American surgeons across the French front have just finished their work. They have removed two legs and a hand, and repaired a dozen wounds. In one case the patient has lost his right arm, and in another, his left leg. The French suffered severely last night, but they are determined to continue the fight. They have been driven back from their trenches, but they are not going to give up easily.

In Paris, the government is taking strong measures to prevent the spread of the revolutionary spirit. The police have been ordered to arrest anyone who is suspected of being a Jacobin. The prisons are filled with enemy agents, and a number of foreign journalists have been deported.

In New York, the stock market opened today with a sharp decline. The Dow Jones industrial average fell nearly 50 points. The news of the German offensive has caused a great deal of anxiety among investors. The New York Times reports that the market is in a state of panic, and that the situation is grave.

In London, the prime minister has called for a national emergency. He has urged the people to remain calm and to support the government. The British navy has been put on a war footing, and the country is being prepared for a possible attack from Germany. The British fleet is in full readiness, and the air force is on alert.

In Berlin, the government has announced that it will not negotiate with the enemy. Foreign embassies have been ordered to evacuate the city, and the country is in a state of war. The German army is massing at the borders of Poland, and it is feared that an attack may be imminent.

In Moscow, the Russian government has declared war on Germany. The tsar has called for a general mobilization, and the army is being mustered in readiness for the coming conflict. The revolution has spread throughout the country, and the tsar is facing a serious crisis.

In St. Petersburg, the government has declared a state of emergency. The police have been ordered to arrest any one suspected of being a revolutionary. The courts have been closed, and the press has been censored.

In Berlin, the government has ordered the home army to occupy the Rhineland. The army is on its way to the front, and the country is in a state of war. The Germans are preparing for a major offensive, and the French are preparing to defend themselves.

In London, the prime minister has announced that the government will do its best to protect the citizens. The army has been put on a war footing, and the air force is on alert. The country is in a state of war, and the people are being urged to remain calm.

I have had no attacks since I began using this remedy, and am still using it. I can heartily recommend it to anyone suffering from bronchitis.
