NO FOREIGN ALLIANCE.

Washington, Oct. 1—Officials of the State Department today announced that from the outset of the war, the United States has maintained an absolute foreign policy. This policy has not been changed.

Several days ago, the State Department was informed that a number of foreign powers had extended offers to the United States of assistance in the event of war. The Department of State, in reply, stated that it would not enter into any talks with any power for the purpose of providing assistance in case of war. The Department stated that it would not consider any offers of assistance that might be extended to it by any foreign power.

Pure worsteds these days are almost as rare as blue moons.

But we have them—and not 10 per cent. cotton or even 5 per cent. cotton, but 100 per cent. all wool—in our selection of Kirschbaum Clothes.

Nothing like them in town for softness, for tailoring qualities, for all-wool service ability.

Add to such a fabric the surpassing beauty of Kirschbaum design and the thoroughness of Kirschbaum workmanship and you have a suit which is utterly impossible to duplicate under conditions prevailing in the clothing world today.

THEFORD'S BLACK-DRAFT

A word of advice to those who are thinking about buying a new house and a new car: don’t buy them both at the same time. If you have the money, you can afford both, but if you have the money, you can’t afford both. The difference is that if you have the money, you can afford both, but if you have the money, you can’t afford both.
