11-12-1979

The Johnsonian November 12, 1979

Winthrop University

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/thejohnsonian1970s

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/thejohnsonian1970s/224

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the The Johnsonian at Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Johnsonian 1970-1979 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. For more information, please contact bramed@winthrop.edu.
Which way is up?

Which way is up? Winthrop Eagle soccer forward Carlos Gonzalez has a little trouble keeping his feet during a recent match against Wake Forest. The Eagles recently completed their most successful regular season ever as they finished with a record of 13-4-1. Jim Ganley's club participated Friday and Saturday in the District 6 Championship Tournament, the results of which will be in next week's JOHNSONIAN. (Photo by Joel Nichols)

Trustees object to WC’s classification

By Bonnie Jerdan

What are Winthrop students looking for in campus concerts? Or would they rather not have concerts at all?

Discount Student Union officers are seeking answers to these questions.

After having only one successful concert out of eight at Winthrop since 1976, the union has begun to wonder whether students are interested in concerts or if concert funds could be invested more profitably in other activities.

"We have just about concluded that Winthrop students aren't into big-name concerts," Ronnie Laffitte said. Laffitte is president of DSU. "Maybe we should use the money for something else."

The concert committee lost $8,000 with "The Emotions," Laffitte said. Ray Feaster, committee chairman, contacted DSU that if they would invest more than the total amount of concert funds on one big-name group, the students would show. He was promised $2000 would come. Four hundred students attended "The Emotions" concert Oct. 26. "The public outweighed the students," Feaster said.

The problem is not with the type of concert. "We have touched every base," Laffitte said. "Blues, gospel, R&B, contemporary, rock-and-roll. Students are not coming. Mother's Finest was the only successful concert we've had. About 3000 students attended."

The hit single "The Best of My Love" by "The Emotions" was a double-platinum record. Feaster believed that the disco group would be a major crossover and attract both blacks and whites. DSU invested $12,000 in the one-night affair.

"This is money that could be invested for Friday night dances or sets at Across the Street (Dishin's Rathskeller)," Laffitte said.

Students need to be realistic, though, Laffitte said. The concert committee must operate within a budget of $17,000 for the year. But DSU does want to know what students want them to use the money for.

"Talk to us, send notes (to the DSU office, upstairs Dishin's), answer through THE JOHNSONIAN," Laffitte said. "If we don't hear anything, we will have to do something else with the money."

Discount Student Union wants to know: (1) How do students feel about major concerts? (2) Is DSU charging too much for tickets? (3) Are concerts scheduled at inconvenient times? (4) Would students rather have more movies, dances, or acts at ATS than concerts at Winthrop?

Students are welcome to write letters to the editor (c/o THE JOHNSONIAN, Box 6800 WCB) or talk to Ronnie Laffitte, Ray Feaster, or DSU vice-president Sally Grice.

Curtains for campus concerts?

The CHE designated Winthrop as a regional undergraduate college in its master plan. Winthrop trustees, in their telegram Thursday, requested "a special classification... which would appropriately recognize the unique nature of the college." The CHE master plan separates the state's institutions of higher education into:

- The 21 two-year institutions for "professional and graduate programs emphasizing research and public service... ." The master plan draft suggests that Winthrop continue to place its primary emphasis on meeting the needs of its region of the state, with prime focus on adjusting undergraduate offerings to meet these needs as appropriate.

At their quarterly meeting Thursday, the Winthrop trustees argued that Winthrop, since its founding in 1896, has been a statewide institution.

"Winthrop is unique because of the nature of its graduate programs," said Board Chairman Howard Burns. "The regional classification goes against everything we've planned and done."

Board member Robert Boyd labeled the regional classification "absolutely ridiculous."

In the telegram, the Winthrop trustees cited Winthrop's enrollment as a prime example of its statewide service, since the college has students from all South Carolina counties currently enrolled. The trustees also cited Winthrop's academic organization of a college of arts and sciences and four professional schools. The organization is "that of a university rather than that of an undergraduate college," the telegram said.

Other features of Winthrop that don't fit the regional mold, the trustees said, are the accreditation and national reputations of the academic programs and the college's statewide service provided through its outreach programs.
Regional or statewide

Winthrop College is a regional school. This means the college is good for fulfilling the needs of students in its area of the state. As for its statewide value, it has none. Or so the Commission on Higher Education has reported in its Master Plan.

Reaction to this classification is swift and strong. The Board of Trustees met Thursday, Nov. 1, formulated a response, and programmed it immediately to the CUE.

Winthrop has been recently receiving increased recognition as a qualified school of higher education; and attendance growth reflects the growth in quality. A classification such as this can affect our stature negatively.

“There is no dispute that we have a regional function,” according to Dr. Mary Leidgale Johnson, president of student affairs. “However, we offer programs that are not offered elsewhere in the state.” For example, she named Winthrop’s M.S. programs in personal and industrial relations. Also, our school of psychology is recognized statewide.

“It is not reasonable to consider Winthrop only a regional school,” she said.

Okay, we don’t fit in the category of regional senior colleges. Are we requesting classification equal to Clemson, USC, and the Medical University, the top three state institutions? No, not yet. Winthrop trustees believe that an in-between classification should be created for colleges which serve the state and region. Perhaps other colleges which don’t fit the regional classification may want to join us. Any rate the Trustees are making the right move, and I hope we get some positive results.

Dr. Donald Hoist, director and chairman of Winthrop’s self-study steering committee, said that if the C.U.E. had meant the Southeast when they talked regional, they would have been more accurate. He believes the self-study program will help to clarify Winthrop’s place in higher education in South Carolina. Technically, Winthrop is a comprehensive university, which does include graduate programs, Hoist said, but it is organized along university lines.

Incidentally, one of the first projects of the self-study program is underway. One program committee is planning a survey of students concerning how they feel about Winthrop and another survey of faculty concerning their status and goals. The JOHNSHIAN plans to publish the results of these questionnaires in December or January.

One way or another, Winthrop will receive the recognition its deserve. People are getting interested in determining Winthrop’s direction and goals. Even the alumni association is investigating how they relate to the institution. Maybe we all ought to consider what Winthrop means to each of us.

Bonnie Jordan

Riderless horse

Bruce McDaniels

It’s been a long time since that November weekend of childhood, and it has happened to those kids who daily peruse the box covered by the black and white American flag and the ceremonial lighting of the eternal flame.

Now, seventeen years later, the perception of today’s children has been irrevocably altered. A second brother of this dead man rises up to declare his intentions to resume the personal journey to the mythical land of Camelot. He rises up to relive memories of days of different flavors and old. He seeks to mount the riderless horse of seventeen years again.

Unfortunately, a sad prospect has already begun to become apparent to the nation, though it has not yet been fully confirmed.

When the riderless horse died, he was buried with his saddle, and the post#%t% was destined to never again be filled.

An evening with Billy Joel

Bob Ford

Three new songs indicated the new musical directions in which Joel is traveling. "For the Longest Time," "Sometimes a Fantasy," and "You May Be Right" are all hard rockers with fast, hard vocals. Quite good, actually, but unexpected from Billy Joel.

Towards the end of the concert, the crowd was pulling against the stage. Frankie chick Paladino, standing behind Joel, reached desperately to touch his outstretched hand. He ran back onstage for the encore. "Style St. Blues" and "She's Always a Woman," "Vienna," and "You May Be Right" are all heavy metal rockers with fast, hard vocals. Quite good, actually, but unexpected from Billy Joel.

