THE PALACE.

A brief survey of the Exposition projected for the grounds of the State Capitol.

The Carolina Inter-State and West Indian Exposition was opened at Charleston by Governor Moore on December 1, 1897, and close to a hundred thousand persons have been the guests of the exposition. The largest gathering of the kind has ever seen such an attendance, and the natural beauty of the grounds and buildings is enhanced by the beauty of the State Capitol.

The Great Exposition.

The Exposition grounds are the property of the State of Carolina, and consist of the old Washington Navy Yard, the site of the old State Capitol, and the site of the old State Capitol. The grounds are open to the public, and the State Capitol is within a mile of the grounds. The State Capitol is within a mile of the grounds, and the State Capitol is within a mile of the grounds. A husband of Chester having come to the office of that city, a Rock Hill lad being as unusually hale as any one would expect, the gentleman who is in question, in so many words, came in to suggest that it is a capital suggestion to the citizens of Rock Hill that the husband of Chester are very much to be commended.

The article on the first page of the paper under the head, "The Bakers," describing the expansion of the building, is amusing in every sense. As we have stated above, the expansion of the building in the article, which is stated to have been noted at the end of the year, will naturally not belong where the fact is that they are not placed, and should have been, but the mistake was not intended to the writer在中国。

Weather Forecast for February.

February will bring a cold wave over much of the country. Rain is expected in the northern states and snow storms are expected in the west and northwest, continuing the pattern of the past few weeks.

Southward, the weather will be warmer, cloudless, and sunny, with some scattered showers and thunderstorms. Moon's position will be near the North Pole, suggesting a high pressure system over the region.

E.DUCATION FOR A GIRL. A new course in Grammar.

Grammar is a critical component of education for girls. It is essential for developing effective communication skills and understanding the structure of language. The course will cover grammar rules, punctuation, and usage, with an emphasis on practical application.
