalent in young women. In addition to describing these studies, Krishan's seminar will include a description of the Bar Harbor program which should be of particular interest to Biology and science students.

"Refreshments will be served at 3:35 p.m. in room 216 Sims," said Shive, "and interested biology students may call the department of biology at 323-2111."

Alumni need help

Winthrop Heritage Club, composed of Winthrop students with parents or grandparents who attended Winthrop, will need help Nov. 12-16 looking up phone numbers of Alumni for a phonathon that will be held later in the year according to Carol Brunson, president.

The support received will help the club to provide money for scholarships. Brunson said that the phonathon will be successful with the help of Winthrop students. Brunson urges all students to get involved and to contact her, 3361, or the Alumni Office, 2145, if they are interested.

New student crook: financial aid bandits

(CPS) -- Most financial aid officers don't like to talk about it. Law enforcement officers talk about it, but don't know what to do to stop it. These reasons, as well as the widespread availability of financial aid, are contributing to a new breed of student criminal: the financial aid bandit.

Law enforcement officers find it difficult to say just how widespread aid fraud has become. As of June 30, 1979, there were about $1.7 billion in federal student loans in default. If fraud were held to the minimum two percent level some of the most optimistic financial aid officers hope for, that would translate into some $34 million in stolen financial aid funds.

Christine McKenna, a United States Attorney who successfully prosecuted four Seattle students for fraud last spring, says one reason it's hard to determine just how much aid money is stolen -- and hard to prosecute those who do the stealing -- is the lack of cooperation from college administrators.

Administrators are the ones who must initially accuse a student of making a false statement on an aid application, and of doing so with the intent of defrauding the U.S. government, the source of most financial aid. But many administrators don't want to sue students who have gone to their schools. Their attitude is that it is like a "father suing his son," contends James Cissell, U.S. attorney for Southern Ohio. So some prosecutors see the few aid fraud cases that they get as the tip of the iceberg. The pace of prosecution is nevertheless quickening.

In Seattle last spring, three "occasional students" -- brothers Dennis and Jerry Smith, and Patricia Ann Hunt -- were charged with 35 counts of conspiracy to defraud the government. According to the grand jury indictment, the three filled financial aid applications to a total of six schools -- five community colleges and the University of Washington -- at the same time. The three were convicted of trying to get the funds for profit, not for alleviating college costs. A fourth person -- financial aid counselor Sapina Pele-Titilli -- was subsequently convicted of being in league with them.

Another financial aid office -- Robert Ellis -- was convicted in January, 1979 of one count of embezzlement. Ellis had been involved in a scheme that made financial aid available to 28 University of Cincinnati students in return for kickbacks. The students were put on probation, and ordered to make restitution. Ellis was sentenced to a two-year prison term, and assessed a $4000 fine.

Illinois officials think they're on to the largest financial aid fraud scheme on record. They've charged Alocudum Bamgbose, a 33-year-old Nigerian national, with trying to bilk the Northern Illinois University financial aid office out of $50,000. The trial began last week with Bamgbose pleading not guilty.

State Attorney Bill Brady told the DAILY ILLINI at the University of Illinois that if "he got $25,000 out of NIU, there's no reason he couldn't have gotten $25,000 out of other schools."

If found guilty of the charges surrounding his actions at Northern Illinois, Bamgbose could spend five years in prison and have to pay a $10,000 fine. The Seattle financial aid bandits were hit with jail sentences, fines, probation and court orders to pay the money back. Aid counselor Pele-Titilli is still awaiting sentencing. She faces a maximum five year term and a $10,000 fine.

But penalties have not been much of a deterrent to other crooks. Chicago's Jackson Judge says federal aid fraud unit says he's investigating the possibility that Bamgbose used "well over 50 combinations of names and social security numbers." He was sentenced to a two-year term and a $10,000 fine.

But, nationally, there may be more fraud coming. North Seattle's Russell blames the apparently-spreading practice of aid fraud on the increasing availability of financial aid, especially for offspring of higher-income families.

He says the new Middle Income Student Assistance Act, which makes students from families that make up to $25,000 eligible for aid for the first time, may make things worse. "What we are seeing is a higher, socio-economic group that is brighter, more adept at manipulating the system."

If there ever was a loss which could be considered a moral victory, it was the Winthrop soccer team's 3-2 defeat at the hands of powerful Erskine last October 24.

