11-16-1897

The Lantern, Chester S.C.- November 16, 1897

J T. Bigham

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/chesterlantern1897

Part of the Journalism Studies Commons, and the Social History Commons

Recommended Citation

https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/chesterlantern1897/12

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the The Chester Lantern at Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Chester Lantern 1897 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. For more information, please contact bramed@winthrop.edu.
Chester, S. C., Tuesday, November 16, 1897.

Intelligent recollections from authors like the following:

"Yet even after this glorious declaration..."

"The domestic tranquility guaranteed by the constitution had not been enjoyed (by the South) for...

Butler's Brigade in '64.

In the spring of '64 the 4th, 6th and 7th regiments of Butler's Brigade were transferred from duty in the south in the northern states. The 4th regiment was transferred to the east of the James River, the 6th to the west of the James River, and the 7th to the south of the James River.

One of these demonstrations was made on the morning of the 14th, when a column of the 4th regiment was driven from some successive skirmishing lines by a force of Confederates under General Hatcher's command. The brave position was held by a body of Confederates under General Hatcher's command. The brave position was held to a brilliant charge, but was forced to break its lines during the afternoon, and the enemy were defeated at the cost of several casualties.

The accuracy of this fire appeared to have been so much greater than that of the southern forces as to make them greatly superior. The enemy's fire was directed at the southern lines, and seemed to be aimed to cut the southern lines in half. However, the southern lines were held to a brilliant charge, but were forced to break its lines during the afternoon, and the enemy were defeated at the cost of several casualties.

The accuracy of this fire appeared to have been so much greater than that of the southern forces as to make them greatly superior. The enemy's fire was directed at the southern lines, and seemed to be aimed to cut the southern lines in half. However, the southern lines were held to a brilliant charge, but were forced to break its lines during the afternoon, and the enemy were defeated at the cost of several casualties.

The primary objective of Butler's Brigade in '64 was to advance to what was then thought to be the next line of battle. The southern lines were held to a brilliant charge, but were forced to break its lines during the afternoon, and the enemy were defeated at the cost of several casualties.

The accuracy of this fire appeared to have been so much greater than that of the southern forces as to make them greatly superior. The enemy's fire was directed at the southern lines, and seemed to be aimed to cut the southern lines in half. However, the southern lines were held to a brilliant charge, but were forced to break its lines during the afternoon, and the enemy were defeated at the cost of several casualties.

The primary objective of Butler's Brigade in '64 was to advance to what was then thought to be the next line of battle. The southern lines were held to a brilliant charge, but were forced to break its lines during the afternoon, and the enemy were defeated at the cost of several casualties.

The accuracy of this fire appeared to have been so much greater than that of the southern forces as to make them greatly superior. The enemy's fire was directed at the southern lines, and seemed to be aimed to cut the southern lines in half. However, the southern lines were held to a brilliant charge, but were forced to break its lines during the afternoon, and the enemy were defeated at the cost of several casualties.

The primary objective of Butler's Brigade in '64 was to advance to what was then thought to be the next line of battle. The southern lines were held to a brilliant charge, but were forced to break its lines during the afternoon, and the enemy were defeated at the cost of several casualties.
TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1897

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. J. J. Ginn, Jr., Editor of the World, has called on us, and in the course of a brief interview, has assured us that he would continue to write for this paper, if we would publish it. We have always been pleased to have Mr. Ginn's contributions, and we shall be glad to have them continue.

We have received two letters this week, one from a gentleman named Smith, and the other from a gentleman named Johnson. Both are very kind and thoughtful, and we shall be glad to publish them.

We have no news of interest from Chester or the surrounding country. The weather has been very mild, and the crops are in good condition.

We are glad to hear that the owners of the new railroad have made arrangements to have the line completed by next spring. This will be a great benefit to the people of the district.

We have received a letter from a gentleman named White, who is interested in the development of the coal beds in this district. He writes that he expects to have the prospect opened up by the end of the year, and that he hopes to have the coal mined and shipped within the next few years.

We have received a letter from a gentleman named Smith, who is interested in the development of the coal beds in this district. He writes that he expects to have the prospect opened up by the end of the year, and that he hopes to have the coal mined and shipped within the next few years.
Our Country Friends.

On last Tuesday this report was made known of the death of the Broad Street Baptist church organist, Mr. W. S. Scott. His death was unexpected and the church was taken by surprise. He had been in the church a long time and had worked hard to make it a success. He was a man of great ability and had a fine voice. He was a dear friend to many and will be greatly missed.

