J T. Bigham
The Bartow Philosopher of the Muses.

SIXTY YEARS AGO, a well-known poet and philosopher from the West had this to say of the Bartow Philosopher:

"The Bartow Philosopher of the Muses is a treasure to be enjoyed."

We already have in hand some Confederate company rails, and will publish them as we can make room for them. Brief information may be had of them. As for the name of the house, it is "Bayard's,"

Some member could have named it "Bayard's" but Ijjtle difference, as it is "all Grocers" in mind.

As we understand the situation, Mr. Collins and family lost almost

A. Good Sign! Trade and traffic here at W. H. NAIL'S Red Basket and Furniture Store is steadily increasing.

This fact goes to prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that the people nowadays, irrespective of race or religion, will patronize that house that sells the best and most genteel goods for the least money. Now faces appearing almost daily. This fact proves that our regular customers are pleased with our goods and that they are upholding the glorious news far and wide.

Our Cheap for Cash System of Merchandising.

It is winning over patrons from the rank and file of all the credit houses of this city.

The level-headed, broad-minded men who aim to keep pace with the aggressive march of progress in their respective lines are watching and learning. They hear of a plan which is thrown off the gallery when they have the same high aspirations as the cash on delivery advocate, and are free to confess that the past is hopefully bent, but they mean to redound the irreconcilable in the brilliant future, and they go at it with a savage intensity and a earnest enthusiasm.

We, in the business of a jobber, visit to our store will convince you that there is always a chance in every wheel.
