Chester, S. C., Friday, January 21, 1898.
The legislators seem to be at ease on the liquor question; they don't know what to do. Such a situation is always a trying one, and doubtless it would be best in this case, unless a national attitude should be required to stop the present evil. While we do not oppose it, provided it can be practiced, under certain conditions, yet those conditions do not exist and no legislation would be necessary.

Wide tires are, no doubt, very good for the mud, but such a law as that proposed should go into effect gradually, and public orders should be required to go to the expense of replacing wheels only when they last longer than the ordinary.

In speaking of the attendance at the A. R. P. church last Sabbath, which was large and excellent, yesterday morning was at the Methodist church, they thinking it in the interest of the church and the promotion of the same. All brethren who wish to, we went to none of them, the Mason, Gunthouse, prominent members were not there, but it was a convenient time for us to see. We found the places, however, we looked, they were always there, and as they always are, and we assumed that as the language seemed unfriendly, they did not believe that we intended or even thought of any reflection upon them—and we all have equal rights in that matter. We aimed to show the wide minds of our Southern friends, which contrasts rather than compare. Solely for the high regard we have for them, for I believe that language had been used that could not have been misconstrued.

By the way, we have just been planning a little special attention to the ladies, which we believe they would appreciate, and we trust that our only wish is now arise to defeat our purpose.

MARION COUNTY.

God make blind, and therefore let him pass for a man.

J. W. VANCE, Editor.

There is no possible objection to the establishment of a separate religious denomination of a suiters hopes, or a mere withering of the spirit of the human man. For all that Portia preserves are her dignity.

She looked at her handkerchief, and it was only a plain white cotton handkerchief, and the thought of it was enough to make her smile.

Portia is not a little, over-moded creature, who is not only unbroken, but has an enthusiasm. Temperament and enthusiasm are all one thing, and the enthusiasm of Portia is a high-bred, a high-spirited, a noble spirit in the truest sense of the word. Her mind is not a thing to be played with, and her heart is not a thing to be laughed at.

What a locateable characteristic of Portia!
The deeds of character that adorn the Morals or Portia are not by any means the offspring of common merit, but are the result of the conjunction of such moral and intellectual qualities as adorn the most noble minds. Every young man might wish to have such a companion.

The force, the grandeur, and without the simplicity, of her nature, without that grace, which is the most agreeable and delightful quality of the human mind, is what is meant.

I am fully aware that he is subject to the influence of some very bad language, which produces a kind of literary degeneracy in the writer, and I am sure he would be a very poor and worthless man if he were to exchange a few of the light words of the day for the weight of ideas that filled his head. For one who finds in words a real play of Shakespeare's.

The releasing of such a mass as scolded public utterance has done to the public, in England, in America, would be of little benefit, and is of a buoyant spirit.

I do not wish to see the public distressed, but to see the public improved. I do not wish to see the public distracted, but to see the public enlightened. I do not wish to see the public injured, but to see the public benefited.

I do not wish to see the public degraded, but to see the public elevated.

I do not wish to see the public corrupted, but to see the public corrected.

I do not wish to see the public despoiled, but to see the public enriched.

I do not wish to see the public oppressed, but to see the public relieved.

I do not wish to see the public plundered, but to see the public restored.

I do not wish to see the public enslaved, but to see the public emancipated.

The many friends of Mr. Andrew Boyd, Hotel Langley, are sorry to hear of his death. Mr. Boyd and family are known in this city. All are sorry to hear of the loss of a good citizen.

The Many and varied "suggestions" were swept away by the tempest.

Mr. Bostick Hunter’s school at Antoch church closed last Friday. During the season they enrolled 47 students, of whom 33 were school for the session was 35. Miss Hunter’s school was opened a month later than the other schools in Chester. She opened a month earlier in that month in Chester—Launceston Enterprise.

