WASHINGTON, O. C., March 17.—Mr. Fairbanks, who was present in the Senate today, prepared to go to the Statehouse this afternoon to present the bill for the establishment of the Child's Orphans' Asylum. He said he expected to have the bill passed by both houses tonight, and he was confident it would be signed by the Governor.

The Senate occupied almost its entire time on the subject of the government's proposed appropriation for the construction of the new public building.

The governor is an optimist, and he believes that the Philippine tariff will be reduced. He will be 74 when he succeeds the late Mr. Austin, of Winchester, Ind.

The Senate passed a resolution calling for a committee to study the question of compulsory education, and the bill was referred to the Committee on Education.

The papers are all against the Governor's proposal to increase the state's share of the cost of the new public building, which is to be located near the Capitol.

The act requires that the Governor's proposal be submitted to the people, and the Governor has already promised to call a special session of the legislature to consider the question.

The Governor's proposal has been met with opposition from the public, and it is clear that the Governor's proposal will not be passed by the legislature.

The Governor's proposal is that the state should contribute $20,000 toward the cost of the new public building, which is to be located near the Capitol.

The Governor's proposal has been met with opposition from the public, and it is clear that the Governor's proposal will not be passed by the legislature.
JEWEL
A Broad Statement That Is As True As It Is Broad

The Jewel Ranges Are The Best Ranges on the Market.

They are very heavy and are substantially and mechanically built; are lined with thick asbestos sheets, which makes a very durable and lasting range as well as a bright heater that retains an even heat which makes baking quick and easier.

The JEWEL RANGE also has all of the latest improvements, the cleaner and more attractive, new stove design, together with the new design, which gives the most warmth and comfort to the household.