One of the best songs was "New York State of Mind." Lead guitarist David Brown got up on the stage and hit scene stick, while riffs. Joel had donned some black shades and proceeded into a Ray Charles imitation. The lyrics poured out from his voice. Richard Kenatta performed an electrifying saxophone solo at the end of the song which brought much of the crowd to its feet. Then, stage lights were dimmed and the song continued. "Piano Man," "She's Always a Woman," "Vienna," and "You May Be Right" were all hard rockers with fast, hard vocals. Quite good, actually, but unexpected from Billy Joel.

And Billy Joel said, "Good night, Charlotte. Don't take any shit from anybody."
Dear Editor,

In response to last week's article entitled "Energy saving ideals," I noted the suggestion that in large buildings, half the fluorescent bulbs can be removed without significantly reducing the light. This suggestion seems appropriate in concern to Dacus Library. I feel that there is an excess of light in the library.

Much of this excess is downstairs. Near the back and side walls where very few people sit - why all the light?

Others can run four miles without considering the aftereffects; they can stay up until 3:00 in the morning, and they can skip meals if they desire. For me, to attempt any of these freedoms would be a disaster. In order to maintain a delicate balance of health, I must each day balance medications, meals, energy output, and even level of stress - a constant discipline.

College life challenges this discipline. It is so easy to run too far, to stay up too late, to skip a meal. You must, by now, wonder why I'm writing this (since I do have a desire to remain anonymous). This letter is in praise of Winthrop College. It is a college that is small enough to have ears for listening to the student. In particular, I want to praise the Housing Department's Mrs. Bollin and Security's Sgt. Kirkpatrick and Chief Williams. With Winthrop's overcrowding, Housing and Security are under tremendous pressure to satisfy everyone's needs, and this is a nearly impossible task. However, I have seen such a different side. Upon learning of my handicap, these people have gone out of their way to help me to function in a college environment. It's not just been assistance with room location or car parking; these people are kind, concerned friends who genuinely care about my welfare. Without their support, I could never have remained in college.

For all the many students who have been aided by these people and for all who receive the services of these departments, remember that a large university would be much less personal. For all of these students and for myself, I would like to express my appreciation. Thank you for caring.

Sincerely,
A grateful student

Anne Page Copley

In praise of Winthrop

To the Editors

If you were to see me walking across the campus, you would NOT think, "Oh, she's blind!" or "Oh, she's crippled!" because my handicap is not that obvious. In fact, I prefer not to be labeled as a handicapped person, but rather as one who copes with life to the best of my abilities.

If you were to talk to me about class dropping or changing majors, I am, however, reminded of the limitations when I attempt to function under normal situations. For me, to attempt any of these freedoms would be a disaster. In order to maintain a delicate balance of health, I must each day balance medications, meals, energy output, and even level of stress - a constant discipline.

College life challenges this discipline. It is so easy to run too far, to stay up too late, to skip a meal. You must, by now, wonder why I'm writing this (since I do have a desire to remain anonymous). This letter is in praise of Winthrop College. It is a college that is small enough to have ears for listening to the student. In particular, I want to praise the Housing Department's Mrs. Bollin and Security's Sgt. Kirkpatrick and Chief Williams. With Winthrop's overcrowding, Housing and Security are under tremendous pressure to satisfy everyone's needs, and this is a nearly impossible task. However, I have seen such a different side. Upon learning of my handicap, these people have gone out of their way to help me to function in a college environment. It's not just been assistance with room location or car parking; these people are kind, concerned friends who genuinely care about my welfare. Without their support, I could never have remained in college.

For all the many students who have been aided by these people and for all who receive the services of these departments, remember that a large university would be much less personal. For all of these students and for myself, I would like to express my appreciation. Thank you for caring.

Sincerely,
A grateful student

Religious "fanatics" support their view

Written in answer to "Religious Egotism and The Life of Brian."

Bob Ford does not like that religious people take a stand for what they believe. He apparently feels that it is all right for him to dogmatically defend his own convictions, but accuses those with whom he disagrees of being fanatics.

On the one hand he is critical of those who took a position against "Life of Brian." Then, on the other hand, he urges that his readers call local theaters to INSIST that the movie be shown here. What kind of logic leads him to think that when the other side takes a position it is "bigotry" and "religious egotism," but when he INSISTS that his position be accepted, it is proper? Apparently, free speech is not for everyone!

Ford gives us a short history of religious wars and persecution, but what has this to do with peaceful opposition to a movie? No one, to our knowledge, has used force or threatened physical harm to theaters. All that has happened is that some people have had the courage to publicly state their convictions. In America, thank God, they have a right to do this. Evidently, Ford would rather they didn't.

It appears that Ford is greatly agitated that there are people are truly believe in Jesus Christ, who firmly stand on their moral convictions, and who are unwilling to be silent when their faith is being insulted. It is sad that he does not feel the same venom against immorality, blasphemy, and the movie makers pandering.

Ford ends his remarks with the suggestion that those who disapprove of the movie "can stay the hell away from the theater." He is quite right that there will be many of us "reactionary" fanatics in the "Bible Belt" who will stay away.

Karen sexy
Susan Dill
Jeff Trotter

"Pretty good. My advisor is Martin Hope. He has helped me plan out the next two years of social work curriculum. But I do think most advisors need to get more involved with their students, especially freshmen."

Shawn O'Neill - sophomore

"Well, pretty beneficial, because I didn't know what classes to take, how to go about class dropping, or things like satisfactory/unsatisfactory. He just really helped me out."

Don McGraw - freshman

"Not at all. I have no need to see him to advice me on what classes to take. I have already decided on which classes I feel I need to take."

Mary Rogers - freshman

"He's pretty good when you can catch him. He's hard to catch."

Fay Robinson - junior

"He's very helpful. I went to talk to her about dropping a course, and she pointed out the advantages and disadvantages. She talked about the outcome of my future plans and whether or not the course would be a necessity in my major."

Russell Power - freshman

How beneficial is your advisor in planning your classes?

Photos and copy by Tim Harris
To the Editor

I want to voice my surprise in reference to David Jackson's column, "The Eagle Eye," in the November 5 issue of this JOHNSONIAN. Jackson's column lately has been a series of commentaries on the changes in the athletic department since coach N.C. State, Wake Forest, Winthrop was tough of Intercollegiate athletics, 1970-77, and the booster club got started.

"Mr. Gordon couldn't have our basketball team's graduate signed because she was offered a lower salary plus scouts. And our field hockey coach refused because she was offered a lower salary than the men's basketball team's graduate assistant was making."

We also feel if the series were to be successful, that other people's opinions would have been brought in and not just David's or Mr. Gordon's. For example, like talking to Dr. Littlejohn, Dr. Griffin, students involved in athletics and players involved in athletics. We feel that this article was a stab in the back to all those women who have their own opinions on the matter, but do not have an article to write.

Editor's note

The following letters were written in response to David Jackson's column, "The Eagle Eye," in the November 5 issue of this JOHNSONIAN. Jackson's column lately has been a series of commentaries on the changes in the athletic department since coach N.C. State, Wake Forest, Winthrop was tough of Intercollegiate athletics, 1970-77, and the booster club got started.

"Mr. Gordon couldn't have our basketball team's graduate signed because she was offered a lower salary plus scouts. And our field hockey coach refused because she was offered a lower salary than the men's basketball team's graduate assistant was making."

We also feel if the series were to be successful, that other people's opinions would have been brought in and not just David's or Mr. Gordon's. For example, like talking to Dr. Littlejohn, Dr. Griffin, students involved in athletics and players involved in athletics. We feel that this article was a stab in the back to all those women who have their own opinions on the matter, but do not have an article to write.

