A Wonderful Machine

hits mightily possesses an invention of a new method of growing corn into meal. We have a sample of the meal of this new invention, and can state that the meal is entirely different in flavor and texture from the meal obtained by ordinary methods. The meal is much finer and more palatable than any meal we have ever tasted. The process is simple and easy, and can be worked on a small scale. The meal is also much drier and more stable than ordinary meal, and can be kept for long periods without deterioration. It is also much cheaper than ordinary meal, and can be produced on a large scale at a low cost. The machine is simple and easy to operate, and can be constructed at a moderate cost. The machine is also easily portable, and can be used in any part of the world where corn is grown.
A paper was circulated that Mr. Featherstone voted for Dr. Samp-
