

A faded, sepia-toned photograph of Winthrop University's clock tower and fountain. The clock tower is a prominent brick structure with a large clock face near the top. In the foreground, a large fountain with a tall, thin water column is visible on the left. Several vintage cars are parked in front of the building. The overall scene is a wide-angle shot of a university campus.

Scope and Content Note: The Hardaway Family Papers consist of biographical and family history data, diaries, financial records, memoirs, correspondence, plantation records, and newspaper clippings of the Hardaway family, which resided principally in Alabama and Georgia. The plantation records relate to the plantation of Robert Archelaus Hardaway (1829-1899), located in Bullock's County, Alabama. Since most of the family members were primarily in the engineering profession, there is much material concerning their work with various engineering projects in the Southeast, particularly Alabama, Georgia, Texas, and New Mexico.