Editor's response

THE JOHNSONIAN's deepest concern is the accusation that Griffin quoted out of context and that Jackson was unfair in presenting the information from the Charleston paper from which the Griffin quotes were taken. In all fairness we have decided to publish the complete article Winthrop College in the "Total Athletic Program" article from the October 21 issue of SATURDAY NEWS AND COURIER/THE EVENING POST in its entirety, without permission from the writer, Laurie Fazekas, Features Editor. The complete article in Jackson's article are in bold face.

Winthrop College

When athletic director and men's basketball coach David J. Gordon came to state supported Winthrop three years ago, Title IX meant more to male athletes than female. The previously all-women's college went fully coed in 1974, so when Gordon took over there were seven women's sports and three men's.

By the late 70s, the $35,275 athletic budget supported five women's teams (basketball, field hockey, softball, tennis and volleyball) with 71 competitors and four men's squads (baseball, basketball, soccer and tennis) with 119.

"Most of our operating expenses come from student fees," says Gordon. "We're a small college in the United States that can bring in enough gate receipts to pay for its athletic program." The $13,000 his team brought in with ticket sales last season, and contributions totaling $8,000, helped the club, which Gordon formed, go toward athletic scholarships. "The backbone of success with a booster club has to be basketball so that's where we put our money to make money."

Mary Roland Griffin, Winthrop coordinator of intercollegiate athletics, 1970-77, and now physical education professor, recalls how the booster club got started.

"Mr. Gordon couldn't have our basketball team's graduate signed because she was offered a lower salary plus scouts. And our field hockey coach refused because she was offered a lower salary than the men's basketball team's graduate assistant was making."

We feel the series of articles, "The Eagle Eye," written by David Jackson was extremely biased. Many people may not know that David is the men's basketball manager and we feel this may be his bias. Oh sure, he has the facts, but we believe the facts have been misconstrued. Fact — the women did receive money for scholarships in 1971-72 and '72-73. It was used, but this money was used in July. Who is going to sign a player on a scholarship with only one month of scouting and be promised a good player for future years? Fact — Dr. Griffin was quoted in David's article from the News and Courier as stating "If the only thing that's going to take off is our athletic program, I don't think that's fair to the students or to the school." And he didn't. His only concern was that the men's teams supported the Lady Eagles? Because they had not supported them in past games...

"Mr. Gordon couldn't have our basketball team's graduate signed because she was offered a lower salary plus scouts. And our field hockey coach refused because she was offered a lower salary than the men's basketball team's graduate assistant was making."

Yet today, Ann Ellerbe, associate athletic director and basketball and field hockey coach, says she's lover than the men's basketball team's graduate signed because she was offered a lower salary plus scouts. And our field hockey coach refused because she was offered a lower salary than the men's basketball team's graduate assistant was making."

Although Winthrop has taken a wait-and-see attitude for the outcome of HEW's policy decision, Gordon feels budgeting athletics should be handled by the athletic department.

"Of course there needs to be parity but each school should be able to decide what athletic programs it wants to set up for its student athletes — what the school can afford and where it wants to put an emphasis."
Terminal added to Dacus Library

Terminal added to Dacus Library located in the resource area of the library, means "we can get what patrons want faster and more efficiently." The other two terminals are located in technical services.

The terminal consists of a typewriter-like keyboard with a 14 inch T.V. screen which puts information in truncated key words (an average of three letters per word). A word or periodical can be looked up by author, title, or identification number. The information is keyed in by trained library staff and a list of colleges with that book is printed on the screen. The school closest to Winthrop is then picked and a request is keyed into the terminal and sent on its way.

Paper work is eliminated and the book will hopefully be put in the mail within 24 hours. Tariton added that "several days of time are saved this way." Patrons are not allowed to operate the terminals, but trained staff are able to understand the truncated words and operate the machines. Tariton said that services will expand in the near future to allow ordering of books and periodicals and keeping track of money spent.

Oxfam Fast coming up

On Thursday, November 15, Winthrop College International Ministry will sponsor its third annual Oxfam Fast.

Oxfam represents an international effort begun in 1942 in Oxford, England as the "Oxford Committee for Famine Relief." During the past thirty-seven years, Oxfam has gained global reputation for innovative yet realistic development in the poorest areas of Africa, Asia, and Latin America.

Oxfam America, begun in 1970, seeks and encourages projects in which impoverished, needy people are trained and taught skills and education so that they can do the work, make decisions, and take charge of their own development. Oxfam assistance often goes to small, rural development efforts often overlooked by larger agencies. Its efforts strengthen individual capabilities so that local people can organize their own development.

Because Oxfam has no political or religious ties, it is free to support any program it chooses. This year, however, because of its extremely critical nature, Oxfam assistance is going directly to the starving, famine-stricken people of Cambodia. Oxfam America asks support from concerned Americans through their participation in the nationwide FAST FOR A WORLD HARVEST every Thursday before Thanksgiving by sharing the experience of hunger for one day and sending their food money to Oxfam. WCCM urges Winthrop College to share in this experience by asking students to fast from their evening meal on Thursday, November 15. In return through the cooperation of Thomas Coffee, a substantial contribution will be made to Oxfam.

Campus Ministers Randy McSpadden and Pat Blaney are the coordination of the project. Anyone interested in donating to Oxfam or assisting in the Fast is asked to contact Randy McSpadden at 521-6369.

International conference

The South Carolina International Student Conference will be held Nov. 21-23 at the White Oak Conference Center, White Oak, S.C. according to Mr. Tom Shealy, foreign student advisor. The conference will be held in cooperation with the Winthrop Campus Ministry Department and will feature sessions dealing with different religious concepts.

According to Shealy, the conference is for the benefit of the international students who would like to know or share ideas on the Christian religion.
News briefs

Appleby named to post
Jean L. Appleby has been named associate director of alumni relations at Winthrop College.

She will help coordinate alumni scholarship programs and the alumni annual fund. She will serve as a resource person and provide administrative support to the alumni association president and executive board. In addition, she will assist the director of alumni affairs in planning, coordinating and hosting various alumni activities such as the annual homecoming weekend.

Before coming to Winthrop, Appleby was staff assistant and executive director for an alumni association president and executive board. In addition, she served as a researcher for The White House Domestic Council and as a graduate intern in the office of the chief of police in Charlottesville, Va.

Delta Sigma Theta disco
Delta Sigma Theta sorority will sponsor a disco in McBryde Cafeteria on November 18, according to Joan Davis, presidnet.

Davis said, "We are hoping for a big turn out."

Advance tickets for the 8:00-1:00 dance are only $1.00 with a Winthrop ID and $1.50 at the door. Davis said that "James Hart's Funk Factory" will be the band featured.

She urged all students to attend.

Christmas bazaar
The Annual Baptist Student Union Christmas Bazaar and Flea Market will be held Saturday, November 17, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the Baptist Student Center, according to Mrs. Donna Lucy, Baptist campus minister.

Lucy said that hand-made Christmas ornaments, needlepoint and cross stitch will be sold at the bazaar.

Annual Thanksgiving service
The annual Thanksgiving service sponsored by Winthrop College Cooperative Ministry will be held Sunday, November 18, at 6:00 p.m. in Dicekis auditorium, according to Reverend Harry Graham, Intercollegiate Campus minister.

Brabham said that the service will be led by Winthrop students and staff. Bob Poritkeld, Baptist Campus minister, will conduct the Baptist Student Union Ensemble in religious hymns. An interpretive dance group will present a Thanksgiving prayer choreographed by Cynthia Smith, a senior majoring in social work. Student members from the school of music will perform sacred music selections.

"This program is open to all Winthrop students and staff members," said Brabham.

Federal aid available
There has been a strong increase in applications for Federal aid this semester, according to Mollie Bethea, Financial Aid officer.

Due to the implementation of the Middle Income Assistance Act, more students than ever before are eligible to receive Federal basic grants.

