Government Documents at Dacus Library

Government Documents and the Arts

You may not think of looking for art information in the Government Documents Department but we have quite a bit of artistic material from the Smithsonian Institution, Department of Agriculture, Library of Congress, and branches of the armed forces. The U.S. Senate Commission on Art has published beautiful full-color volumes of paintings, sculpture, and graphic art including political cartoons and caricatures found in the U.S. Senate historical collection. These materials are on display in the Government Documents Department.

Little known fact –

Illustration in government documents became common around 1844 when the Army, Navy, and General Land Office used engravings, woodcuts, and lithographs to enhance reports of their explorations.

National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities

In 1965, the National Foundation of the Arts and Humanities Act was passed to provide for the establishment of the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities to promote progress and scholarship in the humanities and the arts in the United States, and for other purposes. Go to <http://www.neh.gov/howeare/legislation.html> for more information.

Coast Guard Art

The coast guard has a unique program for artists called “The Coast Guard Art Program” (COGAP). Coast Guard artists are professional artists who volunteer their time and talents to help COGAP fulfill its missions. See <http://www.uscg.mil/art/> for the Coast Guard collection.

Posters and Prints

Several U.S. Government agencies have developed informative posters or prints. The following items and more are available in Dacus Library.

The Department of Agriculture released a series of lithographs from 1965 - 1966 entitled America the Beautiful containing photographs of all 50 states featuring conservation, intelligent land use, and natural recreational facilities. They also produced, Portfolio of American Agriculture, a series of prints and photographs. Dacus Library also has a series of public service posters from the Department of Health.
