CHILDREN ON PROHIBITION

The Author of the Prohibition Measure Makes a Strong Argument In Its Favor.

The debate on prohibition in the legislature has been popular, interesting, and the arguments of the advocates of this noble cause have been cogent, energetic, and eloquent. One of the most notable and forceful advocates of the measure is Rev. Mon. Childs, author of the bill. As a matter of fact, he has been a member of the legislature for the past seven years, and during that time has been active in the cause of prohibition. His arguments have been so strong and so well-documented that they have impressed the minds of many of the legislators, and it is evident that he will continue to press his cause until it is carried into law.

The debate on prohibition in the legislature has been popular, interesting, and the arguments of the advocates of this noble cause have been cogent, energetic, and eloquent. One of the most notable and forceful advocates of the measure is Rev. Mon. Childs, author of the bill. As a matter of fact, he has been a member of the legislature for the past seven years, and during that time has been active in the cause of prohibition. His arguments have been so strong and so well-documented that they have impressed the minds of many of the legislators, and it is evident that he will continue to press his cause until it is carried into law.

In his latest speech, he made the following points:

1. The laws are now so complete that they have their full effect.

2. Prohibition is more necessary now than ever before.

3. The importance of such measures is not to be underestimated.

4. It is a true saying that the time is ripe for such a measure.

5. That the laws are now so complete that they have their full effect.

6. Prohibition is more necessary now than ever before.

7. The importance of such measures is not to be underestimated.