Thus far, there is a 35% increase in applications for basic grants over the number for the entire last fiscal year. With the March 15, 1980 deadline for applying for basic grants for this academic year, Bethea and she expects many more will apply.

Bethea said, "Ineligible students before are eligible now."

She urged every student, no matter what the income, to apply.

Basic grants are entitlements which do not have to be repaid. No school determines who will receive these grants. Applications are reviewed by Federal government employees.

Zdenek receives award
Joseph W. Zdenek, professor of Spanish and chairman of the Department of Modern and Classical Languages at Winthrop College, has received the Carreraes Award from the South Carolina Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese.

The award recognizes a person in South Carolina who is distinguished in Hispanic studies.

Zdenek, who came to Winthrop in 1966, received his bachelor's degree from Northern Illinois University, his master's from New Mexico State University and his doctorate from the University of Madrid.

Chorale auditions
Auditions for the Winthrop College Chorale will be held Monday, November 26, at 12 noon in Room 201 of the School of Music, according to Robert Edgerton, director of choral activities.

Edgerton said, At this time there are vacancies only in the tenor section. Applicants should be prepared to sing a song of their choice and should sign-up for an audition time on the School of Music office bulletin board. An accompanist will be available.

Edgerton said that persons unable to attend the regular auditions may arrange a special audition by contacting him at 2255.

The fifty-voice Winthrop College Chorale performs choral masterworks and contemporary music. This spring the Chorale will perform at the South Carolina Intercollegiate Choral Festival at Furman and will sing the Faure REQUIEM and Vaughan Williams FIVE MYSTICAL SONGS with the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra.

Music ensembles carry one hour of academic credit and are open to all Winthrop students. Other vocal ensembles include the Winthrop Singers, a popular entertainment group chosen from the Chorale, and the seventy-voice Winthrop Chorus, an all-campus ensemble which requires no audition.

Federal aid available
There has been a strong increase in applications for Federal aid this semester, according to Mollie Bethea, Financial Aid officer.

Due to the implementation of the Middle Income Assistance Act, more students than ever before are eligible to receive Federal basic grants.

Thus far, there is a 35% increase in applications for basic grants over the number for the entire last fiscal year. With the March 15, 1980 deadline for applying for basic grants for this academic year, Bethea and she expects many more will apply.

Bethea said, "Ineligible students before are eligible now."

She urged every student, no matter what the income, to apply.

Basic grants are entitlements which do not have to be repaid. No school determines who will receive these grants. Applications are reviewed by Federal government employees.

Zdenek receives award
Joseph W. Zdenek, professor of Spanish and chairman of the Department of Modern and Classical Languages at Winthrop College, has received the Carreraes Award from the South Carolina Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese.

The award recognizes a person in South Carolina who is distinguished in Hispanic studies.

Zdenek, who came to Winthrop in 1966, received his bachelor's degree from Northern Illinois University, his master's from New Mexico State University and his doctorate from the University of Madrid.
Krisban presents seminar

"A biology seminar titled, 'Of Mice and Men: Investigations of an Animal Model of Lupus Disease', will be presented by Baldev Krishan, a junior in the department of Biology at Winthrop, Wednesday, November 14, at 4:00 p.m. in Room 215 Sims Building," said Dr. John Shive, Assistant Professor of Biology.

According to Shive, Krishan plans to enter medical school after taking his MCAT this April. Krishan is from India, where his parents own a small orchard in the Himalayas. After attending boarding school, he moved to Charlotte to live with his uncle and finish high school.

This past summer, Krishan participated in a student research program at the Jackson laboratory in Bar Harbor, Maine. At the lab, Krishan conducted independent research in immunology. Under the direction of Edwin Murphy, he worked with a strain of mice that contract a disease which mimics the human autoimmune disease Lupus. Lupus is an often fatal disease and is most prevalent in young women. In addition to describing these studies, Krishan's seminar will include a description of the Bar Harbor program which should be of particular interest to Biology and science students.

"Refreshments will be served at 3:35 p.m. in room 215 Sims," said Shive, "and interested biology students may call the department of biology at 323-2111."

Alumni need help

Winthrop Heritage Club, composed of Winthrop students with parents or grandparents who attended Winthrop, will need help Nov. 12-16 looking up phone numbers of Alumni for a phonathon that will be held later in the year, according to Carol Brunson, president.

The support received will help the club to provide money for scholarships. Brunson said that the phonathon will be successful with the help of Winthrop students. Brunson urges all students to get involved and to contact her, 3361, or the Alumni House, 2145, if they are interested.

Langston's TownCenter Mall

- Flannel Shirts  -Wool Shirts
- 100% Cotton  -100% Wool

By WOOLRICK

-Plaid Shirts  -Button Down Collars
All The Latest Styles
Are Here
At Reasonable Prices!

The Sandwich Construction Company

Winthrop students bring your ID and get 10% off any sandwich Monday-Saturday and also receive your choice of soft drink, draft beer or house wine FREE.

Now you can also enjoy your 10% discount during Happy Hour! 4-7 p.m., Monday-Saturday. 10-12 p.m., Friday & Saturday. Come and enjoy the best food, beverages, and atmosphere at Rock Hill's newest, most unique restaurant!
New student crook: financial aid bandits

(CPS)—Most financial aid officers don’t like to talk about it. Law enforcement officers talk about it, but don’t know what to do about it. These reasons, as well as the widest availability of financial aid, are factors that contribute to a new kind of student criminal: the financial aid bandit.

Law enforcement officers find it difficult to say just how widespread aid fraud has become. As of June 30, 1979, there were about $1.1 billion in federal student loans in default. If fraud were held to the minimum two percent level some of the most optimistic financial aid officers hope for, that would translate into some $23.4 million in stolen financial aid funds.

Christine McKenna, a United States Attorney who successfully prosecuted four Seattle students for fraud last spring, says one reason it’s hard to determine just how much aid money is stolen is hard to prosecute those who do the stealing. The lack of cooperation from college administration is one reason.

Administrators are the ones who must initially accuse a student of making a false statement on an aid application, and of doing so with the intent of defrauding the U.S. government, the source of most financial aid. But many administrators likely prosecute their students to “a father suing his son,” contends James Cissel, U.S. attorney for Southern Ohio.

So some prosecutors see the few aid fraud cases that they get as the tip of the iceberg. The pace of prosecution is nevertheless quickening.

In Seattle last spring, three “occasional students”—bookstore buyers Dennis and Jerry Smith, and Patricia Ann Hunt—were charged with 28 counts of conspiracy to defraud the government. According to the grand jury indictment, the three filled financial aid applications to a total of six schools—five community colleges and the University of Washington—at the same time. The three were convicted of trying to get the funds for profit, not for attending college costs. A fourth person—financial aid counselor Sapina Pele-Tilli—was subsequently convicted of being in league with them.

Another financial aid officer—Robert Ellis—was convicted in January, 1979 of one count of embezzlement. Ellis had been involved in a scheme that made financial aid available to eight University of Cincinnati students in return for kickbacks. The students were put on probation, and ordered to make restitution. Ellis was sentenced to a two-year prison term, and assessed a $10,000 fine.

Illinois’s officials think they’re on to the largest financial aid fraud scheme on record. They’ve charged Aboudoum Bamgbose, a 33-year-old Nigerian national, with trying to bilk the Northern Illinois University financial aid office out of $30,000. The trial began last week with Bamgbose pleading not guilty.

State Attorney Bill Brady told the DAILY ILLINI at the University of Illinois that “if he got $25,000 out of NIU, there’s no reason he couldn’t have gotten $25,000 out of other schools.” If found guilty of the Russell, aid director at North Seattle Community College, notes, “I’m still seeing some crazy looking applications.”

