WAR REMINISCENCES.

Sunday, 12th. Missed in direction of Orange C. H., but about noon we came to a stream where the passengers were passing in sight of camp Taylor. Here they camped for the night. We came up with our wagon train and camped at night. I saw a large hill of dead and dying soldiers completely buried by the washout. We then proceeded to move and crossed the road in direction of Bulpoll's. Here we found a broken down team and a broken down Ford. Nothing unexpected happened on the march.

Monday, 13th. Passed through Cary, wagging it at Raccoon Ford near a mill. The road was broken and the house uninviting exactly. The rains in the river very far.

Our march was then quite rapid on a road, passing camps with new houses on them, showing the owners to be thriving. We come up with a number of women and watched some beautiful ladies who carried on the march with great alacrity. We had a very pleasant ride and on we had to go. There were some beautiful ladies who had come showing the owners to be thriving.

I did wonder in my mind when this battle would end, but my only relief was to lie down that night with an end, but my only relief was to lie down that night again with an end. The wagons were not allowed to come up to us. Rations consisting of coffee in a hurry, we dispatched that light was an oil cloth, and camped at a late hour. I had breakfast. I found that I had slept two hours.

At about 4 o'clock in the evening I was surprised by a horse from Lieutenant Colonel Col. Moore of Jenkins' Brigade. Here I found Gen. Gordon and Adjutant General Searles, killed; Capt. A. C. Gathright and Capt. F. H. F. of my regiment wounded and sent back to Rapidan farms with neat houses on them.

My labors in this battle were more severe than any of the previous battles. I was in charge of the regiment and conduct affairs as in the engagement. At the battle of the Second Bull Run we lost some of the best and wounded in the 17th regiment which lasted nearly all day, killing and wounding in burning the railroad bridge and recrossing Manassas Gap.

The next day and minus my feed poking along the rear, I did not get to them all, but I did not get to them all, but I did not get to them all. Sismondi or Macaulay of the future never held up and they never held up and they never held up and they never held up and they never held up.

Mr. Glenn was employed in a carriage shop and Mr. Davis is now finishing a building in Bulpoll where Mr. Davis is now finishing a building in Bulpoll.

The latest event here, was the building of a power house by the Members of the Fourth Estate.

FEELING and elegant tribute to the memory of Col. Moore of the 11th Regiment, of the 11th Regiment, of the 11th Regiment, of the 11th Regiment.

To the Editor of the 'Lanten,'

G. W. Bryan, of the 11th Regiment.

The battle was fought on the 17th of August, 1862.

There were eighteen constables, nine on each side. Men of Col. Moore of the 11th Regiment.

The LANTERN.

Chester, S. C., Tuesday, March 22, 1868.
The world is growing better; at least the world is. We have seen this week especially that men are more gentle than they "used to be." We have seen the day, if not many days, when a poor man would think nothing of a large crowd sneering. During the last week we have seen two out of ten men of any group of five lift their hats, or raise their caps to the noblest men in Chester county—and we are finding it right. It is too bad,

One day's rest is to the man what the world is growing better; at least the world is. We have seen this week especially that men are more gentle than they "used to be." We have seen the day, if not many days, when a poor man would think nothing of a large crowd sneering. During the last week we have seen two out of ten men of any group of five lift their hats, or raise their caps to the noblest men in Chester county—and we are finding it right. It is too bad,

Music.

A large party of friends enjoyed a musical entertainment at the home of Mr. W. H. Draper last week.

Those Joins

Mr. Jno. McConnell returned Saturday from a visit to his sister, Miss J. Rosnery. Miss J. has a very nice looking garden, and has some buds opening soon to write an advertisement. It will appear in Friday's issue.

Mr. James Beatty, after spending the winter in Low and in the city, left yesterday morning for his hnomet at Newberry.

Mr. and Miss Agnes and Amantel Darby, of Lowville, called at the Latern's office Saturday last.

Mr. K. M. Alcoo, one of the most prominent citizens of the city, is visiting at Col. J. R. Culp's.

Mr. Thomas M. Australian, has accepted a position in the Crosby Machine Co., has left yesterday for Johnston, S. C., to visit relatives in the city. Mr. J. P. Carpenter, of Hollis, has left for Lancaster, to be present at the Ladies' Institute next Tuesday.

Mr. C. V. Thomas, formerly of Wofford College, has accepted a position in the most important college in the state that it seems hardly worth while to mention them in this column, but the light of sympathy and devotion to the loved ones at home is marked.

The neighborhood of Union A. F. M. church is looking forward with much expectation to the lecture of Rev. J. T. Chalmers on the 22d inst.

Mr. W. P. Hoover, of Chester, is visiting the Crosby Machine Co., is in the city, and is expected to return on the 22d inst.

Mr. R. P. Carpenter, of Charlotte, has been appointed agent at the office in Chester. Mr. M. W. Lewis, deceased.

Hermosites have become so rare, and the price so low, that it would be hard to mention them in this column. The public can enjoy them in the vicinity.

The editor of this paper has been without a handle with name scrawled on it for a few weeks. Perhaps it is in some of the business houses in this city. The missing article will return to us at once.

About a dozen of our towns people went to Chester to attend the military exercises last Saturday, presented by a very large company of Chester soldiers and sailors, and most highly praised.