Although the District 6 tournament is over by the time (it was played last weekend, well after deadline) The Johnsonian has decided to feature this game in an article all its own because the loss left Winthrop's final regular season mark a fine 18-4-1.

For the record, the Erskine loss left Winthrop's final regular season mark a fine 18-4-1 which made them second in the league semi-district power ratings behind the Flying Fleet. The Eagles were scheduled to take on Coastal Carolina in the league semifinals while Erskine faced Wofford. (The results of the tournament will be in the next TJ.)

Although everyone hates to lose, the intense comeback effort displayed by Jim Cassada's club against the nationally ranked Flying Fleet was a source of pride and inspiration to those of us who have followed them this season.

The match itself was a "burner," although somewhat sloppily played. It can be categorized into the two halves; the first of which was won by Erskine, the second by Winthrop.

Erskine got all three of their goals in the first 21 minutes of the match. The Eagles had the ball in their offensive zone for the first two minutes, but the speedy Flying Fleet broke loose on a breakaway which made the score 1-0 at the 2:33 mark.

Winthrop tried to retaliate, but two close shots didn't get in and, before you knew it, Erskine had broken loose and scored again with 11 minutes gone.

About 10 minutes later, Erskine awarded a free kick and Paulo Machado chipped it over Bob Bowen's head to give Erskine a 3-0 lead with 24 minutes still left to play in the first half.

At this point, Erskine had taken three shots and scored three goals. Despite this setback, the Eagles hung tough and shut out the Fleet for the rest of the first half and the game. Winthrop admirably refused to quit at halftime and came out to completely control the second half of play.

Winthrop had a golden opportunity to tie or go ahead in the game's last ten minutes when Erskine was forced to play without two men who had been ejected for violence.

However, with a partisan crowd of about 500 on their feet and screaming, the Eagles failed to take advantage of this power play. In fact, Erskine scored to regain control of the game down the stretch and more or less ran the clock out.

After the extremely tough loss, Cassada said that "it wasn't pretty, but it was scathing. It took a lot of heart for our guys to come back like we did."

Winthrop outshot the Fleet 16-10, had two shots hit the bar, and thanks to their rally, proved that they are just as capable a team and could quite possibly beat Erskine in a rematch which would occur in the district's championship game.

This match serves notice that Winthrop is now a District 6 power to be reckoned with, now and in the future.

After the game, co-captain Peter Fell said, "No matter how well we played, it still goes down as an L."

But to me, this game is more than an "L." The team showed the heart by coming back and classifying themselves to the rather easy play of Erskine. One senses that they will be ready for a rematch.

If there is such a rematch, The Johnsonian will be there to cover it (and the rest of the district tournament) in next week's issue.

WOMEN'S FLAG FOOTBALL

The Sophisticated Ladles, now 7-0, lead the women's intramural flag football by defeating the Rough Riders 18-4 and the FBI 42-0 at Sims Field on October 29-30, said Evans Brown, director of intramurals.

The Sophisticated Ladles scored three goals in the first 21 minutes of the game to put their record at 2-3-1 and third place in the league.

MEN'S FLAG FOOTBALL

The Head Hunters, now 3-2-1, moved from fifth place to third in the NFL flag football Intramurals by defeating the Freshman Terrors 14-6 and the Sack Patrol 12-4 on Oct. 29-30 at Sims Field, according to Evans Brown, director of Intramurals.

In the AFL, the Kack Busters saw no action last week but remain in first place with a season record of 5-0.

In this action week, the Turtles defeated the Keggers 18-0 to tie for second place in the division.

Beagle fever

BY DAVID JACKSON

The Beagles are a soccer team at the university. They are led by Coach Kevin Bartow. The team has had a good season so far, with a 7-0 win over the USC-Spartanburg club team. The Beagles are a group of athletes who enjoy the sport and take it seriously, but also have fun in the process.

The Beagles' leading scorer has been Roger Hovis, who has scored 18 goals. Among the other key players are Nick Stonewot, LeBron Lynch, Paco Rios, Day Stofan, Nick Storstreet, LeBron Staihakis, and John Hubbard. The team has had a relaxed and fun atmosphere, which has helped them excel.

The Beagles are a team that has a lot of heart and passion for the sport. They have been successful this season and have established the need for a Junior Varsity team. The Beagles are a team that is not only good on the field, but also good off the field.

