For What It's Worth.

New York, March 15.—The news of the capture of our warships, the Merrimac and the Monitor, by the enemy, is the beginning of the end of our rebellion.

Our correspondent has another report that the Merrimac, having been captured, is to be blown up at once. The news is very alarming to the people of the country. The news of the capture of the Monitor is equally alarming. The people are very much disturbed. The news of the capture of the Merrimac is very terrible. The people are very much alarmed. The news of the capture of the Monitor is very alarming. The people are very much alarmed.

When a man talks war, ask if he is ready to go to the front. It is pretty to say that most of the information published by enterprising newspapers is gained after the discovery of the court of inquiry on the Maine disaster is pure fiction. Many people don't know what has been discovered. And much of the way of the people in war is a mystery. It must be admitted, however, that the sweep passage of time is the approval of armymen through which some lives are spent. I am constrained to believe that the Maine disaster will pass, but there will be no huge impasse filled by those whose misfortunes have its origin in some unspeakable Turk. We are sowing the ground that some of "our best citizens" will die, and some of them will lose their lives and their property; but the feeling that they may die for something other than that which is a benefit to them is the same with that which is found in the lives of those who have their origin in imagination. It is an inexpressible delight to a generous soul.
