Importation of Angora Goats.

The breeding of Angora goats in South Carolina, which has been under way for some years, is said to be on a large scale, and has been conducted in South Carolina for some years. The Angora goats imported into South Carolina were brought by a South Carolina importer, and have been used in the raising of Angora goats for some years. It was unfortunate for the importer, however, that the Angora goats imported were not of a better quality.

The goats were imported into the state from the Cape Colony, and have been bred in South Carolina for some years. The goats imported were of a better quality than those imported in the past, and the importer was able to make a profit from the sale of the goats.

The goats are now being raised on a large scale in South Carolina, and the importer expects to make a good profit from the sale of the goats.