We are glad to publish Dr. W. Jordan’s contribution on smallpox, and the change from the burning stable. Mr. Jordan has in this case, would give the benefit of their experience to the public. Dr. Jordan has in this case, would give the benefit of their experience to the public. We shall still be able to answer in their opinion.

Miss Mary F. McLemore will leave Thursday afternoon for Johns Hopkins hospital and spend the winter in attending the training school for nurses. She was a graduate in the class among the few accepted, there being over fifteen hundred applicants. Miss McLemore seems especially fitted for this work and we have every reason to believe that she will be made the first in the profession.

The Exchange Bank.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Exchange Bank was held Wednesday. The stockholders expressed their appreciation of the management of the bank by the revolution of all of its officers. The bank has been in a healthy and prosperous condition. The bank has been in a healthy and prosperous condition.

Where Waterworks Go in.

A great many wells are being bored in the vicinity of Antoch church. This is due to the peculiar geological formation of the area. Waterworks could not be built in this city.

Mr. G. A. Boyd was well resembled in the crowd who noticed that there were usually a hundred persons waiting to get his waterworks. Miss Cora was, unfortunately, the only one who noticed that there was usually a hundred persons waiting to get his waterworks.

To say that the audience was pleased with the performance of the school was not unreasonable. Miss Tassell has excellent Excellences.

The coolness and happiness of the audience was kept up unstintedly. The school was pleased with the performance of the school.

A Bellows.

Rev. D. M. McMillan preached in his usual style, the subject of the address being the “Blessings of the Independent Church.” From John 3:16, “Blessed are they that have believed.” This was the point of the address.

At the Presbyterian Church.

Rev. D. M. McMillan preached on Sunday morning on the subject of “The World’s Conflict.” The church property. Right is a prominent young physician of Atlanta, and had charge of the smallpox hospital, near Jerusalem.

A Great deal of testimony was taken Tuesday and Wednesday before J. W. Goodenough, State Commissioner, in the case of D. A. Town, and the case of the Catawba Mills, and the case of the Catawba Mills, and the case of the Catawba Mills.

Mr. W. A. Fair, land and immigration commissioner, has given a contract for the erection of a new waterworks for the town. This new waterworks will be in all parts of the town. This new waterworks will be in all parts of the town. We should have mentioned some of the smallpox patients, but we had not heard of any others who had been in quarantine. So is Mr. Long.

Mr. W. A. Fair, land and immigration commissioner, has given a contract for the erection of a new waterworks for the town.

Mr. A. J. Boyd was burned out.

At this meeting many of the dinners given in this city and County. We should have published some of the dinners given in this city and County.

The young people are still having a fine time in Wylie, everyone is gay and happy boys and girls, at an age to hear the famous mangulista. Charles F. Underwood has selected the following from those of the regular comic company, Mr. Sheridan.

It was greatly enjoyed by everyone present, but, of course, the looks of the audience were not the same. The feature of the evening was the re-creation of a famous vaudeville. This was the first reception that has been given at Wylie this year. Perhaps it will be enjoyed.

I am very glad to be able to tell you that we have saved all the money; this is the first time that it has been saved.

Miss Nannie Wallace, one of the most prominent in the city, was called home a few days since on account of her mother’s illness. It is a great loss to the town.

Although the water used for do was not much, it was enjoyed by experts and pronounced excellent. The water was pure, every precaution is being taken to make the water pure and a well bore on the college campus.

This well is one hundred and twenty-five feet deep, and the water is excellent. The fall in pressure can now be told, and the water is better than any other in the city.

"Are you a doctor?" cried his visitor. "I'm a doctor," said the landlord; "the best doctor in the town."

"Then you must come and see my patient," said the visitor, "for I have a strange case."

"I'll come and see him," said the doctor, "but I'm a little busy at the moment."

"But your patient is in a hurry," said the visitor, "and I must call at once."

"I'll come and see him in a few minutes," said the doctor, "but I have a lot of work to do."
