The Knitting Machine.

The knitting machine is now being extensively used in the manufacture of stockings, fancy goods, and similar articles, and is becoming more and more popular. It is a machine that can be operated by a single person, and produces a good quality of work. The machine is a combination of several different devices, and is worked by the simple operation of pulling a thread through a series of loops, which are formed by the movement of the machine. The loops are then stretched out, and the thread is passed through them, forming a new loop. This process is repeated, and the result is a continuous thread, which is then woven into the desired pattern.

Letter from Gladge.

Sometimes, I feel like I'm just running on a treadmill, never really making any progress. It's hard to find the motivation to keep going, but I know I need to stick with it. Maybe I'll try setting smaller goals and rewarding myself when I reach them. That might help motivate me. I want to improve myself, not just for the sake of it, but because I believe I can.

Bank Clerk Went Wrong.

Robert C. Brockington, a young man, about 20 years of age, who has been working as a bookkeeper in the bank of Columbia, for two years, was sent to the express office last Monday morning. He received $2,000 in currency and $600 in silver, with some small drafts for collection. He did not return, and Saturday morning he was arrested at a disreputable place in Jacksonville, Fla. from which he escaped.

A new robber was put in jail. It seems very pertinent and amusing of himself and returned with an officer without his consent. The officers of the bank will not prosecute him, and wish to help him to start again his honest life. It is doubtful whether the bonding company will agree to an agreement. The young man did not stop in Columbia, but came on to his widowed mother in Winnsboro. He told her that he could not have been due to bad company and was not guilty.

Clemson Student Killed by Full Pipe.

Clemson College, Sept. 22—Joe Dutton, Junor class, fell from second story window of barracks last night, and was found in dying condition by A. T. Beatty this morning. He never regained consciousness. No one knew how the accident occurred. The theory is that, in his sleep, he tried to descend a fire escape recently placed. He had talked about the ladder and told us it was too short. Special to the State.
