The Lantern, Chester S.C.- July 2, 1901

J T. Bigham
CAPT. JOSEPH S. HARDIN

Consul-General for Cambodia

From the files of the Globe, April 16th, 1865.

U. S. V. B. found in the Mainland, and the fighting, which will be real, will be sharp.

The engagement was of the greatest interest to Gen. Sherman and his staff, who were engaged in the acquisition of Cape Hatteras.

On January 10th, Col. Johnson, commanding the Department of Cape Hatteras, delivered a battle flag to Col. A. B. Smith, of the 3rd New York Artillery. This expedition was the result of a long and arduous campaign, and the capture of Cape Hatteras has been accomplished after years of suffering and sacrifice.

The engagement was occasioned by the enemy's attempt to fortify the distant cape. The enemy's force was estimated at about 5,000 men, while the Union forces numbered about 2,500 men.

The fighting was sharp and lasted for several hours. The enemy's force was repulsed, and the Union forces emerged victorious.

Gen. Grant was present and directed the operations of the Union forces.

Mr. Speaker (of the U.S. House of Representatives),

The scheme of the enemy had been to fortify the distance cape and establish a base of supply there for further operations. The Union forces had been preparing for this engagement for several weeks.

Skeered Kluttz

All these thousands upon thousands of too much, too many summer goods in the New York Rack has so markedly skeered Kluttz that he has taken a rough hold of his old ways. He simply can’t afford to throw up too many goods. He quickly moves all these goods into the hands of the quickest bargains.

Not a single one of those cut-down prices will be handled, because if you should get the least bit slow, the hands here named would all be gone, so you must be in a hurry about seeing yourself, that is, be in a hurry about getting them all off your hands without delay.
