The waters and spry company.

When you buy furniture.

You must depend to a large extent on the honesty of the dealer.

We are not angels.

If so, you should see the new lot of toilet sets and bowls.

We have just received from two of our largest American manufacturers.

They are bountiful.

Handsome pitchforks, deep rotted rim bowls, all pieces of the sets are absolutely finessed under the glass with rich deluxe rims and wreaths of pretty flowers truened with gold.

The finest sets are hand painted and gimlet-ed. We do not feel of having our beautiful toilet ware in our store, we shall gladly aid you in furnishing your room with one of these pretty sets.

The small price will ask you for one will surprise you and perhaps you will buy more than one.

Our cut price on Toilet Sets and Bowls and Pitchers will last only so long as this advertisement appears here.

Failure and After

"Dear Bill," wrote the candidate for the presidency last Saturday night, "I am getting up among the photographs. I am running for office, as you know."

There was no reason why he should not have his picture taken. He was a fine man, handsome, but not too much so. The picture was taken by a professional photographer, who took several. He was a cool, efficient, and dignified-looking man, and the pictures showed him at his best.

But the photographs were not ready in time for the campaign. The candidate was in a hurry, and the pictures were not in time for the announcement of his candidacy. The papers were not satisfied with the pictures, and the campaign was in a state of suspense.

The candidate was worried about the pictures. He had hoped to make a good impression on the voters, but he was not satisfied with the results. The pictures were not in time for the campaign, and the candidate was worried about the results.
