CANDIDATES ARE WATCHING MOVES

Candidates Manning, Blease, Cooper and Duncan are working hard for the Warehouse development.

The situation has been viewed from all angles, but not by the politicians. No other candidate for the office of Lieutenant Governor has been busily digesting the announcement that he would be called upon to explain the warehousemen's case, the many statements that have been made about the cargo, and the new orders to submarine commanders. Naturally, no two agreements have been made, and there is no agreement on the name of the warehousemen. One point that may be of interest is that the official version sent to the War Department was found to be almost identical with the offer extended to the United States Senate in 1918, as were the official texts. It is always necessary to inculcate the community the maximum economic service by the road, and to assure the maximum cost of maintenance and repair, therefore, to be afraid of. Each member of the Senate is presumed to be able to explain the warehousemen's claim.

Washington, May 9.—The agreement between the warehousemen and the railroads, for the establishment of the warehouse system by the railroads, is a signal triumph for the people, and is a signal triumph for the warehousemen. Elected to a position of trust, and not on any basis of personal or political advantage, the warehousemen are in a position to speak for the people. The most important position is that of Senator McLaurin, that if Senator McLaurin were to explain the cargo, there is no doubt that he would be able to do so.

The warehousemen adopted a resolution to allow Senator McLaurin one hour at each of the campaign meetings, for Senator McLaurin to explain the cargo, with one or the other of the factions, and if Senator McLaurin were to call on him, the launching of the Warehouse System would not take a turn.

Hniejs sometimes do not always have Joyed by some, might be greatly coveted of popularity, a second thought might not be so popular.

The suggestion has been thrown out that this movement is an attempt to use the excitement of the election to divert public attention from the question of the operation of the movement. But we cannot tell you where the movement would be if it were not for the excitement of the election. When benefited nearly as much by the campaign as we see it the road is through the entire year. This becomes a direction of public opinion which is easy to follow and we are going to pun-hast a shirt for the press. It is usually conceded that the road to prosperity is through the press. All that is necessary is to re-pin the road and to let the people in.

ARMENIA NEWS

We are still watching the clouds hoping that soon there will be rain. Everything is drying and the hills are in general low.

The farmers community meeting which was held in the large hall was well attended. The discussion and study was with Mr. M. Elliot, district agent and Mr. W. H. W., assistant market agent, will be present and will give lectures on crop and soil problems. These features will prove very interesting and helpful to farmers, and every farmer is urged to be present.

The last Wednesday afternoon the ladies community meeting was held in the schoolhouse and was well attended. The discussion and study was with Mrs. R. A. Elliott, assistant market agent.

The list of discussion was as follows:

1. The problems of the cotton harvest.
2. The care of the cotton crop.
3. The planting of vegetables.

Mrs. Ellen McFarland, of Great Armenia, who has been ill for some time, has returned to the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. McFarland, of Great Armenia. The little daughter of Mrs. McFarland, of the same town, was also taken to Chicago for treatment. Both of these ladies are well known to the public.

WASHINGTON, May 5—Provision for investigation of the national highway system is made in a bill now pending before the Senate, the Committee on Public Works and the Senate Committee on Commerce in Military Affairs. The bill is sponsored by Senator J. Arthur Banks of Tennessee and Senator John J. McCullough of North Carolina.

The bill provides for the appointment of a special commission of three persons, including the governor of each of the several states, to determine the best lines of highway routes upon which federal funds are to be expended. It is estimated that the commission will cost not more than $50,000, according to a statement by Senator Banks.

The commission is to report its findings to the Senate within one year after its appointment, and the bill provides that the report shall be printed and published at the expense of the federal government.

Senator Banks added that the bill was introduced at the request of the governors of the several states, who have expressed a desire to have the federal government take a more active part in the development of a national highway system.

The bill has been referred to the Committee on Public Works and the Senate Committee on Commerce in Military Affairs for consideration.

CONCERNING Mme. Julia Claussen, prima donna contralto of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, who is to appear here on the opening night of the Chautauqua, Karlton Hackett, music critic on the Chicago Evening Post, says: "There may be greater Wagnerian singers than Julia Claussen, but I have heard all that this land affords and spent the summer of 1914 in Germany listening to their most famous, and I found none who did the role better than this American contralto. Her voice has the combined beauty of tone, the volume for the full climax, the strength to carry the phrase through to the end without fatigue, and to make those gifts of power work she has the brain and heart to conceive the force of the song."

Glenn Dillard Gunn in the Chicago Tribune, Jan. 3, 1913, wrote: "Mme. Julia Claussen, distinguished Swedish contralto, made her American debut as Ortrud in the season's first performance of 'Lohengrin' last night. She achieved that immediate and complete recognition which is the portion only of the world's greatest singers, a fact which may be the more positively asserted since that small and select company of artists was further represented in the cast by Clarence Whitehill, who was the Telramund. Thanks to the vocal and dramatic gifts of these two notable figures in the world of song, the great moment of the second act was lifted to heights of art as impressive as any achieved by Mr. Buffo."

W. J. Henderson in the New York Sun wrote: "Mme. Claussen sang her numbers with an equal display of voice and dramatic energy. "

The New York Evening Mail comments, "Mme. Claussen is almost unique among contraltos in preserving a characteristic quality of tone even in her high notes."
