DISMEMBERMENT OF THE FURIES.

Fierce storms in the present flood season, which threaten to become very destructive, are being attended by a series of strange and alarming manifestations.

The first of these was the appearance of the "Furies," which were seen in the form of large, winged creatures, with human heads and feet. They were accompanied by a loud, piercing cry, and seemed to be pursuing the victims of the storm.

The next manifestation was the "Gorgons," who appeared as huge, serpentine creatures, with heads and tails. They were accompanied by a rattling noise, and seemed to be attacking the onlookers.

The third manifestation was the "Centaur," which was seen as a large, majestic creature, with the body of a horse and the head of a human. It was accompanied by a loud, trumpeting noise, and seemed to be charging at the onlookers.

The fourth manifestation was the "Hydra," which was seen as a large, serpent-like creature, with many heads. It was accompanied by a hissing noise, and seemed to be attacking the onlookers.

The fifth manifestation was the "Minotaur," which was seen as a large, muscular creature, with the body of a bull and the head of a human. It was accompanied by a loud, bellowing noise, and seemed to be charging at the onlookers.

The sixth manifestation was the "Chimaera," which was seen as a large, winged creature, with the body of a lion and the head of a human. It was accompanied by a loud, screaming noise, and seemed to be attacking the onlookers.

The seventh manifestation was the "Medusa," which was seen as a large, serpentine creature, with the body of a woman and the head of a Gorgon. It was accompanied by a loud, shrieking noise, and seemed to be attacking the onlookers.

The eighth manifestation was the "Cerberus," which was seen as a large, winged creature, with the body of a dog and the head of a human. It was accompanied by a loud, barking noise, and seemed to be attacking the onlookers.

The ninth manifestation was the "Typhon," which was seen as a large, serpentine creature, with the body of a spider and the head of a human. It was accompanied by a loud, screeching noise, and seemed to be attacking the onlookers.

The tenth manifestation was the "Cyclops," which was seen as a large, muscle creature, with one eye and the head of a human. It was accompanied by a loud, roaring noise, and seemed to be attacking the onlookers.

The eleventh manifestation was the "Sirens," which were seen as large, serpentine creatures, with the body of a woman and the head of a bird. They were accompanied by a loud, singing noise, and seemed to be luring the onlookers towards their doom.
