THE LANTERN.
CHESTER, S. C., TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 1907.

Advertising The Times.
It will soon be eight years since we have advertised The Times and we have certainly a great deal of pleasure in announcing that the firm which controls the publication is now in a position to offer terms which we believe will meet the convenience of all those who desire to support a newspaper which is distinctly non-partisan, which has always been a strong advocate of free government, and which is always ready to advance the best interests of the community.

Why It Was Done.
The least known and least appreciated consequence of this is that our circulation is now greater than ever it has been. The Times is now more widely read than ever before, and this is due in no small measure to the fact that it is now more widely distributed than ever before. We have been able to do this because of the increased circulation of The Times, and we are glad to say that this has been accomplished without any sacrifice of the high standard of excellence which has always characterized our newspaper.

Respect for Law.
We desire to express our belief that our citizens are as much concerned with the law as they are with the government, and that the law is as much a part of our system of government as the government itself. We believe that the law is a necessary and indispensable part of our system of government, and we are glad to say that our citizens are as much concerned with the law as they are with the government.

The Truth of Wisitners.
A member of the New York City bar, who has been a public servant for many years, and who has been a member of the New York bar for many years, has written to us that he is in no way concerned with the law, and that he has never had any personal contact with the law. He says that he is a professional man, and that he has no idea of the law.

The Case of Moscow.
A correspondent writes: "The case of Moscow is one which has always interested me, and I have always been glad to see that the law has been upheld. I have always believed that the law is a necessary and indispensable part of our system of government, and I have always been glad to see that the law has been upheld."

A new President for the World Fallen

The world-powers that fell partially to the rush of the Victorian Idealism are now being reassembled in the form of a new world body. The United States, which has been a steady force for progress, is now in the forefront of this new organization. The French, who have been averse to the Victorian Idealism, are now being forced to join in the reassembling of the world. The British, who have been a steady force for progress, are now in the forefront of this new organization. The Germans, who have been averse to the Victorian Idealism, are now being forced to join in the reassembling of the world.

President Roosevelt - The Greatest

The President of the United States was the greatest of the world-powers. He was a steady force for progress, and his policies were in line with the Victorian Idealism. He was a great man, and his death was a great loss to the world. The British, who have been a steady force for progress, are now in the forefront of this new organization. The Germans, who have been averse to the Victorian Idealism, are now being forced to join in the reassembling of the world.

THE CHINESE NATIONAL BANK OF NEW ORLEANS

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Chinese National Bank of New Orleans, it was voted to lend $500,000 to the Chinese Government for the purpose of building a railway. The loan was conditional upon the Chinese Government agreeing to pay interest on the loan.

Ronald - The Great
