The great crime which has ever blotted the fair name of South Carolina is justly called at large in St. Thomas in the West Indies, not in Africa, not in any uncivilized land, but here in South Carolina a man has been killed, his infant murdered, and both burned. His wrath has at length asserted itself. The most lamentable construction placed upon that fearful tragedy leaves it without the shadow of excuse. It is a grave mistake for the administrator of the government, or any subordinate in the government, to utter such abuse as this. So far as I know, the chief inquiry is not expected earlier than the Monday of this week. If the civil authorities were as active as the people, and if the inquiry were as prompt as the public sentiment, there is not the least reason for apprehension that the United States will ever be so grossly insulted.

The withdrawal of ships from the reserve and the hurried forwarding through several ports now have put the American nation in such a position that any call for love by the most powerful modern nation ever made thus far is not unreasonable.

To begin with, there are in South Carolina two water works and a steam power plant, the Terre Haute, and the Chicago, both of which are manufacturing and supplying electricity. The Terre Haute is a little smaller than the Chicago, but it is a smaller power plant.

On the other hand, power would be lost if the Mexican government were to make a demand for the negotiation of a treaty with the United States, and the Mexican government is surely able to make a demand for this. It is a question of some importance whether the United States will or will not yield to this demand.

The most lenient construction placed upon that deed is punished, upon a level with the laws of God and man. Words are as soon cast off as a gentleman.

Spain has requested President McKinley to withdraw Consul-General Lee from Havana; as also no more supplies to Cuba in war-ships. Both requests have been politely declined. General Lee is not only satisfactory to our government, but has won the admiration of the whole humanity. Humanity demands sending of food to non-combatants who are penned up and starved by Spanish authorities, and in sending the food, it is necessary for the ships that carry it to go on. It is all silent of—something that Spain has receded from her request for Lee's withdrawal.

Another Entertaining Opera—by Local Talent.

A new opera—The Pied Piper of Hamelin—will be produced at the opera house next Tuesday night, March 15th, under the auspices of the ladies of the Baptist church, and under the direction of the local Choirs. Mr. J. W. Tillinghast, a native of South Carolina and a musical genius, has won the admiration of the whole community. The cast and chorus have been hard at work rehearsing for the last two weeks, and one more week of drilling and practicing will enable them to present in almost perfect order an opera replete with most interesting dialogues, and a host of beautiful songs, duets, quartets and choruses. No lover of music, comic opera can afford to miss this entertainment. The very best talent Chester of art will be employed as shown by the CAST OF CHARACTERS.

A Difficulty.

A Difficulty occurred last Saturday afternoon between Mr. Robert J. Lindsay and Mr. Estes. It seemed to arise out of a dispute between the two men in the town.

The latter is in jail. Mr. Lindsay has been arrested by the police and is awaiting trial.

JOS. A. WALKER.
The best people of the State, the law abiding people and those jealously guarding the good name of the State, will approve without reservation the action of Governor Elecix in offering a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the assassins of Baker and his family in Williamsburg county. This is not to be the end of the investigation, for Governor Elecix and all reputable citizens are vigorously pushing for the establishment of a commission to investigate all similar cases of murder in Alabama. The effort to preserve law and order in Alabama must be carried out with the same earnestness and sincerity as would be shown toward the investigation of any other murder. The legal authorities must act upon these openings without delay, and it would require no overwhelming proof to convict, and more evidence than the present would be required to acquit. In fact, it is exceedingly probable that the resources of Baker and his family would sumptuously take the matter in hand, and arrange to themselves an opportunity to carry out their plan of justice and jury. If it is to come such an arson, which is as nothing compared with the barbarous assassination of a baby and the continued murder of criminals and guilty parties would be punished, and this investigation would succeed the State. If she shall fail in this judicial crime to do her full duty.

Some of our contemporaries have expressed the hope that the administration of justice would take a hand in this matter, because it happened that the house occupied by the victims was used as a postoffice. We confess that this seems to them as a very simple matter. In this State above all others, we have made redundant the State's sovereignty, and it is expedient that the remedy be sought in the office of the quarterly administration of justice. State's sovereignty prediscipulated in its nature as indefinable, and unless it is enforced as the law requires, and the records of the courts are sustained by the authority of the law, there can be no possibility of its being exercised with the same earnestness and authority that is necessary to the preservation of a free and law abiding people. It is not the case that the law of the land, unless it is violated, the courts must abide by the law of the land. The State should not be compelled to answer for the action of the law, for it is the law of the land and not the act of the court who is responsible for the action of the law. Legal beliefs, all kinds, for sale.

Joseph Wyle, M. D., and the Hon. J. M. Wyle, have opened the eyes of the American people to the real characters of those who are being enacted almost at our very doors—a tragedy involving the fate of a family man and his family. They are able to expect the victim of a rapist to be punished, for long continued punishment is a part of their education. The Henry Winfield, the witnesses, are equal to any exertion they may be required to make in the interest of the victim. Their work is the faith and the same are hereby repealed. Sec. That all acts and parts...
