SCIENTIFIC LIFE.

The report of the Census Will Serve as a Basis for Planning the Future of the Country.

The United States Department of agriculture is now gathering information concerning the Census, and it will be only after the total mileage of graded roads is known that the extent of farm and home travel can be accurately ascertained. Some of the information gathered will be of direct use to the states, while others will be of general interest to the entire country.

The report of the Census will serve as a basis for planning the future of the country. It will indicate the necessity for better roads and highways, and the extent of farm and home travel.

The statistics gathered will be most valuable for the future development of the country. It is hoped that the report will be of great interest to all who are concerned with the future of the country.

The restriction has become quite rigid in that it is necessary to secure permission to erect any structures on or off the highway or to change the location of any structure already existing.

These restrictions apply to all types of roads, whether state, county, town or private, and are very stringent.

The effect of these laws is to prevent the establishment of any new roads or the extension of existing ones, except where a definite need for the new route has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the proper authorities.

The severe test of a gas is in the problem to determine whether the car can be made to run on gas and if the cost of running it is less than the cost of running a gasoline car.

Thus far, satisfactory results have not been obtained upon the various forms of gas propulsion, such as internal combustion gas engines, and the design of vehicles that could be used to advantage in transportation of persons and goods.

It is not to be expected that any significant progress will be made in the development of gas propulsion at this time.

GOOD TIMES.
The Board of Health has purged the streets and cleared the air for the amusement season. Our dead are not buried in the city, and the city is not dead. This is a step in line with the most progressive cities of the South. We are satisfied that our air is as good as the air of any southern city.

NO MORE FALSE FREEZE THREATS.

Orders become rampant of late for better winter shoes. One shoe manufacturer says that the demand for boots and shoes last winter was far behind that of any previous season. When goods do your country more good than the man to whom they are sold, it is easy to see why they are not always bought by the man to whom they are sold. A large manufacturer of boots and shoes has said that he believes in the year of 1898 that no more high prices may be expected as the pressure of 1897.

TO HELP OUR COUNTRY.

The American Automobile Association has raised the speed limit on the highways of the state. The new speed limit is from one and one-quarter to one and one-half gallons per square yard. The motorist now makes up an American Automobile Association, and the motorist who drives at the rate of from one and one-quarter to one and one-half gallons per square yard is not only a law breaker but a hazard to all who drive on the highways.

ORGANIZED LABOR.

It is now a noisy regiment of the laboring class who are organizing in every city and town and making demands on the owners. The right of all men to organize is conceded. There can be no such thing as a strike, not even a general strike, unless the employers recognize the right of the employes to organize. The whole subject of labor is now in the hands of the organized laboring class and the property owners have no right to dispose of the property in such a way as to injure the organized laboring class.

THE THERAPY OF THE MARKET.

The market is now in the hands of a few men who are able to make or break the market at their will. When public sentiment turns it to one side, prices will go up, and prices will go down, with a swing, and it is this sentiment that is able to carry the market just as the power of the state can carry a man.

You Need a Tonic

There are times in every woman's life when she needs a tonic. And there are times when she needs a change of air, a change of occupation, or a change of surroundings. But there is no substitute for a tonic when the need is acute.

The problem of improving our water supply is one that has been solved. But the problem of improving our blood supply has not been solved. Good health depends upon good nutrition, and good nutrition depends upon clean, pure blood.

The body of a healthy person is a clean, pure body. The body of a sick person is a diseased body. Good health is not a matter of chance; it is a matter of will.

When the body is healthy, it has a natural resistance to disease. When the body is sick, it has a natural resistance to health. Good health is not a matter of luck; it is a matter of care.

We have been told that the blood is the life of the body. And we have been told that the blood is the mirror of the body. And we have been told that the blood is the judge of the body. Good health is not a matter of fate; it is a matter of intention.

The blood is the vital organ of the body. It is the organ that carries oxygen to the cells. It is the organ that removes carbon dioxide from the cells. It is the organ that transports nutrients to the cells. Good health is not a matter of accident; it is a matter of design.

We have been told that the blood is the organ of health. And we have been told that the blood is the organ of disease. And we have been told that the blood is the organ of life. Good health is not a matter of circumstance; it is a matter of choice.

The blood is the organ of the body. It is the organ that makes the body alive. It is the organ that makes the body strong. It is the organ that makes the body healthy. Good health is not a matter of opportunity; it is a matter of action.

The blood is the organ of the body. It is the organ that makes the body live. It is the organ that makes the body grow. It is the organ that makes the body heal. Good health is not a matter of probability; it is a matter of necessity.

We have been told that the blood is the organ of life. And we have been told that the blood is the organ of death. And we have been told that the blood is the organ of pain. Good health is not a matter of possibility; it is a matter of reality.

The blood is the organ of the body. It is the organ that makes the body exist. It is the organ that makes the body function. It is the organ that makes the body live. Good health is not a matter of possibility; it is a matter of certainty.

We have been told that the blood is the organ of health. And we have been told that the blood is the organ of disease. And we have been told that the blood is the organ of life. Good health is not a matter of possibility; it is a matter of necessity.
