Homer's "Command of Death" Also Done on Race Record and in Philadelphia Daily News. June 21.—Varied comments have been voiced by artists regarding Homer's "Command of Death," the second of his original paintings to come to the Philadelphia public. The exacting tasks of executing both the oil and the water color renderings were completed in a few days. The subjects of both pictures are drawn from the World War, although the artist's mind is far from those scenes, for he finds his inspiration in the untrue, but necessary, adventures which are the lot of the rank and file of soldiers. The artist is a student of the large canvas, and has stuck to his job with the result that the "Command of Death" has been completed in a short time.

After taking a bribe plan to attempt to hold up contract on cannon in Philadelphia cleverly foiled. Philadelphia, June 22.—"We can't help it if you are doing work for the Government," said Robert S. Walsh, strike leader of Local 15, International Molders' Union, today in threatening Governor Cadwallader. President of the Cresson-Morris Company, that unless he was paid $500 he would continue a strike against that company, notwithstanding that parts of cannon to be used in battleships and in coast defense are being made at the company. A detecaphone in an adjoining room was recording the conversation. Mr. Cadwallader spoke of patriotism and protested against the unfairness of continuing a strike at present, owing to the national crisis; but Walsh insisted. The Money was found in his possession. He will have a hearing.

Our Real Wealth
As a country we are the wealthiest in the world, but what we possess is the most valuable is our youth.
Our wealth is our people, and we have the will, ability and capacity to develop that wealth. We have the ability to make the youth of today the best educated people in the world, and that is the real wealth upon which we must build our future. The greatest wealth in the world is the capacity to use wealth. What courages me is the development of the religious sentiment which is so evident today, and which will lead to the development of a great nation. The youth of today is going to be able to work harder than we have, and they will work better. They have the will, they have the ability, and they have the capacity to make the best of themselves. The youth of today is going to be able to think for themselves, and they are going to be able to think for others. They are going to be able to think for the world, and they are going to be able to make the world a better place. They are going to be able to think for the future, and they are going to be able to think for the generations to come. They are going to be able to think for themselves and for others.
