On account of the increase in the price of cotton the undersigned warehouse companies are compelled to increase their rate for insurance and storage.

Then the rate which is now charged was made $50.00 worth of insurance covered a bale of cotton, now it takes from $100.00 to $125.00 worth of insurance to cover a bale—increase of 100 per cent to 150 per cent in the price of cotton.

...the undersigned warehouse companies will charge for each bale of cotton stored with them thirty-five (35) for the first month or fraction thereof and twenty-five (25) cents for each month or fraction thereof thereafter. This charge to cover storage and insurance.

STETSON

The News for
Red-blooded Young Americans

You've got here that's the very spirit of Fall—smart and up-to-mending, in keeping with the times. Well shaped, smart, tightly wound, with slight shift wound over edges, a slick hand, with close reefed bow.

We are glad to get this like this to-day.

Send this with fish and have a Stetson for a change and for the many occasions when only a derbV-riding.

TO THE PUBLIC:

Every factor in the cotton situation points to a reaction from the downward tendency in the market. Study the situation for yourself and hold your cotton. Don't be led into sacrificing a party's hard-earned reward for your till and worry by selling now. Take advantage of the facilities we offer and store until the price reaches the level at which your judgment tells you to sell.
