CHESTER STANDARD.

VOLUME V.

CHESTER, S. C., THURSDAY, JANUARY 19, 1854.

NUMBER 3.

POPULAR EDUCATION.

On the first page of this issue will be found an account of the proceedings of the Poplar Education Convention at Columbia. The address of the President of the College, Mr. B. F. Perry, will be published, and the resolutions adopted by the convention.

SPEECH OF B. F. PERRY.

Mr. President, and Members of the Convention.

It is with great pleasure that I appear before this body, as the representative of the President of this University, and as a member of the College of Columbia. The object of this convention is to promote the cause of education, and to advance the interests of the University. I trust that the members of this convention will be guided by the principles of the institution, and that they will do all in their power to promote the welfare of the University and the community.

In the matter of education, there is no question that the State of South Carolina is in a very backward state. The schools and colleges are insufficient, and the people are ignorant. It is my belief that the State should take more active measures to establish schools and colleges, and to provide for the education of the people.

I trust that the members of this convention will be guided by the principles of the institution, and that they will do all in their power to promote the welfare of the University and the community.

The idea of a popular education is one that is rapidly gaining ground. It is the idea of the age, and it is the idea of the future. It is the idea of the progress of mankind, and it is the idea of the advancement of civilization. It is the idea of the elevation of the masses, and it is the idea of the protection of the rights of the individual. It is the idea of the advancement of knowledge, and it is the idea of the advancement of science.

The convention should be guided by the principles of the institution, and that they will do all in their power to promote the welfare of the University and the community.

I trust that the members of this convention will be guided by the principles of the institution, and that they will do all in their power to promote the welfare of the University and the community.

SIGNED,

B. F. PERRY.

Mr. President, and Members of the Convention.

It is with great pleasure that I appear before this body, as the representative of the President of this University, and as a member of the College of Columbia. The object of this convention is to promote the cause of education, and to advance the interests of the University. I trust that the members of this convention will be guided by the principles of the institution, and that they will do all in their power to promote the welfare of the University and the community.

In the matter of education, there is no question that the State of South Carolina is in a very backward state. The schools and colleges are insufficient, and the people are ignorant. It is my belief that the State should take more active measures to establish schools and colleges, and to provide for the education of the people.

I trust that the members of this convention will be guided by the principles of the institution, and that they will do all in their power to promote the welfare of the University and the community.

The idea of a popular education is one that is rapidly gaining ground. It is the idea of the age, and it is the idea of the future. It is the idea of the progress of mankind, and it is the idea of the advancement of civilization. It is the idea of the elevation of the masses, and it is the idea of the protection of the rights of the individual. It is the idea of the advancement of knowledge, and it is the idea of the advancement of science.

The convention should be guided by the principles of the institution, and that they will do all in their power to promote the welfare of the University and the community.

I trust that the members of this convention will be guided by the principles of the institution, and that they will do all in their power to promote the welfare of the University and the community.

SIGNED,

B. F. PERRY.
The Chester Standard.

[Article content]

M. C. BRADWELL,
ALEXANDER,
C. PARROT.

[Ad content]