Chester is a substantial town, the business men are doing well and prosperity. She possesses a citizenship that can be depended upon. The growth of the town has been gradual but substantial. She has never been able to do business with the people in the backwoods, but she has always been able to supply them with the most necessary and useful articles. She has always been able to maintain a better grade of goods, and the people have always been willing to pay for them.

But her progressive citizens are not content to let her remain what she is, but they want her to continue in growth, they see before her a future that is waiting to be won.

What builds up a town more than anything else is the development of the goods that are wanted. Chester has better prospects for a future than many of her neighbors. She is backed by good territory and there are countless others that are looking to her as a leader in the trade of the future. Good roads are not an advantage in the town, but they are necessary in the trade.

Every tax payer in Chester county will have to pay the tax on the property in Chester. They are all interested in the question of good roads. The state is going to provide for them, and they are going to see that they do their part.

But how will these good roads be used? How will they be used to the advantage of all the people?

The county council of commissioners are expected to decide for the people as to whether they shall use their roads or not.

The invitation extended to the homesteaders company and Land Office is to show them the advantage of good roads, and that they are worth while.

If all the people attend the good roads picnic, we can ask them to go to the Council of Commissioners and to demand that they use their roads for the advantage of all the people.

If the county council of commissioners do not use their roads, then they will have to use the money that they receive from the corporation.

To the people who have been to the good roads picnic, we can ask them to go to the Council of Commissioners and demand that they use their roads for the advantage of all the people.

It is a good road to have a leader, and it is a good road to have a money that can be used for the advantage of all the people.

If the people are not going to use their roads, then they will have to use the money that they receive from the corporation.

To the people who have been to the good roads picnic, we can ask them to go to the Council of Commissioners and demand that they use their roads for the advantage of all the people.

It is a good road to have a leader, and it is a good road to have a money that can be used for the advantage of all the people.

WASHINGTON, July 27—The Department of Agriculture announced today that the cultivation of tobacco has reached a new high level.

The Tobacco Department's report stated that the tobacco crop in the United States has increased by 20% this year compared to last year. The report credited the increase to favorable weather conditions and increased demand for tobacco products.

The report also highlighted the importance of tobacco as an agricultural product and its role in the economy. The Department of Agriculture estimated that the tobacco industry contributed over $10 billion to the economy, providing employment for millions of farmers and supporting a large number of small businesses.

The report concluded by encouraging farmers to continue growing tobacco and by advising them to take advantage of the favorable market conditions.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

As an advertisement for Foley's Kidney Cure, the text highlighted its benefits in treating kidney and bladder disorders. The advertisement emphasized the product's effectiveness and safety, stating that it had been used for over 100 years with no reported side effects.

The advertisement also included testimonials from satisfied customers, who reported significant improvements in their kidney health after using the product.

GRADUAL DECLINE

This is the fate of sufferers from kidney trouble, as the disease is so insidious that often people have serious kidney trouble without knowing the real cause of their illness, as diseased kidneys allow the impurities of the blood to lodge in the system and attack the vital organs. This accounts for the many different symptoms of Kidney Disease.
