Republican Convention Called in Order at Chicago.

Shooting for Roosevelt

Republican National Convention begins its deliberations on the floor of the convention hall in Chicago, Ill., on Saturday at noon. The two main candidates for the presidency are Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, and Charles Evans Hughes, of New York. The convention is expected to wrap up in three or four days.

FIERIEST SHOUTS

The Convention Hall, filled to overflowing, was the scene of the opening session. cheers and clapping accompanied as the resolution committee reported the adoption of the platform of the convention. The platform, which was received with enthusiasm, was followed by a series of addresses by delegates from various states. The scene was a sea of flags, with the colors of the Democratic, Republican, and other parties

TAFT IS THE NOMINEE

President Taft was nominated for the presidency by acclamation. The convention declared the platform and the resolutions. A strong anti-war plank was included in the platform, and the delegates gave it a hearty welcome.

Planks in Platform

The resolution committee reported the adoption of the platform of the convention. The platform, which was received with enthusiasm, was followed by a series of addresses by delegates from various states. The scene was a sea of flags, with the colors of the Democratic, Republican, and other parties.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT

The convention nominated Charles F. Faull, of New York, for the vice presidency.

Congressman John Q. Neff of Wisconsin has been nominated for the Senate.

The Convention Adjourns

The convention adjourned after the nomination of Taft and Faull. The convention will meet again on Monday to consider the nomination of the vice president.

The Effect on the Country

The election of Taft and Faull will have a profound effect on the country. Taft is expected to be a strong president, and Faull will be a competent vice president. The convention has done its duty, and the country can now look forward to the best of times.

THE LANTERN,

To the people of Winnsboro:

We beg that all those who have any interest in the establishment of any kind whatever, who are not in a position to pay us, will come and see us. We have a large supply of many kinds of goods, and wish to make a good trade. We ask that those who have assistants will come and see us also.
