The State House Scandal

In 1900 an appropriation of $175,000 was made by the legislature for the construction of the State House at Charleston. A contract was made with Fred F. Whiting, architect, and Albert B. McEntire, contractor, of Charleston, South Carolina. Senator J. L. Mitchell, of South Carolina, was the chairman of the committee appointed by the legislature to inspect the work in accordance with specifications. He made a final inspection of the building, then returned to Columbia, and a contract was made with Frank P. Milburn, of Columbia, to do the work. The contract price was $175,000, and the syndicate price. 90 cents at 3/4 cent.

THE VENICE.

We give below the vane as we have got it now. The number of sub-mishes received, and the diversity of the people presenting them, are too many to be credited to the press. They have been made by a person who has, as we shall see, a great deal of ingenuity in the matter.

DANGER IN COLD WEATHER

This is danger in cold weather. Any person who has to work in the development of iron mines, large tramway tunnels, etc., is at great risk, and should take precautions to prevent accidents. These diseases are contracted while the miner is working in a mine or tunnel, and he is often unconscious of their existence until they are brought to light by a disease or injury.

The Rev. Mr. Atkins filled his sermon on the subject of "What is the true meaning of life?" He explained what the word "life" means, and gave illustrations to show how it can be interpreted.

Leroy Turner, 500 Columbus Ave: 3 years suffering from rheumatism. Was cured in 2 weeks.

L. S. T. L.: 120 West Main St: 4 years suffering from bronchitis. Was cured in 1 week.

LUCY TURNBULL, PAMPLONIA, Tex. - The Rev. Mr. Atkins has delivered a series of sermons on the subject of "What is the true meaning of life?" He explained what the word "life" means, and gave illustrations to show how it can be interpreted.

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my opinion and regard them as a problem, especially when I am recommending them to others. I recommend them, for example, to patients suffering from stomach and intestinal troubles. These diseases are contracted while the patient is working in a mine or tunnel, and he is often unconscious of their existence until they are brought to light by a disease or injury.
