

April 2019

Black and Blue

Malik D. Brown

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/anthology>

Part of the English Language and Literature Commons

Recommended Citation

Brown, Malik D. (2019) "Black and Blue," The Anthology: Vol. 2019 , Article 19.
Available at: <https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/anthology/vol2019/iss1/19>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Anthology by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. For more information, please contact bramed@winthrop.edu.

Black and blue.

Always has there been issue between the two.

A relationship of the oppressed vs. the oppressor.

Blue has always kept black in check, giving a sense of acceptance when it has always been tolerance.
As the years go by, this façade is slooooooowly drifting away...

As the blue's fingers itch to call upon rolls of thunder
To make more and more black lives slooooooowly drift away...

Black, once great and powerful, lives in fear of flashing lights.

Those lights could lead to life flashing before their eyes.

Is it too much to ask for peace in the streets?

Mothers and fathers afraid to receive late night calls
Telling them they must bury their seed, lay them to sleep.

Blue is supposed to protect and serve,

Not keep black on a leash

And put them to rest when they can't control the beast.

Black and blue...still there is an issue between the two.