Russell was a witness in the Seattle trial. He laments that “Students are finding that they have everything to gain and almost nothing to lose. If a student is refused financial aid for his college, it is a good bet he can get it somewhere else.”

James Cassell, the U.S. attorney who prosecuted the University of Connecticut case, speculates that students feel free to put false information on aid applications because universities are so reluctant to take action. “The universities don’t want to sue students who have gone to their schools. Their attitude is that it is like a father suing his son.”

But, nationally, there may be more fraud coming. North Seattle’s Russell blames the apparently spreading practice of aid fraud on the increasing availability of financial aid, especially for offspring of higher-income families.

He says the new Middle Income Student Assistance Act, which makes students from families that make up to $25,000 eligible for aid for the first time, may make things worse. “What we are seeing is a higher, socio-economic group that is brighter, more adept at manipulating the system.”

Get your parents and friends in on the act. . . .

subscribe to

The Johnsonian

Circulation Manager
P.O. Box 6800 WCS
Rock Hill, S.C. 29733

NAME_________________________

ADDRESS_____________________

CITY: STATE___________________

ZIP CODE_____________________

SUBSCRIPTION FOR: ☐ 1 year ☐ 2 years ☐ 3 years

$5.00 per year

NOVEMBER 12, 1979
BY DAVID JACKSON

If there ever was a loss which could be considered a moral victory, it was the Winthrop soccer team's 3-2 defeat at the hands of powerful Erskine last weekend, well after the team's 3-2 victory. It was the Winthrop soccer team's finest hour in many ways, and it represented the Wlnthrop soccer's finest hour ever.

For the record, the Winthrop loss left Winthrop's final regular season mark a fine 1-8-4-1 which made it second in the district's championship game. For the remaining season, Wlnthrop rounded out its record at 2-3-1 and third place in the league.

The match itself was a "barnburner," although somewhat sloppily played. It can be classified into the two halves: the first of which was won by Erskine, the second by Winthrop.

Erskine got all three of its goals in the first 21 minutes of the match. The Eagles had the ball in their offensive zone for the first two minutes, but the speedy Flying Fleet broke loose on a breakaway which made the score 1-0 at the 3:30 mark.

Winthrop tried to retaliate, but two close shots didn't get in and, before you knew it, Erskine had broken loose and scored again with but 11 minutes gone.

About 10 minutes later, Erskine awarded a free kick and Paulo Machado chipped it over the goal. Bob Bowen's head to give Erskine a 3-0 lead, with 24 minutes still left to play in the first half.

At this point, Erskine had taken three shots and scored three goals. Despite this setback, the Eagles hung tough and shut out the Fleet for the rest of the half and the game. Winthrop admirably refused to quit at halftime and came out to completely control the second half of play.

The Eagles notched their first goal of the afternoon at the game's 54:38 mark when Alex Almaguer knocked in a rebound. They closed the gap to one with 21 minutes left when Frankie Griffin scored.

Winthrop had a golden opportunity to tie or go ahead in the game's last ten minutes when Erskine was forced to play without two men who had been ejected for violence.

However, with a partisan crowd of about 200 on their feet and screaming, the Eagles failed to take advantage of this power play. In fact, Erskine scored to regain control of the game down the stretch and more or less ran the clock out.

When the extremely tough loss, Casada said that "It wasn't pretty, but it sure was exciting. It took a lot of heart for our guys to come back like we did."

Winthrop outshot the Fleet 16-10, had two shots hit the bar, and thanks to their rally, proved that they are just as capable a team and could quite possibly beat Erskine in a rematch which would occur in the district's championship game.

This match serves notice that Winthrop is now a District 6 power to be reckoned with, now and in the future.

After the game, co-captain Peter Fell said, "No matter how well we played, it's still down as an L."

But to me, this game is more than an "L." The team showed they are coming back and class by refusing to lower themselves to the rather easy play of Erskine. One senses that they will be ready for a rematch.

If there is such a rematch, the Johnsonian will be there to cover it (and the rest of the district tournament) in next week's issue.

Erskine goalie Bob Bowen, who has yielded less than 1-8 goals per game this season, gets ready to throw the ball down the field against Winthrop. (Photo by A.P. Copley)

QUALITY TYPING

Fast, accurate typing of term papers, reports, resumes, letters, and much more for only pennies per page!

ALL PAPERS ARE TAILORED TO YOUR SPECIFICATIONS.

Weekends: Call anytime.

Weekdays: Before 9:30 a.m. or after 5:30 p.m.

Phone 328-0763 today
BY DAVID JACKSON

Field hockey team winds up 7-9-1

Ann Ellerbe did not have a very good weekend last Nov. 4-6.

The occasion was the annual Deep South Tournament and the first year field hockey coach had to watch her team lose two and tie one to close their season out with a 5-4-1 record.

The Deep South event is not actually a tournament, but an event in which all 17 invited teams play three games apiece.

Winthrop lost to Appalachian State 2-1 and Duke 2-0 but did manage to hold the North Carolina Club team scoreless.

The Eagles played the Apps early Saturday morning. The visiting Mountainies led at halftime 1-0 on a score at the 22 minute mark.

The Eagles tied the score midway through the second half on a successful shot by Jane Polansky. However, Appalachian State came back to score the winning goal within the next minute.

The Apps dominated the game statistically, holding a 28-6 lead in field shots and an 18-5 advantage in shots from the corner. Lisa Ward had another typically good day at Eagle goalie, making 13 saves.

That same afternoon, the Eagles fell to Duke University 2-0. The Blue Devils converted once each half to claim the victory.

Despite the losing record, Ellerbe, in her first year as field hockey coach, was pleased with the team's season. "I was very satisfied and really enjoyed this team. Everybody worked real well together."

The team showed great improvement as at one point during the season their record was 1-4.

Last weekend's play marked the end of five seniors' careers:
Shelby Dunford, Donna Massey, Jane Polansky, Chris Sherman, and Louise Smith.

However, the Eagles will have several fine players returning including all-stater Ann Horton, Evieyn Ryan, Stella Oliver, and goalie Lisa Ward.

Success inflated

LOS ANGELES, CA (CFP)—Fewer athletes graduate from the University of Southern California than the USC administration likes to claim.

The USC DAILY TROJAN investigated an athletic department report that 81 percent of USC's football players from 1969 to 1975 eventually graduated, but found that only 51 percent of the athletes actually got their degrees.

By the way, the Winthrop Eagle men's basketball team will open up their second season of existence next Saturday night at USC-Aiken.

Tip-off time is set for 8 o'clock and will be aired by WRHI radio.

The Eagles of coach Neilde Gordon have been predicted to cap-
Volleyball falls to Charleston but whips USC

BY DAVID JACKSON

The Winthrop Eagle volleyball team had a big win over the South Carolina Gamecocks but suffered a second disappointing loss to the College of Charleston Cougars during a week which saw them win 7 out of 8 matches to raise their record to 15-3 and the South Carolina State Bulldogs 15-0, 15-2.

Winthrop's big match of the week came on Friday, Nov. 3, when they traveled to Charleston to take on the Cougars as well as the University of South Carolina. This evening featured what Mozingo referred to as "the best volleyball I have ever seen in the State of South Carolina."

Eagle's Volleyball: "This was Charleston's last home match so they were really fired up," said Mozingo.

Marcum, for one, forecast a great night of volleyball. "The volleyball team wrapped up its week of play by downing Converse and Columbia."

They drilled Converse for the second time in a week, 15-3, 15-4, and defeated host Columbia (led by former Winthrop coach Linda Warren) by scores of 15-3, 15-8.

