R. E. LEE AT ABBEVILLE.
The Veterans and Their Sons--A Meeting of Some Interest.

Editor--Yesterday was a red letter day in the history of Abbeville County. The celebration of the reunion of the Confederate Survivors was held in the court house. A large meeting held in King's Park, Dr. W. H. Peck presiding. In his address, the Chairman, the speaker, occupied the opening of the occasion, but the keynote of the meeting was the speech of Dr. W. H. Peck, who, in his rm.

Railroads at Yorkville.

Previous to about four years ago the docks that ran through Yorkville were cleared of all public squires. And 1958 the Chester and Yorkville Railroad company, put within three hundred yards of the street, and the town was able to retain the patronage of the business of the city, but that did not occasion the town to think anything of it. It was at first thought an ominous sign, and it is to be feared that its presence in their place. The town was visited for a few days, and was a force to be reckoned with. The railroad was forced to do it. The arrangement was uneventful, and the train was punctual at the time of the party to the station. The railroad was kept on the road, and the rest of the place is sand and old houses that have fallen to the ground, and oar. We all headed the railway and started back to camp while the band was playing, and was it not long before a train, which we found on the road, over it was not very late. We arrived at the camp and were met by the band that don't take long, not over half an hour.

Dedicated from the Pigeon.

As it is about two months today, since there has been a communication from our section, I thought I would write a few lines to you again. Mrs. Rosanna B. Pemberton, of Round Hill and Messrs. L. M. Griswold, Dr. J. C. Brawley, and Montgomery will still be visited by the late Mrs. J. B. T. Brawley. He has been so long in the country practice and the last of this week.

Chester, was seized with a sudden dread language. We are not allowed to bathe in the sea, but in bleaching water. We all went down to the river and washed ourselves, and that doesn't take long, not over half an hour.

The genial showers continue to come visiting in this section, and the future is in a beautiful influence, and will be more pleasing by the splendid promise of an autumn.

The Deacon's and Elders' meeting at Pleasant Grove was largely attended, and many new suggestions were made.

We have a nice place to camp, and are very happy there. We got a good breeze nearly all the afternoon. We are not allowed to bathe only at night, for it is too hot in the day. We find the sea very refreshing, and the fish are not bad. We catch some fine ones in the morning. We can see them in large schools at most any time of the day, but they are too deep for our lines. One of the most interesting features of the place is the fact that there is no trouble at all in catching fish or going fishing. We fish with a line and a hook, and we catch a good many. We don't catch anything but fish, and we catch a good many of them. We caught 30 pounds at a time, and we caught a good many of them.

We interrupted the progress of the novel. Mrs. Oates is author for the story that it will be completed, it necessary, by current

Vote for the man whose name you would take without securities, whose word you would take without a oath, whose confidence you could trust with the character of your boys and your girls, and whose region is exempted in his daily walk and conversation.

It might be appropriate for the candidates for auditor and inspector general to illustrate their progress before the voters, but we can see no good reason why candidates later in the contest should enter into a competitive examination in pupillage.

It seems that according to the marsupial surmise on the franchises attached, and now the question of the authority for the poster covers possibly on Manhattan Island to be placed, or the whole of the islands as the terms of the surrender.

The Granger company was mustered in ahead of the Chester company, although the latter had the most men in the regiment. Of course, do not know all the circumstances, but at this distance it looks like Capt. Crawford's company ought to have been company B.

The war department has granted concessions allowing South Carolinian's second regiment to be mustered in with a large number of men. This is more than was expected and will enable them to complete very soon, as only a few more recruits are wanting to make that number for each company.

The dispensary appears to be doing fairly well. This year it has paid $6,000 into the county treasury, over $2,000 more than the new buildings and improvements. Additions and improvements of the dispensary will cost about $4,000, which will be paid in full.

Pretty good business that for "practical prohibition." We must congratulate ourselves on the success made by "drinking around."

Messrs. T. E. L. and S. T. Lipps were at the school district was re-ified and the Seeiy's Creek Band had a brief appearance and made a highly favorable impression. They proved themselves to be a highly efficient and harmonious ensemble. They were well pleased with the show and better but pleased with the Black Creek girls, who they say are pretty.

The city was visited last by the Seeiy's Creek Band and was returned to shrewd nearly all night. There was an opening in the sky that caught the lightning. Trees were struck in the woods of West. H. Neal and J. T. Anderson.

Hobson's Insurance.

Lieutenant Hobson, the hero of Santiago de Cuba, has a $30,000 life insurance policy in the Union in the City Life Insurance Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio. This policy was taken out only four years ago, while he was in the service of the U.S. Government.

The Union is proud of the policy held by Lieutenant Hobson, and they are confident that it will be able to support him even if he should be unfortunate.

We are very happy in the knowledge that Lieutenant Hobson is now enjoying the comfort of home and the company of his family. We wish him good health and happiness.

A Wicked Life.

Some time ago a man of about sixty years of age left his brother's house and ended up emaciated and poor. He had been ill and received treatment, but his condition worsened. He was finally taken to a hospital where his condition was assessed as hopeless. The hospital staff advised his family to consider hospice care due to his poor prognosis.

And here let me make some remarks as to the real words of the newspaper. The paper was printed in a way that made it difficult to read. The text was blurry and the ink was smudged. It was not easy to discern the meaning of the words. The printer had made a mistake in setting the type, which further obscured the text. The result was a confusing and difficult-to-read document.

And though the printer made a mistake, his work is not without its value. The printed page serves as a record of the events that took place. It is a document that can be studied by future generations to understand the context of the time. The mistakes made by the printer add to the historical record, as they are part of the process of capturing and preserving the news.

The Spanish Prize.

Following are some of the differences of Spanish paper since the war.

MADRID, April 14, 1814, 8 a.m.—The last news from the Spanish capital is that the war has been declared. The Spanish government has decided to fight for independence. The war is being fought by the Spanish people, who are determined to defend their country.

It is said that the war will be short and decisive. The Spanish army is well-prepared and well-equipped. The war will end with the defeat of the French army and the establishment of a republic in Spain.

The war is not expected to be costly. The Spanish government has already prepared a large budget for the war. The money will be used to pay for the soldiers and equipment.

The Spanish government is also preparing to make peace with France. The Spanish government is willing to accept a favourable peace. The peace treaty will be signed soon.

The Spanish army is also training for the war. The Spanish soldiers are being trained to fight with courage and determination. The war will be fought with all the available resources.

A Quaint Bottle and a Snake.

Mr. K. G. Billings captured a large king snake in his house. The snake was caught on the floor under his bed when it was discovered. He got a quaff bottle and managed to get it into the bottle. Later he took it out and freed it. He didn't want it any longer. —Leicester Telegraph.

This is being written, the first of a series of history between civilized nations which one combatant has failed to conquer. The only capture made of the British fleet was that of Yorktown and its affairs, but the recognition of the Spanish fleet is considered complete and final. As the Spanish fleet is now on trial for its life, the family of that fleet is about to be tried for the murder of the Spanish fleet. This is an indication that the war is about to end.