The members of the church are in great sorrow and are doing all they can to comfort the family. The funeral services will be held on Saturday at 11 a.m. in the church. The body will lie in state at the church from 10 a.m. until the time of the service.

T. W. MCCLINTOCK, Moderator.

Our Country Friends.

On last Tuesday this report was made known of the death of the Broad Street Baptist church organist, Mr. W. S. Scott. His death was unexpected and the church was taken by surprise. He had been in the church a long time and had worked hard to make it a success. He was a man of great ability and had a fine voice. He was a dear friend to many and will be greatly missed.

The members of the church are in great sorrow and are doing all they can to comfort the family. The funeral services will be held on Saturday at 11 a.m. in the church. The body will lie in state at the church from 10 a.m. until the time of the service.

T. W. MCCLINTOCK, Moderator.

For Sale—a young Jersey cow, calving. Apply at this office.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. G. BRICK, Executor, gives notice to creditors, also offering lands for sale.

B. M. LEE offers invitations to cards.

LOCAL NEWS.

The town of Kernersville has been almost wiped out by fire. The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The house of the late H. H. Elliott, of Winsboro, was burned last Saturday.

It is reported that a landslide is occurring in Columbia, resulting in the evacuation of several homes. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.

The contractors have finished laying the sewer. The town is being surveyed for possible relocation.
New Ly I Lay Me Down To Sleep.

The very words recall the face of the Siamese cat, which the children loved to stroke before going to bed. They seemed to feel that she was still there, and that by saying "good-night" they were not saying anything against the rules of their belief and religion. Mr. Hebert and his wife were a devoted couple. They had been married for many years, and in the eyes of those who knew them, they were a model of domestic happiness. They were deeply loved by all who knew them, and their death was a great loss to the community.

Mr. Hebert was a man of deep religious feeling, and his family were all devoted to the Presbyterian church. He was a man of great kindness and generosity, and his death was a great loss to the community. He had been a member of the congregation many years, and had been very active in its work.

The funeral was hearty and impressive, and the large congregation of friends who were present showed the depth of their sorrow and their love for the departed. The service was conducted by Rev. J. W. Smith, and was followed by a sermon by Rev. J. H. Wilson, which was a fitting tribute to a life well spent.

The body was then carried to the cemetery, where it was buried with full military honors.

Mr. Hebert leaves behind him a widow and three children, who will miss him sorely, but who have the confident hope that he is now in a better land.

---

The Wild West Show, which was expected to attract considerable attention, was opened in the city last week. The show was well organized, and the performers were highly skilled.

The show was divided into several sections, each of which was arranged by Mr. Hebert and his son. The first section was devoted to the Indian dance, which was performed by a group of talented performers.

The second section was devoted to the acrobats, who performed a variety of daring feats. The third section was devoted to the clowns, who were highly skilled in their craft and provided much amusement.

The fourth section was devoted to the animal acts, which were highly entertaining. The show concluded with a grand finale, which was a spectacular display of fireworks.

The show was well received by the public, and it is expected to attract a large crowd.

---

The report of the county treasurer for the year ending last October is as follows:

1. To uphold the law of purity as a protection against all contamination.
2. To be modest in language, dress, and behavior.
3. To avoid all conversation, reading, art and amusement which may put impure thoughts in the mind.
4. To refrain from smoking and all habits which may pollute the body.
5. To strive after the special blessings promised to the pure in thought.

---

The report of the county treasurer for the year ending last October is as follows:

1. To get the MOST for the PRICE.
2. To get the BEST for the PRICE.

---

The report of the county treasurer for the year ending last October is as follows:

1. To get the MOST for the PRICE.
2. To get the BEST for the PRICE.

---

The report of the county treasurer for the year ending last October is as follows:

1. To get the MOST for the PRICE.
2. To get the BEST for the PRICE.

---

The report of the county treasurer for the year ending last October is as follows:

1. To get the MOST for the PRICE.
2. To get the BEST for the PRICE.

---

The report of the county treasurer for the year ending last October is as follows:

1. To get the MOST for the PRICE.
2. To get the BEST for the PRICE.

---

The report of the county treasurer for the year ending last October is as follows:

1. To get the MOST for the PRICE.
2. To get the BEST for the PRICE.