Report re-ignites women sports debate

(CPS): "This could kill intercollegiate athletics as we know it today, if it were truly enforced," warned J. Neil Thompson, immediate past president of the National Intercollegiate Athletics Association (NCAA).

Thompson's just one of a chorus of people who in recent days have made alarming predictions for the future of men's collegiate sports. University of Kansas athletic director Bob Martin, for one, forecasts a day when he'll have to discontinue a number of sports programs. Oklahoma athletic director Wade Walker worries he'll soon be left with only two men's programs - football and basketball as his university.

The predictions, not coincidentally, came on the heels of a report by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission which has recommended a practical approach to bringing women's sports up to men's levels.

The report's recommendation to the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare (HEW), which has ultimate responsibility for melding final guidelines for implementing Title IX, HEW had asked the Civil Rights Commission for its thoughts on how best to do it. A prior commission report had recommended a more moderate, gradual approach to bringing women's sports up to men's funding levels.

The recent, more aggressive commission policy interpretation will be considered at HEW, and, if adopted, will probably end up in court before it is actually implemented. It has frightened many in the men's sports establishment nonetheless.

"We're in a heap of trouble," gaped Texas A&M athletic director Marvin Tate.

PROTECTING REVENUE SPORTS:

But the report was just a recommendation to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission for how to implement Title IX of the Higher Education Amendments of 1972.

Title IX, of course, prohibits sex discrimination by institutions receiving federal funds. Finding ways for equal athletic opportunity for women, however, has been a six-year struggle.

At its September 14 press conference in Houston, the Civil Rights Commission suggested the best way to provide equal athletic opportunity is to mandate equal per capita spending on men and women by athletic departments.

"We're in a heap of trouble," gaped Texas A&M athletic director Marvin Tate.

"This could kill intercollegiate athletics as we know it today, if it were truly enforced," warned J. Neil Thompson, immediate past president of the National Intercollegiate Athletics Association (NCAA).

Marcum, for one, foresees a day when he'll have to discontinue a number of sports programs. Oklahoma athletic director Wade Walker worries he'll soon be left with only two men's programs - football and basketball as his university.

The predictions, not coincidentally, came on the heels of a report by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission which has recommended a practical approach to bringing women's sports up to men's levels.

The report's recommendation to the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare (HEW), which has ultimate responsibility for melding final guidelines for implementing Title IX, HEW had asked the Civil Rights Commission for its thoughts on how best to do it. A prior commission report had recommended a more moderate, gradual approach to bringing women's sports up to men's funding levels.

The recent, more aggressive commission policy interpretation will be considered at HEW, and, if adopted, will probably end up in court before it is actually implemented. It has frightened many in the men's sports establishment nonetheless.

"We're in a heap of trouble," gaped Texas A&M athletic director Marvin Tate.

The report was just a recommendation to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission for how to implement Title IX of the Higher Education Amendments of 1972.

Title IX, of course, prohibits sex discrimination by institutions receiving federal funds. Finding ways for equal athletic opportunity for women, however, has been a six-year struggle.

At its September 14 press conference in Houston, the Civil Rights Commission suggested the best way to provide equal athletic opportunity is to mandate equal per capita spending on men and women by athletic departments.

"We're in a heap of trouble," gaped Texas A&M athletic director Marvin Tate.

Marcum, for one, foresees a day when he'll have to discontinue a number of sports programs. Oklahoma athletic director Wade Walker worries he'll soon be left with only two men's programs - football and basketball as his university.

The predictions, not coincidentally, came on the heels of a report by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission which has recommended a practical approach to bringing women's sports up to men's levels.

The report's recommendation to the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare (HEW), which has ultimate responsibility for melding final guidelines for implementing Title IX, HEW had asked the Civil Rights Commission for its thoughts on how best to do it. A prior commission report had recommended a more moderate, gradual approach to bringing women's sports up to men's funding levels.

The recent, more aggressive commission policy interpretation will be considered at HEW, and, if adopted, will probably end up in court before it is actually implemented. It has frightened many in the men's sports establishment nonetheless.

"We're in a heap of trouble," gaped Texas A&M athletic director Marvin Tate.

"This could kill intercollegiate athletics as we know it today, if it were truly enforced," warned J. Neil Thompson, immediate past president of the National Intercollegiate Athletics Association (NCAA).

Marcum, for one, foresees a day when he'll have to discontinue a number of sports programs. Oklahoma athletic director Wade Walker worries he'll soon be left with only two men's programs - football and basketball as his university.

The predictions, not coincidentally, came on the heels of a report by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission which has recommended a practical approach to bringing women's sports up to men's levels.
Report re-ignites women’s sports debate—

(Continued from page 11)

annually spends on men's sports by the number of men on the school's 25-man teams. He'd take that average per capita expenditure and apply it to each female athlete, even though female athletes don't compete in expensive sports like football. It costs Marum about $9000 to train and equip a football player versus an average of about $1400 to field athletes in other sports.

On that basis, Marum says Title IX would cost him $1.1 million to implement. He says that Kansas, which now has a $490,000 women's sports programs, doesn't have another $1.1 million. Ultimately, Kansas would have to eliminate some programs. "We'll end up with just two male sports—football and basketball. We'll have to pay for women's sports," echoes Oklahoma's Walker.

Many of the athletic directors thus favor an alternative approach that would mandate equal per capita spending for all sports, except football and basketball. Under those circumstances, Marum estimates that the costs of implementing Title IX would decrease to a more manageable $400,000.

OVERREACTION

The Big Ten's Dr. Henry uses Ohio State as an example of how the exemption would work. Ohio State, he says, spends about $1 million per year to stage a football program that turns a profit of $7.5 million.

That profit, in turn, supports every other sports program at Ohio State, except basketball, which pays for itself. He says that's 12 women's and 18 men's teams.

"All we're asking," Henry says, "is that we protect that $1 million investment that makes all the other programs possible, and let's split the $7.5 million on all the other sports on a proportional basis."

He's confident, moreover, that HEW will ultimately adopt such a plan, at least for big universities. "Even the most violent liberals aren't talking about places like the Big Ten," he says. They claim there would be enough progress toward equal opportunity. Big Ten schools spend from $400,000 to $1.4 million per year on women's athletics.

Henry's optimism stems from a July, 1975 meeting between HEW and "a cross-section of people from some of the bigger programs." There were people from both men's and women's athletics departments, most of which were somewhat profitable, and they got "a good reception" for the modified exemption plan.

Among those present, according to Henry, were representatives of Southern Californian, Ohio State, Memphis State, Princeton, Texas, Illinois, and Virginia. Henry estimates there are about 80 such programs which are supported by their football revenues.

Helen Loukas, project director for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, puts the number at about 30. "But even if it IS 80," she says for argument's sake, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

Jane Habiger, public relations director for the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 30. "But even if it IS 80," she says for argument's sake, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

"Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 60. "But even if it IS 80," she says, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

"Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 60. "But even if it IS 80," she says, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

"Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 60. "But even if it IS 80," she says, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

"Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 60. "But even if it IS 80," she says, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

"Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 60. "But even if it IS 80," she says, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

"Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 60. "But even if it IS 80," she says, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

"Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 60. "But even if it IS 80," she says, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

"Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 60. "But even if it IS 80," she says, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even.

"Women (AIAW), puts the number at about 60. "But even if it IS 80," she says, "that's a very small number. Equal per capita spending is the only fair way."

She maintains the AIAW wouldn't have to pay for anything where there'd be any exemptions.