Success inflated

LOS ANGELES, CA (CPS) — Fewer athletes graduate from the University of Southern California than the USC administration likes to claim.

The USC DAILY TROJAN investigated an athletic department report that 81 percent of USC football players from 1969 to 1975 eventually graduated, but found that only 51 percent of the athletes actually got their degrees.

The athletic department reported that there were 267 USC players during the period. The Trojan discovered the number of athletes who were really 524. Nearly 80 percent of the 267 players the athletic department neglected failed to get their degrees.

Athletic Director Richard Perry told the paper that "Those numbers bother me. We don't want to project a sense of achievement that isn't there."

Volleyball falls to Charleston but whips USC

BY DAVID JACKSON

The Winthrop Eagle volleyball team had a big win over the South Carolina Gamecocks but suffered a second disappointing loss to the College of Charleston Cougars during a week which saw them win 7 out of 8 matches to raise their record to 15-3 and the South Carolina State Bulldogs 15-0, 15-2.

Winthrop's big match of the week came on Friday, Nov. 3, when they traveled to Charleston to take on the Cougars as well as the University of South Carolina. This evening featured what Mozingo referred to as "the best volleyball I have ever seen in the State of South Carolina."

Mozingo got a chance to use all of her players. Everybody got a chance the next night too as Winthrop did away with USC-Alken 15-3, 15-6.

Winthrop started off the evening's festivities by taking a close 15-9, 15-15, 15-9 decision over USC.

"Both teams played great," said Mozingo of the Carolina match, "I'll tell you, we had to play to our absolute potential to beat them, which we did."

However, the Eagles might have played the Gamecocks with too much intensity because their performance in the next match against the College of Charleston was flat and resulted in an 11-15, 15-13, 15-9 defeat.

"This was Charleston's last home match so they were really fired up," said Mozingo.

However, the same letdown which had hurt Winthrop also cost the Cougars in the evening's finale against South Carolina, who played a 15-9, 15-0 defeat on the hosts.

According to Mozingo, the only negative aspect of this tri-match was the officiating: "It was awful. Even an official in the audience said she had seen better in junior high school. Poor officiating hurt a great night of volleyball."

The volleyball team wrapped up its week of play by downing Converse and Columbia.

They drilled Converse for the second time of the week, 15-3, 15-4, and defeated host Columbia (led by former Winthrop coach Linda Warren) by scores of 15-9, 15-6.

These two easy wins made Winthrop's final regular season record 32-2 going into last weekend's SCAIAW Division I tournament in Florence. If they win there, the Eagles will advance to the AAIW regions in Martin, Tennessee. There is also the possibility that, should they finish second, Winthrop might receive an at-large berth in the regionals. Whatever happens, we'll tell you about it in next week's Johnsonian.
Report re-ignites women's sports debate—

dually spends on men's sports by the number of men on the school's 20-man team's terms. He'd take that average per capita expenditure and apply it to each female athlete, even though female athletes don't compete in expensive sports like football. It costs Marcum about $900 to train and equip a football player versus an average of about $1400 to field athletes in other sports. On that basis, Marcum says Title IX would cost him $1.1 million to implement.

He says that Kansas, which now has a $450,000 women's sports programs, doesn't have another $1.1 million. Ultimately, Kansas would have to eliminate some programs. "We'll end up with just two male sports—football and basketball—to pay for women's sports," echoes Oklahoma's Walker.

Many of the athletic directors favor an alternative approach that would mandate equal per capita spending for all sports except football and basketball. Under those circumstances, Marcum estimates that the 'costs of implementing Title IX would decrease to a more manageable $400,000.

OVERREACTION

The Big Ten's Dr. Henry uses Ohio State as an example of how the exemption would work. Ohio State, he says, spends about $1 million per year to stage a football program that turns a profit of $7.5 million.

If the profit, in turn, "supports every other sports program at Ohio State, except basketball, which pays for itself," he says that's 12 women's and 18 men's teams.

"All we're asking," Henry says, "is that we protect that $1 million investment that makes all the other programs possible, and let's split the $7.5 million on all the other sports on a proportional basis."

He's confident, moreover, that HEW will ultimately adopt such a plan, at least for big universities. "Even the most violent librarians aren't talking about places like the Big Ten when they mention equal per capita expenditures. Big Ten schools, he claims, are already making enough progress toward equal opportunity."

Big Ten schools spend from $400,000 to $1.4 million per year on women's athletics.

