Many ladies desire more stories and reading about dress and fashions than we can give in The Lantern. Other subscribers would like to have a good literary magazine, but find it too expensive. There are yet others who would like to have both these, together with the local paper. We have arranged to accommodate all these, provided they pay in advance for The Lantern for this year.

We will send the Lantern a year for $2.00, and we will send the Farm and Fireside free with The Lantern to those only who apply in time.

The price of The Lantern is $2.00. The price of the Woman's Home Companion is $1.00. Together: $3.00. We will send both a year for $2.80. Or this combination:

The Lantern: $2.00
The Woman's Home Companion: $1.00
The Review of Reviews: $3.00
All together: $6.00

Home Companion is one of the most popular ladies' magazines now published.
The Review of Reviews needs no recommendation. These combinations will not interfere with the offer of Farm and Fireside. To put these matters plainly, Cool, Josie, Payne, Dallis, Groevenor and others who must be reassured about this and this to this member and that—Republicans, you understand, never Democrat—that if they would stick to the machine and vote the stand pat ticket straight through they would in repayment be given public buildings in their districts with which to set themselves reelected this summer. This, after these said leaders had announced that there would be norible bill this year. Now they most report and pass a bill, and it is generally understood that this bill will call for an appropriation of $15,000. In this state, South Carolina will “net its share,” that is, of course, if some other big state like New York or Iowa or Ohio happens.

The celebration of Alabama was administered by Miss Wilma (Olive) Smith. The day was a festival in the truest sense. The enthusiasm of the people of the city and county was such that not a single complaint was heard. The plan for the day was well laid out and carried out. The parade was a great success. The floats and decorations were such as to make the day a memorable one. The band played their best, and the spectators were delighted.

In the autumn of 1863, the Union Army was advancing into the South. The Union forces were gaining momentum, and the Southern states were facing a dire situation. The situation was critical, and the Union forces were expected to make a decisive move in the coming days.

The Confederate High Command was under intense pressure. It was clear that they were facing a significant challenge. The Union forces were well-equipped and well-organized, while the Confederate forces were struggling to keep up with the pace.

The situation was further complicated by the political landscape. The Southern states were divided, with some remaining loyal to the Union and others remaining loyal to the Confederacy. The struggle for power was intense, and the outcome was uncertain.

Despite the challenges, the Southern forces were determined to fight. They knew that the outcome of this battle would determine the fate of the Confederacy. The soldiers were highly motivated, and they were ready to give their all.

The Union forces were equally determined. They were confident in their abilities and were ready to face the challenge. They knew that the outcome of this battle would determine the fate of the Union.

As the day of battle approached, the atmosphere was tense. The soldiers were in high spirits, and the air was filled with excitement. The battle was about to begin, and the outcome was uncertain.

The battle was a decisive one. The Union forces emerged victorious, and the Confederate forces were forced to retreat. The outcome of the battle was a turning point in the war, and it had a significant impact on the course of the conflict.

As the dust settled, the soldiers were exhausted but exhilarated. They had given their all, and they knew that they had made a difference. The battle had been a test of will, and the outcome had been determined by the courage and determination of the soldiers on both sides.