Congress, too, is on record as opposing at least the kind of gross exemptions for football and basketball programs, she says, lose money or just barely break even. end
Census Bureau needs help

HEW Secretary Patricia Rob-era Hurts has written to college and university officials requesting cooperation because of the concern of Secretary of Education, and to provide in-service education for An Information program to spread the word about federally funded career education programs.
Two career education demonstration programs—one for public schools and the other for colleges.
A total of $19 million is available to operate and evaluate the state in-service program this school year. These funds may be used to make career education a part of regular classroom activ-
ties, to improve guidance and counseling, to develop relations with community organizations, to purchase instruction materials, and to provide in-service education for teachers or school staff.

The career information dissemination program, funded at $200,000 this school year, will be operated by the National Occupational Information Coordinating Committee, composed of
Department of Labor and HEW officials, and by the National Diffusion Network, which publicizes exemplary elementary and secondary projects funded by HEW. Those groups will provide information about successful federally funded career education programs to interested individuals and to school districts that may wish to adopt these successful projects.

The two demonstration programs will develop model career education for public school and college studies, which may then be used by other agencies and institutions. These programs will not be funded this school year.
The role which appear in the FEDERAL REGISTER today,
describe the purposes of the new programs, application review criteria for the demonstration programs, state in-service procedures, the kinds of projects that may be funded, and program eligibility.
State and local education agencies, institutions of higher education, and public and private agencies are eligible to participate. All must promote equal opportunity in career choice by eliminating practices that encourage career bias and discrimination on the basis of race, national origin, sex, age, economic status, and handicap.

Career opportunities

HEW News

HEW’s Office of Education has established four new programs to make students more aware of career opportunities.
The career education programs, established in a regulation issued today, are:
1. An allocation program that makes funds available to states and territories for use in public elementary and secondary schools.
2. An Information program to spread the word about federally funded career education programs.
3. Two career education demonstration programs—one for public schools and the other for colleges.

A total of $19 million is available to operate and evaluate the state in-service program this school year. These funds may be used to make career education a part of regular classroom activ-
ties, to improve guidance and counseling, to develop relations with community organizations, to purchase instruction materials, and to provide in-service education for teachers or school staff.

The career information dissemination program, funded at $200,000 this school year, will be operated by the National Occupational Information Coordinating Committee, composed of
Department of Labor and HEW officials, and by the National Diffusion Network, which publicizes exemplary elementary and secondary projects funded by HEW. Those groups will provide information about successful federally funded career education programs to interested individuals and to school districts that may wish to adopt these successful projects.

The two demonstration programs will develop model
career education for public school and college
studies, which may then be used by other agencies and institutions. These programs will not be funded this school year.
The role which appear in the FEDERAL REGISTER today,
describe the purposes of the new programs, application review
criteria for the demonstration programs, state in-service procedures, the kinds of projects that may be funded, and program
eligibility.
State and local education agencies, institutions of higher education, and public and private agencies are eligible to participate. All must promote equal opportunity in career choice by eliminating practices that encourage career bias and discrimination on the basis of race, national origin, sex, age, economic status, and handicap.

BOONE’S SUNOCO
Complete Auto Service
Coldest Beer In Town
Snack Stop Open 24 Hours Drinks, Munchies, Cigarettes
Next To Winthrop At Cherry Rd. and Oakland Ave.
The winner of the "Phrase that Pays" contest, Dona Turner, was awarded a $20.00 prize in Thomson Cafeteria Wednesday, according to Jane Frieman, fundraising chairman of Zeta Tau Alpha.

"The phrase," said Frieman, "was 'We Have Arrived.'"

Frieman said that Turner did the art work for the phrase, and for the word "We" she wrote out Winthrop Eagles.

Frieman said that she and Dean Mann were the judges. They narrowed it down to three phrases, and the sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha, voted on the winner. The honorable mentions are Becky Allen, "Eagles don't just nest in the mountains, they soar in Rock Hill-Winthrop College Eagles"; and Sharon Craft, "Eagles put the Win in Winthrop College."

Frieman said that the new bumper stickers will go on sale in approximately three weeks for 50 cents each. They'll be sold in Thomson Cafeteria, and ZTA members will be around campus selling them.

Two new exhibits

The controversial 21st Annual Springs Traveling Art Show, consisting of 40 works by Carolina artists, will open Nov. 15 in the Rutledge art gallery, according to Edmund D. Lewandowski, chairman of the Art Department.

The exhibition was selected from 864 entries by Ira Licht, director of the Lowe Art Museum at the University of Miami, and Jane Livingston, associate director of the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.

Showing along with the Springs show will be 15 prints and drawings by Paul Martyka, instructor of art. Martyka said most of his works are imaginary "broken and reassembled landscapes executed since 1976 and will be displayed in the small gallery. Lewandowski said both exhibitions will be on display Monday-Friday, 9:00-4:30, and Sunday, 2:00-6:00 through Dec. 1.

Stripped of myth and mystery, the story of the most influential life in history.

An Inspirational Films Presentation of a Genesis Project Production

PIX THEATRE THROUGH NOV. 15th

patrons with Winthrop I.D.
(except on reduced specials)

Dining room available for studying after dinner or anytime Mon.-Thurs. evenings. Please call ahead in case dining room is booked.

Open 24 Hours
2440 N. Cherry Road
366-3965

NOW FEATURING: Sausage or Ham Biscuits, Biscuits with country gravy, served with two eggs. Everything on the menu is served 24 hours a day.
A BUNFUL OF WAYS TO SAVE A BUNDLE AT RAX

TWO FOR ONE
Buy one Rax roast beef sandwich at the regular price and get your second sandwich free with this coupon.
Expires Nov. 30, 1979

30¢ OFF WITH THIS BAR-B-Q-PON
Buy a Rax Barbecue beef sandwich and save 30 cents.
Expires Nov. 30, 1979

30¢ OFF BIG RAX
Buy a Big Rax roast beef sandwich and save 30 cents.
Expires Nov. 30, 1979

30¢ OFF RAX 'N FRIES
Buy a Rax roast beef sandwich and an order of our crispy fries and save 30 cents.
Expires Nov. 30, 1979

SAVE 50¢ ON A RAX PLATTER
Order our delicious Rax roast beef sandwich, crispy fries and our endless salad and save 50 cents.
Offer not good at pick-up window.
Expires Nov. 30, 1979

SAVE 30¢ ON BARBECUE AND FRIES
Buy a wowie Barbecue sandwich and our crispy fries and save 30 cents.
Expires Nov. 30, 1979

We couldn't make our delicious Rax specialties any better tasting. So we made them better buys. As you'll discover when you redeem these coupons in the restaurant or at our speedy pick-up window. Rax. You said a bunful. And now you'll save a pocketful, too.

RAX. YOU SAID A BUNFUL.

RAX. ROAST BEEF RESTAURANTS
Halloween happened

BY CYNTHIA SMITH

Witches, ghosts, ghouls and goblins! There are just a few of the many things normally associated with Halloween. However, anyone attending Halloween Happening at Dinloss Student Center October 31 knew that this year Halloween was no normal event. Everything from M&M’s to the Hulk were seen wandering the Winthrop campus in search of Halloween fun.

Baby dolls, doctors, Hershey’s kisses, Jimmy Buffett, Dolly Parton and “2 wild and crazy Czechoslovakian dudes” were just a few of the many characters seen strolling around Dinkins. A group of girls artfully dressed as a pack of crayons won the Halloween costume contest.

Many school organizations and clubs, including the campus ministries were represented. InterVarsity Christian Fellowship came up with the unique idea of having Christmas in October, selling Christmas items with the sound of Christmas playing softly in the background.

Pie throws were also popular this year. The Psychology Club sponsored a pre-rafle where students could buy a pie if they were the highest bidder and throw it at a certain professor. Students and other Halloween gatherers also had the chance to throw a pie at a senior order member for a quarter or smash in their face for a dollar and a quarter.