Henry's optimism stems from a July, 1976 meeting between HEW and "the cross section of people from some of the bigger programs." There were people from both men's and women's athletics departments, most of which were somewhat profit-oriented, and they got "a good reception" for the modified exemptions plan.

Among those present, according to Henry, were representatives of Southern California, Ohio State, Memphis State, Princeton, Texas A&M, Illinois, and Virginia. Henry estimates there are about 80 such programs which are supported by their football revenues.

Helen Loukas, project director for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, puts the number at "a handful." Most football programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

Jane Habiger, public relations director for the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 50. "But if even 10 is IS 80," she says for argument's sake, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW "wouldn't favor anything where there'd be any exemptions."

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball proposed by Sen. John Tower (R-TX) in 1975. But such controversy seems unnecessary to Dr. Donna Lopiano, Texas women's athletic director at Texas. "I don't think you'll find three athletes across the nation who have read the regulations themselves. I think they are misinformed. There is a real fear, a real defensiveness that is unfounded if you put a lead pencil to the regulations," she told the Daily Texan.

But all seem to agree that, when the guidelines are made final, it won't be schools like Texas that will be punished hardest.

"If I were you," Henry counsels, "I'd worry about places where student fees make up about 60 percent of the sports budget. That's where it's really going to hurt. They'll either have to raise student fees very high, or give up sports."

Lopiano also worries about bigger schools that have been withholding women's programs until the guidelines were set.

To Lopiano, that includes most universities. "The problem is—except for about ten schools that have made a real effort—the impact is going to be horrendous. They're going to have to come up with big money fast, and that's sad."

WC offers ski course

Wingate College will offer three ski courses January 6-11, according to Carolyn Meredith of the Human Development Center.

Lodging will be at the Continuing Education Center of Appalachian State University in Boone, said Meredith.

The courses will include: Beginners at Appalachian Ski Mountain, five days of skiing, unlimited instruction, all equipment, lift fees, lodging ($3.40 a room) and Improve Your Skiing At Home manual, cost $109.

Intermediate, three days of instruction at Appalachian Ski Mountain, one day of recreational skiing at Beech and one day at Sugar, lift fees, lodging manual, cost $109 including equipment or $90 if you have your own equipment.

Recreational at Sugar and/or Beech, four days of skiing, lodging for four nights, lift fees, cost $90 including equipment or $81 if you have your own equipment.

Registration and orientation will be held on Monday, November 19, at 7:00 p.m. in the Human Development Center on Wingate College campus in Rock Hill, S.C.

"A non-refundable deposit of $25 will be required and manuals distributed," said Meredith. "The deadline for registration is November 27. Late registration is sometimes possible on a space-available basis. For non-students there is an additional $6 registration fee."

Census Bureau needs help

HEW Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris has written to college and university officials asking their cooperation in counting students in the 1980 census. Harris said she was requesting cooperation because of concern of Secretary of Commerce Juanita M. Knips that many colleges and universities may be reluctant to release to census takers the names and campus addresses of students living in campus housing for fear of violating the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA).

"She asked me to assure that complying with the Census Bureau request is not a violation of the FERPA if your institution has (a) designated those items of information as directory information and (b) followed the required FERPA procedures to allow for disclosure of those items without the written consent of the students," Harris said, she was writing now to allow ample time for institutions to review their procedures or to establish procedures that will permit release of information to census takers.

She said procedures include notifying students of the following: (1) the items the institution intends to designate as directory information (students' names and campus addresses should be among the designated items); (2) the right of the students to refuse to permit disclosure of any or all of those items without their prior written consent; and (3) the period of time within which the students must submit in writing to the institution in writing of their refusal to permit such disclosure. "If you have not heard from the student by the end of the stated period of time, you would be free to release any of the designated items of information," she said.

Harris suggested that the information be published in campus newspapers or otherwise brought to the attention of all students. The 1980 census will be taken next spring.

Career opportunities

HEW News

HEW's Office of Education has established four new programs to make students more aware of career opportunities.

The career education programs, established in a regulation issued today, are:

An allotment program that makes funds available to states and territories for use in public elementary and secondary schools.

An Information program to spread the word about federally funded career education programs.

Two career education demonstration programs—one for public schools and the other for colleges.

