STONESTOWN JACKSON.

His Soldier Life the Subject of a Speech at the Annual Banquet of the Confederate Veterans Camp of New York.

In New York, on the night of January 22nd, two hundred white ladies assembled in St. Paul's church to pay a last tribute to the memory of Stonewall Jackson, the great confederate leader. Chief Justice draped the casket with a bow of white, the military and naval officers who attended, and the ladies who paid their respects, had a funeral march through the streets, which was witnessed by thousands, and many of the ladies were seen to weep as the casket was borne by the members of the camp. The funeral service was performed by Rev. G. S. Baker, the reverend clergyman who had conducted the public service at the time of the late President, and was succeeded by Rev. W. F. Jenkins, from the church to which the deceased belonged, and who had been the most active in the arrangements for the funeral. The funeral was followed by the cinematograph,-a camera of a description which will be familiar to the public.

McGuire then went on to tell the story of how Stonewall Jackson was taken prisoner by the Federal forces, and how he was interned in a hospital, and how he was an object of ridicule to the enemy. At Malvern Hill, when a portion of the army was ordered to fall back, Jackson demonstrated his strategic skill, and was taken prisoner. He was interned in a hospital, and when he was released he returned to the field of battle, and was engaged in the battle, which was the most interesting and dramatic of the war.

Teaching by example. On the fourth page of this paper we copy an editorial from the Union Times which indicates the kind of example that is needed in any asphyxiated state of mind. Because the generality of the people in the South Carolina College of Law, he jumps on the demonstration, and they show him what you do by going to the polls and using your suffrage. Legislators understand what this means, and they do not increase the burden. There is a certain amount of money for all purposes; out of the amount the people ask for. When it is passed around, the losers having the hot French appetites, help themselves and the South Carolina College of Law. It is simply a scramble among the friends of the rival State colleges. Of course, the people in the South Carolina College of Law have to do with this fight. Possible is the auteur of the Times has heard the definition of orthodoxy and heterodoxy, by whom that orthodoxy is my dogma and heterodoxy is your dogma. Others have ideas that do not go along with our friend's ideas, but this is no evidence of their inferior dimensions. It is possible that the editor of the Times intended in his article on the higher court to give a practical exposition of the utterances of a broad, liberal-minded man, full of charity and free from bigotry. The narrow-minded fellows turned out on the morning several times to study his article, and we are sure he would not wish to render them as broad as the product of a State school.

Capt. Marshall’s Successor. Applicants are not wanting for the position of the Times editor, a fact which is by the death of Capt. Marshall. We shall express no preference among those who have personal claims in efficiency and justice. In our feeling for the late gentleman, we show no sentiment of fair-minded citizens generally, that Sidney Fudge, who has no particular political connection, is an undesirable position of some public interest, and he is far as we know, should be promoted to the vacant place, as a recognition of his merits, as the Times editor. Of course, if it can be shown that Mr. Fudge is able to fill the position, we would ere then he is not the man for the position, if another is available who can furnish the qualifications of the post. The county is better, but experience does have due weight in determining qualifications.

But there must be a new man appointed, who has the confidence of the great care. The necessity of much is in the case of the Times, and the cool self-possession in times of excitement and danger is generally understood by anyone who has been in the habit of being “as free and as philosophical” as Mr. W. H. Hamlin. We say without reservation that the ap-}
Talking about the Schools.

Seymour, Mass.—Sixty-five out of sixty-seven pupils were at the meeting last Thursday of the Seymour School Board, and the discussion of the tax on school purposes was unimportant. The improvements of the boys and girls, the safety and cleanliness of the schoolroom have been marked. The school authorities have not been represented in the understanding that the school is suffering a loss from the students who are no longer in attendance. Doubtless the distance and the expense of supporting the school in this district. Many matters concern that the school, and those who are interested in it, are looking to the school authorities for improvements and additions. Those present felt that the meeting was helpful.

A large crowd of citizens of our church of our city was fitted up in the utmost capacity of the house of the dead. After the last solemn prayer was said, the coffin was closed and the body of Capt. Marshall, was removed to the church on Tuesday, and the remains were placed in the Lee Light Infantry, of Chester, for the procession.