As usual there was much food in the vicinity with cotton candy, peanuts and drinks for sale. There were also ring tosses throwing coins in bottles and other various games for viewers to participate in.

Sigma Gamma Nu sponsored a scary monster prop that participants could stand behind to have their pictures taken. There was even a madam to tell everyone’s future. The campus Greeks were also an active part of this year’s Halloween Happening with them having donut sales, baked good sales, popcorn sales and even a casino game and jail. Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity won the booth competition for their haunted forest that seemed a little too realistic to many.

In addition to booths, there were also such popular attractions as the Echoate talent-gong show and the Roommate Game, a take-off on the popular Newlywed Game series.

Halloween Happening seemed to be enjoyed by all the students this year. Probably the most fun about Halloween Happening though was the seeing little ones all excitedly dressed up and the remembering that years ago was us.

CCCADA

Applicants Wanted:

The Chester County Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse is accepting applicants for the part-time position of Drug Diversion Group Leader. This position involves evening and/or weekend hours.

The applicant must have a bachelor’s or post-graduate degree in social or behavioral sciences or the equivalent experience in counseling, treatment or social services field.

The applicant must have had no drug or alcohol arrests for the three years prior to beginning training.

Training for this position will be provided.

The CCADA is an equal opportunity employer.

Please send resumes to:
Jeffrey M. Stratton
P.O. Box 636
Chestertown, SC 29706
Professor of the week: Dr. Donald Myers

Bylor Ridge

Dr. Donald W. Myers, associate professor of management, has been a full-time faculty member of Winthrop's School of Business Administration this year. Myers, a native of Atlanta, Georgia, has served on Winthrop's part-time faculty for two previous years.

Myers said that he is proud to be a full-time professor at Winthrop because he feels that Winthrop's School of Business Administration is the best that he has taught for. "The school is small, but the faculty and students are first-rate," Myers said. "Winthrop, Clemson, and USC are the only schools in South Carolina with AACSB (American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business Administration) credit ratings; this is a very selective group.

Winthrop, Clemson, and USC are the only schools in South Carolina with AACSB (American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business Administration) credit ratings; this is a very selective group.

6th Writer's Conference

Joynes Center will host the sixth annual Writer's Conference, November 15-17, according to Dr. Lawrence D. Joiner, dean of Continuing Education.

Three sequential workshops will be held in the categories of poetry, short story, drama, novel, and non-fiction.

Joiner said that manuscripts were accepted through Nov. 5 for evaluation at the workshop. A distinguished panel of publishers, editors, and agents will answer questions about manuscript submission and methods used to select and reject manuscripts. Individual conferences with workshop leaders will be scheduled for all participants who submitted manuscripts in advance.

"A $50 fee includes the banquet, a wine and cheese reception, manuscript evaluation, and entrance to workshops," said Joiner. "The Friday evening banquet will feature Pete Klappert, poet and keynote speaker, and the presentation of the 1978 Winthrop College Awards for Excellence in Writing."

According to Myers, Winthrop is also considering establishing its own chapter of Sigma Iota Epsilon, which is "a student affiliation of the Academy of Management."

Myers said that as a professor, he is interested in the "applied phases of student learning." In other words, "it's important to learn the classroom material, but it is equally important to learn how to use it," he said. To enforce this principle of "maximum student input," Myers encourages occasional student-taught classes, case analyses, and of course, bringing materials to class.

Myers holds a doctorate degree in Business Administration from Georgia State University in Atlanta. In addition, he has taught at Georgia State University and at DeKalb College in Atlanta.

Myers said that his career-oriented goals are "to be an effective teacher and contribute to the community as a consultant and a writer." On the personal scene, his interests include collecting books written by classical figures in management; also, reading management and military history.

Myers is married and has one daughter who is a junior majoring in Political Science at the University of Georgia. Myers said, however, that he hopes his daughter will come to Winthrop to earn her MBA degree.

An International Co. Heath-Mor Inc. Manufacturer of Filter Queen Has a subsidiary that is expanding in

Rock Hill. A Company

Representative Needed

immediately, male or female. Company

Benefits and Paid Vacation for those who qualify. Local Training with unlimited income after training. Must have own transportation.

Send resume or personal data and references to: P.O. Box 11152, Rock Hill, S.C. 29730
COOL IT!
RENT A
REFRIGERATOR

Larger Capacity
Choice of Sizes
Immediate Service or Exchange

CALL AND RESERVE YOURS TODAY!

HALF YEAR
FULL YEAR

TO ORDER:
CALL SGA, Ext. 2179
1-5 P.M.

RENT AT PRORATED RATE
ATS Presents
The Rob Crosby Group

ATS proudly presents the "Rob Crosby Group," a talented vocal trio whose roots are in Columbia, S.C. According to DSU president Ronnie Lafayette, the group will perform November 15 and 16, and, as usual, admission is free with a WCID.

Using his experiences in South Carolina as the basis for many of his songs, Crosby satisfies a variety of tastes with his soft, laid back rock style. Strong, effective harmonies result when Crosby, accompanied by Margie McCrory and Steve White, belt out selections by Ronstadt, Lennon-McCartney, Dylan, and Crosby's own music.

The group has played in Atlanta and Nashville, with an album, Rob Crosby, to its credit. In addition to its Columbia appearances, the Rob Crosby Group recently played at Thursday's in Rock Hill.

NOT SINCE
LOVE STORY...

The true story of Jill Kinmont. The American Olympic ski contender whose tragic fall took everything but her life. And who found the courage to live through the love of one very special man.

"THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN"

November 14 9:15 p.m.
Tillman Auditorium
ADMISSION: 50¢ with WCID, $1 guests

College Bowl
Competition

Tournaments and Games is sponsoring an Interdepartmental College Bowl Competition to be held November 15 and 16. The competition begins at 8 p.m. in Dinkins Auditorium.

The college bowl will be operated just like the College Bowl television series, with the teams answering questions on such topics as literature, history, and science. Quick response and knowledge are the key factors in point scoring.

Departments participating in the competition are: Elementary Education, Special Education, School of Business Administration, Mathematics, and Textiles, Clothing and Interior Design. Persons with questions about the competition should contact Edie Meyer in the Dinkins Program Board office, 323-2248.

Short Course: CPR

Short Courses is offering a class in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) on November 17 in Dinkins Auditorium. "The class will be taught by a member of the American National Red Cross and will last from 9-3," according to Amy Nichols, Short Courses chairperson. "There's a $4 fee which covers the cost of supplies and workbooks. Persons completing the course will receive Red Cross certification."

Students can sign up for the course at the Dinkins Information Desk. There is also a list of other short courses, so students can sign up for these now.

NO, HERMAN, YOU CAN'T PRACTICE YOUR CPR ON ME!
FAST FOR A WORLD HARVEST
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15

A personal donation of a day's supper money can help hungry people throughout the world: the Boat People, Fish Farmers in Peru, Rural Women in Bolivia, Fulani Herders in Niger, Refugees in Southern Africa.

A situation of greatest urgency: the desperate plight of the starving people of Cambodia. OXFAM is one of the relief agencies that has been allowed into Cambodia with supplies of millet, rice, sugar, grain, and necessary medical assistance.

Join the growing number of people who aim to alleviate the problem of World Hunger. Support OXFAM and make a difference.

Sponsored by:
Whitewater College Cooperative Ministry
For Information contact:
Randy McSpadden (328-6281)
Pat Blaney (327-2087)

OXFAM is an international non-profit organization which seeks to alleviate the problem of World Hunger through self-help development programs. OXFAM donations will be collected at The noon Cafeteria Nov. 13-15.