The Sabbath.

In proper observance is a lofty purpose.

There is great divinity in opinion of the Sabbath. But varied as the practice of it must be, many of us practice it a more varied sort; for very few of us observe the Sabbath in any good conscience. If it be true, as it is, that we can observe in comfort the practice of the Sabbath, then we know it is true.

This is a subject, however, not to be decided by the opinions of others or the practice of ages. It was the will of God that we should all observe the Sabbath in the same spirit, and to the same extent; and that all opinions and practices in connection with this ordinance must be rejected as vain, false and pernicious.

It will help us in resisting any current of Sabbath observance to consider the object for which God has intended the Sabbath. The Sabbath was made for man. It is not the male who made this model to meet the demands of man's necessities, but the Creator of man. It is not the Sabbath that is made for us, but we are made for the Sabbath.

As we resolve our own time at our own will, so we should also resolve to spend the time during one day of life from the heart. The true Sabbath as a day of recreation is from the Lord God. It is not the male who has made this day of recreation, but the Lord God. The Sabbath is not a day of business, but the Lord God has ordained it as a day of rest, a day of leisure.

The secret of proper Sabbath observance is to be found in the spirit of the day. The Sabbath is not a day of work to be observed by the body, but a day of rest to be enjoyed in the spirit. The true Sabbath is a day of rest, a day of leisure, a day of recreation.

The Sabbath is a day of opportunity, a day of rest, a day of leisure, a day of recreation. The Sabbath is a day of opportunity, a day of rest, a day of leisure, a day of recreation. The Sabbath is a day of opportunity, a day of rest, a day of leisure, a day of recreation. The Sabbath is a day of opportunity, a day of rest, a day of leisure, a day of recreation.
