LIVING AND STEALING.

Bill Amy on the Site of the Present-day: The Different Kinds

We are not disturbed at the overgrowth of towns. Seventy years is long enough for a town to grow to great proportions. Corruption breeds more corruption, and if the town is large and important, as Thomas Jefferson said: "The best way to destroy power is to steal it." There are many in a position to do it, and when the public money does not go. It has to be stolen somewhere.

The following is an excerpt from a newspaper article:

Mr. W. D. Egan of Chatham was on the dock at 11 a.m. on the 24th of October, and in a most dignified manner he ascended the steps of the New York Times building. In his hand he carried a large envelope, which he opened and then placed it on a table. It contained a letter addressed to Mr. Egan from the United States Senate, expressing their appreciation of the services rendered by him in the recent elections.

In his reply, Mr. Egan said: "I have heard many flattering speeches made in my favor, but I have always been careful to remember that I am a private citizen and not a politician. I am not in the habit of seeking public office, but I feel that it is my duty to respond to the expressions of gratitude extended to me."

Mr. Egan then went on to discuss the current political situation, and concluded by saying: "I believe that we should always strive to maintain a strong and independent press, and I am proud to be associated with the New York Times."

Of time's changing lies the change and the unknown,
the lovely and the futile, all visions of life,
the dreams of childhood, the mission of youth,
that which is ever new, ever to be changed.
