The Great Boer Farmer and Military Chieftain

In our ideal of a man. He is our ideal simply from the fact that he stands so very nobly of principle. He is our ideal because he never takes count the odds, court impossibilities, and laughs to derision the mere whisper of failure. In other words, he is the noblest and impossible with the most magnificent uncom-

ments. Just such, proud old Boshel had to send thousands of his soldiers down into South Africa to cope with the grapes and patrolium of this one farmer. By Bill that is incredible in this world, the form of such a man should be cast in living bronze to hold up to the gaze of future generations so as to be studied. In Greater New Orleans, men are being held in this way at high tension generally. The bolt has fallen and their goods have been seized by the sherrif. The DeWets in the mercantile world are on hands and with cash in hand; they buy whole drug lots of every conceivable class of medications at prices below the actual cost of production. Some of the very cream of these medicaments purchase their way to the coppers and chinks of The RED RACKET STORE. We want you to see these goods as they fall untouched in fabric from the auction block, with the pieces split in two.

all the blood in your body passes through and is filtered by your kidneys. Think of the many uses.
