The present juncture when not only all parties are looking anxiously upon the results of the recent elections, but the political writers are daily predicting the course of events, the course of political events, it may be well to consider the subject.

Cuba, Spain, France, Russia, Great Britain, and the United States, have all been connected with the recent elections. Cuba, in fact, is the present political event. The Spanish government has in its hands the control of the power of the Spanish colonies in America. The French government has in its hands the control of the power of the French colonies in America. The Russian government has in its hands the control of the power of the Russian colonies in America. The British government has in its hands the control of the power of the British colonies in America. The United States government has in its hands the control of the power of the United States colonies in America.

The present juncture is the best opportunity for considering the subject. The public mind is in a state of excitement. The political writers are daily predicting the course of events. The course of political events may be well considered.
