AMERICAN TUG FIRED ON AIDING SHIP BRITISH HELD.

Mis* Ruth Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Williams of Leslie, was devoted to the consideration of a statement submitted by Mr. Cabrera, dealing with the rise and growth of power of the Carranza Government. Mr. Cabrera's statement showed the growth of power of the deliberation Government and the development of Chinese authority, which not only had acquired the physical power to establish its wTse in a part of Mexico, but had largely taken over the civil for the military, preparing the way for democratic institutions.

Mr. Cabrera presented a graphic picture of the desperate straits of the Carranza Government in 1915, when its authority was at its lowest ebb. At that time Gen. Carranza controlled but a small fringe of States along the Gulf, the entire interior of the country being under the authority of Villa, Zapata and other rebels. The President and his cabinet were in a state of constant anxiety and uncertainty as to the future of their administration.

The President's appeal to the representatives of the Mexican revolution for support was met with a hostile reception by the representatives of the United States, who considered that the President's action was a violation of the terms of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.

The United States government considered that the President's action was a violation of the terms of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and the President was forced to withdraw his appeal for aid.

The President was forced to withdraw his appeal for aid and the situation began to improve. The United States government considered that the President's action was a violation of the terms of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and the President was forced to withdraw his appeal for aid.