A total of $19 million is available to operate and evaluate the state allotment program this school year. These funds may be used to make career education a part of regular classroom activities, to improve guidance and counselling, to develop relations with community organizations, to purchase instruction materials, and to provide in-service training for teachers or school staff.

The career information dissemination program, funded at $200,000 this school year, will be operated by the National Occupational Information Coordinating Committee, composed of Department of Labor and HEW officials, and by the National Diffusion Network, which publicizes exemplary elementary and secondary projects funded by HEW. These groups will provide information about successful federally funded career education programs to interested individuals and to school districts that may wish to adopt these successful projects.

The two demonstration programs will develop model approaches to career education for public school and college students, which may then be used by other agencies and institutions. These programs will not be funded this school year.

The rules which appear in the FEDERAL REGISTER, today, describe the purposes of the new programs, application review criteria for the demonstration programs, state allotment procedures, the kinds of projects that may be funded, and program eligibility.

State and local education agencies, institutions of higher education, and public and private agencies are eligible to participate. All must promote equal opportunity in career choice by eliminating practices that encourage career bias and discrimination on the basis of race, national origin, sex, age, economic status, and handicap.

"Phrase that pays"

The winner of the "Phrase that Pays" contest, Donna Turner, was awarded a $20.00 prize in Thomson Cafeteria Wednesday, according to Jane Frieman, fund-raising chairman of Zeta Tau Alpha.

"The phrase," said Frieman, "was 'We Have Arrived.' " Frieman said that Turner did the art work for the phrase, and the word "WE" she wrote out Winthrop Eagles.

Frieman said that she and Dean Mann were the judges. They narrowed it down to three phrases, and the sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha, voted on the winner. The honorable mentions are Becky Allen, "Eagles don't just nest in the mountains, they soar in Rock Hill-Winthrop College Eagles," and Sharon Craft, "Eagles put the Win in Winthrop College."

Frieman said that the new bumper stickers will go on sale in approximately three weeks for 50 cents each. They'll be sold in Thomson Cafeteria, and ZTA members will be around campus selling them.

Two new exhibits

The controversial 21st Annual Springs Traveling Art Show, consisting of 40 works by Carolina artists, will open Nov. 15 in the Heathcote art gallery, according to Edmund D. Lewandowski, chairman of the Art Department.

The exhibition was selected from 864 entries by Ira Licht, director of the Lowe Art Museum at the University of Miami, and Jane Livingston, associate director of the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.

Showing along with the Springs show will be 15 prints and drawings by Paul Martyka, instructor of art. Martyka said most of his works are imaginary "broken and reassembled" landscapes executed since 1976 and will be displayed in the small gallery.

Lewandowski said both exhibitions will be on display Monday-Friday, 9:00-4:30, and Sunday, 2:00-5:00 through Dec. 1.

RAX YOU SAID A BUNFUL
Halloween happened

BY CYNTHIA SMITH

Witches, ghosts, ghouls and goblins! These are just a few of the many things normally associated with Halloween. However, anyone attending Halloween Happening at Dinldna Student Center October 31 knew that this year Halloween was no normal event. Everything from M&M's to the Hulk were seen wandering the Winthrop campus in search of Halloween fun.

Baby dolls, doctors, Hershey's kisses, Jimmy Buffett, Dolly Parton and "2 wild and crazy Czechoslovakian churls" were just a few of the many characters seen strolling around Dinkins. A group of girls artfully dressed as a pack of crayons won the Halloween costume contest.

Many school organizations and clubs, including the campus ministries were represented. InterVarsity Christian Fellowship came up with the unique idea of having Christmas in October, selling Christmas items with the sound of Christmas playing softly in the background.

Pie throws were also popular this year. The Psychology Club sponsored a pre-raffle where students could buy a pie if they were the highest bidder and throw it at a certain professor. Students and other Halloween gatherers also had the chance to throw a pie at a junior or senior member for a quarter or smash in their face for a dollar and a quarter.

As usual there was much food in the vicinity with cotton candy, peanuts and drinks for sale. There were also ring tosses throwing coins in bottles and other various games for viewers to participate in.

Sigma Gamma Nu sponsored a scary monster prop that participants could stand behind to have their pictures taken. There was even a madam to tell everyone's future. The campus Greeks were also active with them having donut sales, baked goods sales, popcorn sales and even a casino game and a jail. Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity won the booth competition for their haunted forest that seemed a little too realistic to many.

