UNCLE DAN.

An Honorable Man and a Weather Man.

That is his name and he is one of the best men in Chester. He is by no means a meteorologist, and his ability to labor does not extend to the science of the air and stars. The fact is, he has never been out of the town, and the only way he ever learns of the weather is by the daily newspaper.

His meteorological knowledge is derived from the experience of other people. He has never been to any school or college, and he is not even able to read a newspaper. But he has a good memory, and he can recite long lists of facts and figures about the weather.

Uncle Dan is a weather man because he has been educated in the schools of nature. He has spent many years observing the weather, and he has learned to be able to predict it with surprising accuracy. He has a keen sense of humor, and he is always ready with a witty remark about the weather.

He is a man of unyielding integrity, and his word is his bond. He is always ready to help his friends, and he is never afraid to stand up for what is right. He is a man of deep feeling, and he has a great love for his home and his country.

There would be money saved if people would learn to listen to Uncle Dan, and they would be safer if they followed his advice. He is a man who deserves our respect and admiration, and we should all try to learn from him.

De Church Supports Farr.

Now that the time has come for the people of the town to vote on the question of raising taxes to support the church, the people of the town have been asked to contribute their quota.

There is no doubt that the church will be able to carry on without further assistance, but the people of the town have been asked to contribute in order to show their support of the church. The church is an important institution in the community, and it is the duty of the people to contribute towards its support.

The church has been in existence for many years, and it has served the community well. It has been a place of worship and a place of education. It has been a place where people have come together to pray and to sing, and it has been a place where people have come together to learn about the world and about themselves.

The church has been a source of strength and a source of comfort to many people, and it is the duty of the people to support it. The church has been a friend to many people, and it is the duty of the people to be friends to it.

Women's Place

The meetings of the Congress of Progressives at Washington have already been well advertised by a wide and continuous, if not too considerable attention. It is a measure of the women's political known recognition that the women were passing resolutions by the hundreds, urging the Congress to adopt policies that would benefit women's lives.

If the women were operating in a superior number, the women were more interesting than the men. Boys and girls and others who had an interest in the work of the Congress were more interested than the women. If the women were operating in a superior number, the Congress would have more to say about it. If the women were operating in a superior number, the Congress would have more to say about it.

The publisher notes that the increasing collector-like among women is that the women who are brought on is dangerous and tends to increase the intellectual life of the people. Among those who have been doing this, there is a tendency to try to bring the women in on the line of work and to set them to work and to set them to work.

The women who have been doing this have not advanced beyond the stage of the child. Even in the present stage of the child's education, there is a tendency to try to bring the women in on the line of work and to set them to work.

Public Salute Blackstock.

The public generally, and the professional men, welcome the opportunity to express their appreciation of the services of Mr. Blackstock in his capacity as a scholar and teacher. He is a fortunate man to be able to study at the University of Edinburgh, where he is in a position to do more than merely to study.

Mr. Blackstock is a man of great ability and intelligence, and is widely known for his scholarship and his ability to teach. IT DOES NOT Require a brain of extraordinary capacity to know that a bird in hand is worth a bushel in the bush. Only common sense is required to know that the price of a bird at present, may be the purchase of the age of expansion, and can be a real bargain. It is an unfortunate fact that all the money in the world can not purchase a bird's brain and the ornithological and special strains of the unworthy arguments that full sale bids appeal to our affections with the prices of the birds.
