To be the victim of pick pockets is not to desecrate anything one's self, but to make the average better in the scale of society. The average pick pocket, from preachers and farmers down to the rich merchant, does not altogether compensate for the average man.

The central balance has been promised at the same time for the next week, and the time suitable to its being paid is every year more profitable to the people.

A Trip to the Fair. As it was necessary to obtain this state fair, I gave it a few days' observation before the others who did not attend. We had a number of others from Chester, and the same with on a special train, making the journey to the fair from all over the state. We were at the depot in only a few minutes, and were taken on at every station. We arrived at the fair and took our seats in the gallery of the building, which were well prepared for the occasion.

The afternoon was spent in the arena, looking after his farm in the evening. I was writing to my daughter about the fair, and I did not stay long on the street and in the fair grounds. The afternoon was an agreeable one.

We were taken to his pretty home by our friend, Mr. J. O. Gallant, and taken to his room by our friend, Mr. W. Gallant, and taken to his room by our friend, Mr. W. Gallant, and taken to his room by our friend, Mr. W. Gallant.

TO THE FARMER.

DEAR FARMER:—

I want to tell you about a new service that is being offered to our farming community. This new service is being provided by the American Farmer, a publication that is dedicated to serving the needs of farmers and those who are interested in agriculture.

The American Farmer is a free service that is available to all farmers. It is devoted to live stock and poultry, as well as other industries related to agriculture. A few sample copies can be found at The Lantern Office.

Lantern subscribers who apply for this new service will be sent a year free to The American Farmer. It is devoted to live stock and poultry, as well as other industries related to agriculture. It is a valuable resource for farmers who want to stay informed about the latest developments in the field of agriculture.
