There are three ways used by dealers for selling and preparing their tobacco for the market; namely, sun-cured, air-cured and flue-cured. The old and cheap way is called air-cured; the later discovery and improved way is called flue-cured. In flue-curing the tobacco is taken from the field and suspended over intense hot flames to house especially built to relatie the heat and there kept at a certain temperature. This process is known in Schnapps tobacco, just as in the case of wine, to inaduate and stimulate by the roasting process. Only those selections of this object, which are called leaf-tobacco, grown in the famous Piedmont country, where the best known Schnapps and other Rodericks' brand's of high grade, flue cured tobacco.

Hundreds of imitation brands are on sale that look like Schnapps; the outside of the imitation plays tobacco is fine, but the inside is filled with cheap, flimy, heavily sweetened air-cured tobacco; one chest of Schnapps will satisfy the hungry longer than two chests of such tobacco.

Expert tests prove that this flue-cured tobacco, grown in the famous Piedmont country, is the best known Schnapps and so sweetening than any other kind and has a wholesome, stimulating property by its own nature. It is a kind of tobacco you are chewing daily, satisfying more than the mere habit of smoking.