In addition to booths, there were also such popular attractions as the Ebonite talent show and the Roommate Game, a take-off on the popular Newlywed Game series.

Halloween Happening seemed to be enjoyed by all the students this year. Probably the most fun though was the seeing little ones all excitedly dressed up and the remembering that years ago was us.

Professor of the week: Dr. Donald Myers

BY LORI RIDGE

Dr. Donald W. Myers, associate professor of management, has become a full-time faculty member of Winthrop's School of Business Administration this year. Myers, a native of Atlanta, Georgia, has served on Winthrop's part-time faculty for two previous years.

Myers said that he is proud to be a full-time professor at Winthrop because he feels that Winthrop's School of Business Administration is the best that he has taught for. "The school is small, but the faculty and students are first-rate," Myers said. "Winthrop, Clemson, and USC are the only schools in South Carolina with AACSB (American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business Administration) credit rating; this is a very selective group."

Myers has plans this year to help establish and maintain the Winthrop College Center for Human Resource Assessment. The Center is designated to help develop the student potentials of all who take advantage of its facilities. Myers said that two well-known universities, Stanford and Baylor, have already established such development centers with apparent success.

The staff at Winthrop provides administrative support to do what has to be done," Myers said. "This provides for a fine atmosphere. Consequently, you find yourself wanting to improve; excellence comes from competitive challenges." Myers said that he became a full-time faculty member at Winthrop because he enjoyed his work when he was a part-time professor here.

Myers has plans this year to help establish and maintain the Winthrop College Center for Human Resource Assessment. The Center is designated to help develop the student potentials of all who take advantage of its facilities. Myers said that two well-known universities, Stanford and Baylor, have already established such development centers with apparent success.

According to Myers, Winthrop is also considering establishing its own chapter of Sigma Iota Epsilon, which is "a student affiliate of the Academy of Management."

Myers said that as a professor he is interested in the "applicative phases of student learning." In other words, "it's important to learn how to use it," he said. To reinforce this principle of "maximum student input," Myers encourages occasional student-taught courses, case analyses, and of course, bringing materials to class.

Myers holds a doctorate degree in Business Administration from Georgia State University in Atlanta. In addition, he has taught at Georgia State University and at DeKalb College in Atlanta.

"WInthrop and its Subsidiary is a very special place," said Myers. "You find yourself wanting to improve; excellence comes from competitive challenges." Myers said that he became a full-time faculty member at Winthrop because he enjoyed his work when he was a part-time professor here.

ATS proudly presents the "Rob Crosby Group," a talented vocal trio whose roots are in Columbia, S.C. According to DSU president Ronnie Laffitte, the group will perform November 15 and 16, and, as usual, admission is free with a WCID.

Using his experiences in South Carolina as the basis for many of his songs, Crosby satisfies a variety of tastes with his soft, laid back rock style. Strong, effective harmonies result when Crosby, accompanied by Margie McCrory and Steve White, belt out selections by Ronstadt, Lennon-McCartney, Dylan, and Crosby's own music.

The group has played in Atlanta and Nashville, with an album, Rob Crosby, to its credit. In addition to its Columbia appearances, the Rob Crosby Group recently played at Thursday's in Rock Hill.

College Bowl Competition

Tournaments and Games is sponsoring an Interdepartmental College Bowl Competition to be held November 15 and 16. The competition begins at 8 p.m. in Dinkins Auditorium.

The college bowl will be operated just like the College Bowl television series, with the teams answering questions on such topics as literature, history, and science. Quick response and knowledge are the key factors in point scoring.

Departments participating in the competition are: Elementary Education, Special Education, School of Business Administration, Mathematics, and Textiles, Clothing and Interior Design. Persons with questions about the competition should contact Edie Meyer in the Dinkins Program Board office, 323-2248.

Short Course: CPR

Short Courses is offering a class in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) on November 17 in Dinkins Auditorium. "The class will be taught by a member of the American National Red Cross and will last from 9-5," according to Amy Nichols, Short Courses chairman. "There's a $4 fee which covers the cost of supplies and workbooks. Persons completing the course will receive Red Cross certification."

Students can sign up for the course at the Dinkins Information Desk. There is also a list of other short courses, so students can sign up for these now.

NOT SINCE LOVE STORY...

The true story of Jill Kinmont. The American Olympic ski contender whose tragic fall took everything but her life. And who found the courage to live through the love of one very special man.
